AMUNDSEN READY TO BEGIN SEARCH FOR NOBILE'S MEN

Explorer Leaves Oslo for Bergen, Norway, to Meet French Flyer, on Way There in Seaplane.

EXPECTS TO FLY TO TROMSOE TODAY

Italian Aviator Takes Off From Vadsoe for Spitzbergen After Being Forced Down.

By the Associated Press.

OSLO, Norway, June 16.—Roald Amundsen departed for Bergen this evening to meet Commander Rene Guilbaud, who today flew from Candebec-En-Caux to that port in a French seaplane. Guilbaud arrived at Bergen at 10 o'clock tonight. Lieut. Lief Dietrichsen, who was one of the pilots on the Amundsen-Ellsworth Polar flight of 1925, and Capt. Wisting of the Norwegian Navy, who was a member of Amundsen's antarctic expedition, accompanied him.

Amundsen said that everything was ready at Bergen for an early start to the relief of Gen. Nobile's men. Their first base will be at Advent Bay, 60 miles south of Kings Bay.

Friends of the veteran Arctic explorer pointed out that his departure for the relief of Nobile came on the twenty-fifth anniversary of Amundsen's first expedition in search of the Northwest Passage. He sailed then in a small vessel, the Cjora.

Amundsen hopes to fly from Bergen to Tromsoe tomorrow and to be in Spitzbergen Monday.

The wife of Gen. Umberto Nobile sent a telegram today to the family of Lieut. Luetzow Holm, expressing deep gratitude for the brave efforts the Lieutenant is making in the aid of the Italian explorers.

Maj. Maddalena, Italian flyer, on his way to Spitzbergen to aid in the relief of the Nobile party, took off from Vadsoe late today for Kings Bay.

Maddalena, flying a large Savoia-Marchetti hydroairplane, took off this morning, but was forced to land temporarily for repairs. The base crew at Kings Bay is placing much hope for relief of Gen. Nobile in the Major's plans.

Silence of Nobile's Radio Not Considered Cause for Worry.

Copyright, 1928, by the Associated Press.

KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, June 16.—The fact that no radio signals have come from the stranded Polar explorers with Gen. Umberto Nobile since late yesterday is interpreted here as meaning that everything is in status quo with the Nobile party. It is believed the men are conserving the sending power of their accumulators for possible emergency use.

The base ship, Citta di Milano, sent its usual quota of cheering messages to the Italia's men, telling them particularly of the progress being made toward the north by rescue plane Savoia-55 and of the efforts which the vessels Braganza and Hobby are making to penetrate the ice pack along the north shore of the Archipelago.

After weeks of frequent fog and uncertain atmospheric conditions, there was a rift of fine summer weather here today. If similar conditions prevail in the north, it was thought that Capt. Hjalmar Riiser-Larsen and Lieut. Luetzow Holm soon would have opportunity to fly their Norwegian seaplanes to the vicinity of Foyne Island, where Nobile and his men are awaiting succor.

An early day report from the Braganza stated that it was near North Cape. The sealer Hobby, which is not so well equipped to batter ice floes, was about 20 miles behind and near the northeastern entrance to Hinlopen Strait.

Italian Flying Boat Crosses Denmark on Way North.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, June 16.—The huge Italian Dornier-Wal flying boat, which is on the way to Spitzbergen to aid in the relief of General Nobile, crossed Denmark today. It made no halt, although Maj. Penso, its pilot, had asked that a new compass and a large quantity of gasoline and oil be ready for him in Copenhagen.

FIVE NATIONS TAKE PART IN EFFORTS TO RESCUE GEN. NOBILE AND CREW

THE efforts of five nations are being pushed to rescue the crew of the Italia, marooned on the Arctic ice. The relief parties are as follows:

NORWAY—Sealing vessel Hobby, with Capt. Riiser-Larsen and Lieut. Luetzow Holm on board, with their planes, now near North Cape; dog teams also on board.

Icebreaker Braganza, well equipped to batter ice floes, 20 miles ahead of the Hobby.

RUSSIA—Ice cutter Krassin, on way from Kronstadt to Spitzbergen.

ITALY—Large Savoia-Marchetti hydroairplane, on way to Vadsoe, Norway, piloted by Maj. Maddalena.

Dornier-Wal flying boat, piloted by Maj. Penso, on way to Arctic.

SWEDEN—Seaplane Upland, at Narvik, on coast of Norway, with Spitzbergen the next stop.

FRANCE—Seaplane, piloted by Commander Rene Guilbaud, on way to Bergen, Norway, to pick up Roald Amundsen and two veterans of his explorations.

RELAY OF PLANES TO WAFT BELA KUN TO RUSSIAN EXILE

Before Trial, Austria Decides to Send Communist Leader Out of Country.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, June 16.—Bela Kun, the fiery Communist who inaugurated a "red terror" in Hungary in 1919, is to ben banished from Austria for the second time. This time he will be sent to Germany by airplane, the Government of that country having promised to relay him by another airplane to some Baltic port whence a Russian steamer can transport him to Leningrad.

This program was disclosed in Ministerial circles tonight. Kun has been under arrest here since April 28 on the technical charge of entering Austria after he had been expelled. The police assert, however, that his presence in Vienna was part of a plot to inaugurate a fresh Communistic regime in Hungary under the patronage of Moscow.

$1,000,000 FOR CORNELL IF IT WILL OUST WOMEN AND FRATS

Hayward Kendall of Cleveland Makes Offer to His Alma Mater Accompanied by Criticisms.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 16.—The World tomorrow will publish an open letter from Hayward Kendall, Cleveland (O.) coal operator, to President Livingston Farrand of Cornell University, in which the writer offers to leave $1,000,000 to the university provided it will make certain changes in policy, but refuses "to contribute a dime to your present misfit university with its fraternity caste system and sex characteristics."

Fraternities should be abolished, Kendall's letter asserts, and co-eds moved to a separate college.

The letter, on which Dr. Farrand refused to comment, was written after an alumni organization had asked Kendall to contribute to the university's financial support. Kendall was graduated from Cornell in 1898. In his undergraduate career he was a fraternity member.

3000 WORK ON DIKES TO BLOCK SPREAD OF FLOOD

BREAK IN LEVEE COVERS 25,000 ACRES

St. Francis Threatens 75,000 Acres More — Red Cross Caring for Those Driven From Home.

By the Associated Press.

KENNETT, Mo., June 16.—Fighting to keep back the steadily rising waters of the St. Francis River, more than 3000 men were making a desperate effort tonight to save the remainder of their crops and homes from floods. Business and professional men joined the farmers in work on the levees.

The workers were leaving nothing unturned in their efforts to strengthen the weakened spots along a 25-mile front north of here, after a 150-foot break in the levee which occurred early today, inundating more than 25,000 acres of land, and driving hundreds of families from their homese. Ample warning was given those in the area flooded.

At several points near Campbell, to the north of here, the task of keeping the river back seemed hopeless, with the dikes weakened by seepage. It was thought by some that the crest of he third rise, which was expected to exceed the flood stage of last night by a foot and a half, would appear tonight, or tomorrow.

Those who have been working constantly since the first signs of danger early this week fear that should the crest be reached tonight, 75,000 additional acres of land would be flooded. Others think the crest will not be reached until Tuesday at the earliest, in which case the crops and homes of the threatened area may be saved.

A crevasse in the levee opened at 1:30 a. m. six miles north of here, and grew to 300 feet in width during the day, allowing water to approach within a mile of Kennett, but no fear was felt for the safety of the town.

Red Cross headquarters were established here today as plans got under way to care for those driven from their homes. The Mayor issued a proclamation calling every citizen to assist in work on the levees to prevent further destruction. Business houses were closed during the day.

Th citizens were assisted by five companies of National Guardsmen ordered on the scene earlier in the week by Gov. Baker.

Many Driven From Homes by White River Flood Camp on Hills.

By the Associated Press.

NEWPORT, Ark., June 16.—About 250 of the 1000 persons driven from their homes by the flood of the White River, camped tonight on hills in the lower part of Jackson County, and many of them faced the prospect of living for several days more in improvised quarters before they can return to their homes.

A break last night in the dike at Stephens, 12 miles south of Newport, spread the waters of the White River over betwen 35,000 and 40,000 acrs of land in the southern part of the county, from which the residents, previously warned, had fled with their belongings. About 60 per cent of this land was under cultivation. Some residents remained in the flooded area, occupying the second stories of houses and using boats to travel about.

Plans Made for U. S. Body to Supervise Levees.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 16.—Steps toward the Mississippi River Commission assuming control of levees along tributaries to the Mississippi River were taken today when Congressman Frank R. Reid of Illinois arranged to meet W. H. Dick, president of the Mississippi River Flood Control Association, and C. E. Collins, treasurer, in Kennett, Mo., Tuesday to inspect levees and discuss immediate means for relief.

After inspecting the levee break in Dunklin County, Missouri, Congressman Reid will visit the White River district in Arkansas and then return to Washington to begin his campaign for Federal control of the tributaries, he told Dick.

BORAH RETURNED TO REGULARITY AT G.O.P. CONVENTION

Idaho Senator's Course in Kansas City Was a Remarkable Feature of the Quadrennial Conclave.

HIS TWO SPEECHES MOST ORTHODOX

Put Some Liberalism Into Platform, but It Still Is "Regular" — Deflated Fuller Boom.

BY CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 16.—The return of Senator Borah of Idaho to complete and unadulterated regularity was one of the remarkable features of the Republican convention which closed yesterday. The "Lion of Idaho," as he was called by the convention orators, roared eloquently from the rostrum on two occasions and on neither occasion did he utter a word to shock the sensibilities of the most orthodox of the regulars.

Borah first went before the convention to oppose indorsement of the "equalization fee" in the farm relief plank. There was nothing inconsistent in that stand, for Borah has long been against the fee; but to see him there before a Republican convention pleading a majority cause and receiving the plaudits of the majority was an experience to make the crowd rub its eyes.

Borah eulogized Calvin Coolidge most handsomely. Not even Senator Fess, the keynoter, did it any better.

His Tribute to Curtis.

On the last day, as a leader in and spokesman for the convention conferences which had selected Charles Curtis as vice presidential candidate, the senator from Idaho placed the name of the senator from Kansas before the convention in a speech brimming over with eulogy. He said, among other glowing things, that the sympathies and conceptions of Senator Curtis were "as wide as the nation and as broad and deep as humanity." He called him the most universally beloved of all the members of Congress.

It was a well-worded and stirring tribute. Great applause—as much aplause as a convention satiated with nominating speeches was capable of—rewarded the sentiments of the speaker and the shake of his mane. Partly the applause was for Curtis, and partly it registered appreciation of the fact that the one-time "wild man" of Idaho was speaking for a man whose whole career has been the very quintessence of Republican regularity.

One might have thought from the speech, had one just begun to view the American political scene, that Borah and Curtis were yokemates in the Senate.

Borah was active in off-stage meetings as well as in the convention itself. He had a large hand in shaping the platform, and to his credit be it said that he gave it a slightly more liberal cast than it otherwise would have had. But he introduced into it no plank that need cause alarm to any of the directing minds of the party. It is a regular Republican platform with emphasis on the "regular." It is, as everybody knew it would be, a dry platform. Borah gets whatever distinction may accrue from authorship of the prohibition plank.

Deflated Fuller Boom.

Borah helped to deflate a boom for Gov. Fuller of Massachusetts for second place on the ticket. When the name of Fuller was being discussed in a conference, Borah said: "We have troubles enough already without dragging Sacco and Vanzetti into the campaign." That settled Fuller.

It is told around Washington that at the end of the last session of Congress, Borah suggested to a couple of the progressive members of the Senate that they go with him to the White House to see what could be done toward stopping that man Hoover.

In the convention the 11 delegates from Idaho, led by Borah, climbed aboard the Hoover band wagon.

Borah's regularity was of too recent origin to encourage the hope, if any cherished it, that the lightning might be directed toward the plains of Idaho. It was a regularity, however, sufficient to bring him into a strange juxtaposition with "Uncle Andy," Boss Vare, Moses, Smoot and the others of the sacred inner circle.

HOOVER PLANS AWAIT ARRIVAL OF LEADERS

Inspects Work on Government Building and Has Luncheon With Kellogg.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Secretary Hoover mixed in considerable attention to his official duties today in the course of dealing with matters that have to do with his newer status of the Republican presidential candidate.

While his earliest caller was Senator McNary (Rep.), Oregon, leader of the fight of agricultural interests for the equalization fee plan of farm relief, an hour later found Hoover surveying the excavations for the new Commerce Department building in Washington. He went over the site of the structure with his architectural assistant and lunched later with Secretary Kellogg of the State Department. After his conference with Hoover, Senator McNary issued a statement in which he declared that the nominee had been "sympathetic and anxious to relieve the distress of our farm population."

The prolonged luncheon engagement with the Secretary of State was said to have brought out discussions purely of departmental matters, many of the Commerce Department's bureaus haviing a great deal of foreign service and functioning under joint supervision of the two secretaries.

Despite his attention to his regular official duties Hoover, however, was able to find time to acknowledge many of the thousands of messages of congratulation which are still coming in by cable, telegraph and mail.

All the men who received votes in the Republican National Convention as candidates in opposition for the presidential nomination with the exception of Senator Goff (Rep.), West Virginia, were said to have been included among the senders of congratulatory messages, though the telegram announced as sent by Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, had not been received.

In regard to his future course of action it was made clear again that he would refrain from making any plans upon the four or five pressing political questions awaiting his decision until he had opportunity next week to meet the Republican party leaders who will return to Washington from the national convention.

A number of questions wihch are before Hoover include, the advise-

HOOVER'S WORRIES INCLUDE PEANUTS AND WAISTLINE

Presidential Nominee Is Watching His Girth, but Feeds on Salted Goobers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Herbert Hoover already is worrying about his girth, and at the same time is passionately fond of peanuts, eating them—bags full—at his daily luncheon.

The authority for this is Mrs. Emma C. Barker, a motherly-looking woman of advancing years, who daily serves luncheon for the presidential nominee in his office in the Department of Commerce. She knows as much about his appetite as anyone else, with the exception of Mrs. Hoover, and, what's more, he likes her cooking and has told her so.

Mrs. Barker says she asked Hoover one day to tell her what he liked to eat so she might fix it. The reply came that he liked her food and her cooking, but had to "watch his girth."

Mrs. Barker is authority for the daily menu, which includes a soup, a salad, cold meat, plenty of cornbread, coffee with cream and peanuts. "Why, the other day," she said, "I served luncheon for Mr. Hoover and two friends and they ate five bags of salted peanuts."

VIOLENT EARTHQUAKE FELT AT VERA CRUZ; LOSS SLIGHT

Citizens of Mexican City Rush Into Streets; Lights Go Out After Second Shock.

By the Associated Press.

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, June 16.—A violent earthquake was felt here at 9:22 tonight. Buildings rocked during the tremor, which continued more than two minutes. The inhabitants rushed into streets, many of them falling on their knees and imploring divine aid.

A few minutes after the cessation of the first tremor, a second shock was felt. Electric light service was discontinued and residents were in a state of panic. The earthquakes are believed to have covered a wide area in this section of Mexico. An early check failed to show extensive damage or loss of life.

MEXICO CITY, June 16.—A violent earthquake shock lasting about one minute was felt here at 9:21 o'clock tonight.

SAN JOSE, Cal., June 16.—Starting about 7:30 o'clock tonight an earthquake of unusual intensity registered on the seismograph at the University of Santa Clara, according to a report from there, and was still continuing 45 minutes later. It was estimated the quake was 2500 miles southeast.

TWO MEN SLASH AND WHIP WOMAN, SET HOUSE AFIRE

Mrs. R. H. Goad of Memphis Reports Midnight Attack — Brother-in-Law Puts Out Blaze.

By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 16.—Mrs. R. H. Goad reported to the Sheriff's office today that two men entered her home last midnight, slashed her seven times on each arm and severely whipped her with belts, then locked her in the house and set fire to it. She telephoned her brother-in-law, who extinguished the flames.

As the men were leaving the house, which is in the county, they told Mrs. Goad, "This is for revenge—we are going to put your husband where he won't bother anybody."

Mrs. Goad said she was awakened by a light shining in her face and saw two men.

"Yell and we will kill you," one of the men warned, she said.

They slashed her arms and whipped her until she was almost unconscious, she reported, set fire to the bedroom and pantry, locked the door and fled.

She telephoned to the cafe where her husband is employed. He was out, but her brother-in-law came and extinguished the flames. Her husband told the officers he knew of no one who had cause to seek revenge against him.

Johnson said he was 66 years old. Mrs. Stanley is 47. They were married later at the home of the Rev. Dr. Lewis P. Tucker, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League.

DRUGGIST KILLED BY ROBBER IN HOLDUP

Gunman, Traveling in Yellow Taxicab, Shoots Charles A. Reilly at 3400 Chippewa Street.

FORCES CHAUFFEUR TO ACCOMPANY HIM

Man Follows Owner of Drug Store Into Rear Room and Fires—Escapes in Machine.

A drug store robber, traveling in a Yellow taxicab, shot and killed Charles A. Reilly in his store at 3400 Chippewa street at 8:40 o'clock last night, after an unsuccessful attempt to hold up the proprietor and customers.

Circumstances of the crime were like those of a $75 robbery committed Friday night in the drug store at 2330 Union boulevard. The Union boulevard robber used a Yellow taxi, forcing the driver to accompany him into the store and to drive him away.

Kenneth Wertel, 16 years old, clerk for Reilly, gave this account of last night's occurrences:

"There were six customers, men and women, in the store when a man came in, accompanied by a Yellow taxicab driver. The driver stopped in the middle of the store, but the man came on toward the cash register, where I was standing.

Robber Draws Pistol.

"I asked him what he wanted, and he drew a pistol and said, 'Not one of you move.' As he said this, he turned around to the customers.

"Mr. Reilly was standing at the rear of the store, in the doorway leading to the prescription room. He turned and ran into the prescription room. I had heard him say he wouldn't stand for a holdup, but would resist, and I understood he had a revolver back there.

"The robber ran after Mr. Reilly, into the prescription room. The customers ran out the front door, and I started toward the front door, more slowly I could hear the sound of a scuffle in the prescription room, and heard bottles falling. Then there was a shot.

"Just after the shot, the robber ran out past me, and out the front door. I saw him get into the driver's seat of the taxi, the motor of which was still running, and drive it away, going south on Louisiana."

Staggers Into Back Yard.

Reilly, shot near the heart, staggered into the back yard, and died in the arms of his wife, who had been sitting there with her 6-year-old daughter and a few neighbors. The Reillys lived over the store. He was 45 years old.

The taxicab driver, Arthur Lubker, remained in the store. He told policemen that the robber entered his cab at Grand boulevard and Gravois avenue, and directed him to drive to 3400 Chippewa, then told him he was going to hold up the drug store.

"He drew his pistol," the driver said, "and made me go into the store with him. When the druggist started into the back room, my passenger ran around me and followed him."

The taxicab in which the robber drove away was found at 10 o'clock at Keokuk street and Arkansas avenue.

A suspect was arrested, and was viewed by the driver, who could say only that he looked like his fare of a short time before. The suspect was in the police holdover Friday night, hence could not have committed the Union boulevard robbery.

The young clerk described Reilly's slayer as being about 35 years old, wearing a gray suit and gray cap, having a rather ruddy complexion and carrying a blue steel automatic pistol.

VARE EMERGES AS BIG BOSS OF G.O.P. CONVENTION

He Spoke the Word That Assured Nomination of Hoover and Had Big Hand in Choice of Curtis

PREVENTED FIGHT OVER PROHIBITION

Rejected Senator - Elect Took Wind Out of Mellon's Sails by Seizing Opportunity When It Came.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 16.—William S. Vare emerges as the dominating figure of the Republican national convention which ended here yesterday. Although recently denied a seat in the Senate because of the corruption which attended his election, he had a larger voice in the decisions of the convention than any other man on the ground.

Not only did the Philadelphia boss utter the word which insured the nomination of Hoover for President, but it was disclosed today that he took an equally big hand in the selection of Curtis for Vice President. Furthermore, it was only by his consent that the party managers were permitted to avoid a roll call and an open fight on the prohibition issue.

Mellon Taken by Surprise.

Vare's sudden appearance in the commanding role which common consent had assigned to Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon was the most astounding development of the convention. Ninety-nine per cent of the politicians and newspapermen were caught napping, and it is unlikely that the public fully realizes yet what happened. Among the surprised ones were Secretary Mellon, himself, and his spokesman and lieutenant, Senator David Reed of Pennsylvania.

Vare's success in seizing and exercising such power was due, first, to the singular key position which the Pennsylvania delegation occupied in the convention, and second, to Vare's own craftiness as a politician. What he did in each instance was to pick the candidate with the greatest underlying strength and push him over by throwing the bulk of the Pennsylvania delegation to his support.

The general assumption that Mellon would dictate the course of the Pennsylvania delegation was based on ignorance or forgetfulness of the true state of affairs in Pennsylvania. Whether Mellon himself had lapsed into a false sense of power, cannot, for obvious reasons, be ascertained.

Pushed Mellon Into Background.

It has been told previously how the Pennsylvania delegation arrived in Kansas City Monday afternoon, to find leaders, delegates and the press waiting for a word from Mellon which would determine the nomination of the candidate for President; how Mellon announced that he would make a public statement early in the evening and how Vare "jumped the gun" by shoving his own burly frame into the foreground and rudely anouncing that Hoover would be his choice and the choice of the majority of the Pennsylvania delegation.

When the other leaders recovered from their daze, they easily satisfied themselves that "Boss Bill" was not bluffing, for a count showed that at least 55 of the 79 Pennsylvania delegates would go along with Vare. From that moment the nomination of Hoover was assured. The humiliating predicament in which Secretary Mellon and Senator Reed found themselves is better imagined than described. Reed's almost pathetic efforts to explain constituted one of the strangest spectacles afforded by the convention.

It was not until today that full information was obtained about Vare's less spectacular but almost equally decisive intervention in the vice presidential situation.

Ex-Gov. Cox First Proposed.

Following the nomination of Hoover Thursday night, there was a gathering of leaders at the Muehlebach Hotel to agree upon a nominee for Vice President. Among those present were Secretary Mellon, Senator Reed, ex-Senator Wadsworth of New York, Senator Smoot, Chairman William M. Butler of the National Committee and others. The names most seriously considered were those of Vice President Dawes, Senator George H. Moses and ex-Governor Channing Cox of Massachusetts.

The conference continued until after 2 a. m. Upon its conclusion, the writer talked to Mellon, Wadsworth and Reed, and although each declared that no final choice had been agreed upon, it seemed fairly evident that they inclined toward Cox, notwithstanding that a majority of the delegates had never heard of him.

When news of the session and its probable outcome reached Senator Borah there was an explosion. Borah, notified the leaders that he would not stand for Cox, and would make a fight on the floor of the convention if a concerted attempt were made to put Cox over. Borah did not insist upon his own choice, although he admitted that he liked Curtis.

The almost frantic determination of the party managers to avoid any fight which might leave serious wounds, at once manifested itself in a call for a second conference at the Baltimore Hotel at 10 a. m. Those who attended were virtually the same as those who had attended the earlier meeting at the Muehlebach. But the session was hardly begun before a new arrival appeared. It was Vare.

Vare Joins With Borah.

With hardly less ceremony than had embellished his previous announcement in favor of Hoover, the hard-boiled Philadelphia boss declared that Curtis, who until then had received scant consideration, was his choice and the choice of the Vare men in the Pennsylvania delegation. There was some further palaver, followed by a succession of caucuses, but Vare's declaration, coming on top of Borah's ultimatum, decided the issue.

Incidentally, it may be remarked again that politics makes strange bedfellows; Borah was one of those who voted to deny Vare a seat in the Senate. It would be difficult to find two men in public life who are further apart in ideals and conduct.

It is hardly to be supposed that there is much sympathy between Vare and Hoover or between Vare and Curtis. Both Hoover and Curtis had great native strength in the convention. Curtis' strength as a vice presidential candidate was greatly increased by his elimination from the presidential race, because there was a strong inclination among the leaders to give a sop to the Middle West and to recognize Curtis' personal popularity.

Seizes His Opportunity.

The astute Vare appreciated the situation, and when the psychological time arrived for each candidate, he threw him the strength necessary to put him over. What he expects to get for himself, this writer does not pretend to know. Hoover is not likely, in the event of his election, to accept the suggestions which are being facetiously made, and appoint Vare Secretary of the Treasury, although the law of rewards is strong in politics—so strong, in fact, that William J. Bryan became Secretary of State.

Whether he receives anything more substantial, "Boss Bill" has certain satisfactions. To insure the nominations of certain candidates for President and for Vice President, and, incidentally, to show "the greatest Secretary of the Treasury since Alexander Hamilton" where to head in, is not bad for a fellow who used to haul garbage. "Bill" let the country know who is running Republican politics in Pennsylvania.

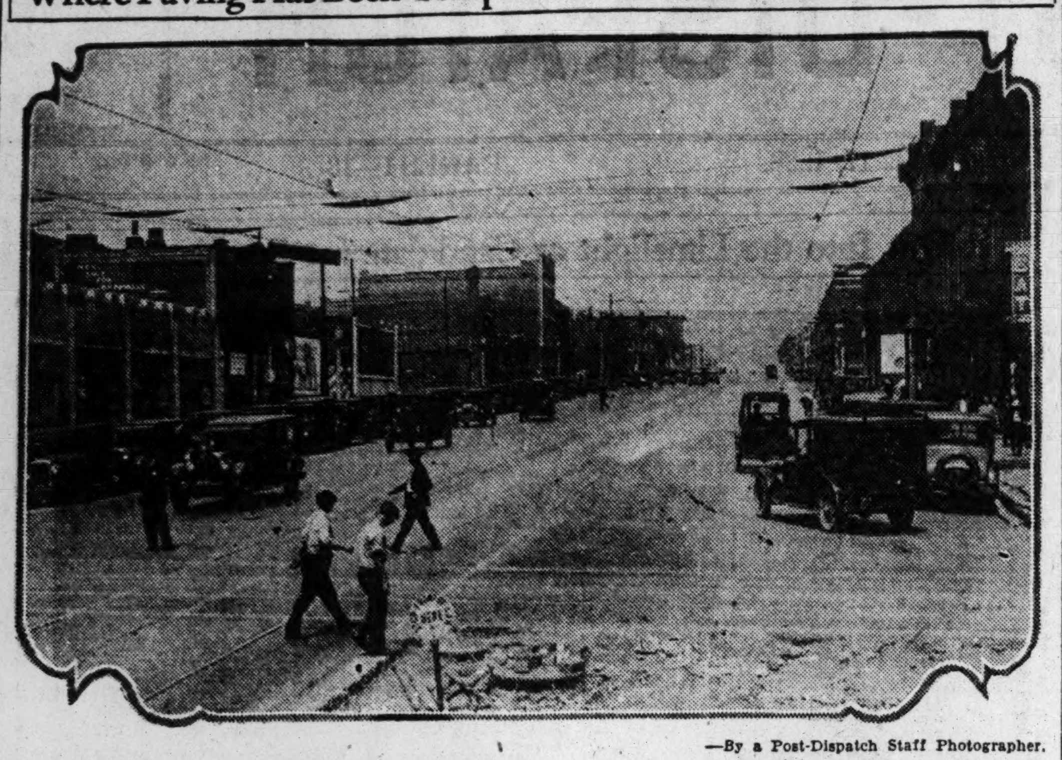
Where Paving Has Been Completed on Both Sides of Olive Street



—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

Looking west from Jefferson avenue, where the paving on the north side has been completed from Jefferson to Lefingwell avenues, and between Leonard and Channing avenues. These are the first blocks opened for traffic on both sides, although the south side has been open for several weeks.

Foundation work on the north side has been completed for 11 blocks, between Twelfth boulevard and Eighteenth street and between Leffingwell and Leonard avenues, and these will receive asphalt surface shortly. For the remaining six blocks, between Eighteenth and Jefferson, the grading preparatory for the foundation is being completed. It is expected that the whole street will be paved by July 1.

BLACKMER SILENT IN PARIS ABOUT INDICTMENT IN U. S.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, June 16. — Henry M. Blackmer, missing witness in the Teapot Dome case, maintained his customary silence today in the face of the indictment handed down at Denver, Colo., U. S. A., charging him with perjury and evasion of the income tax laws. He is living in a hotel in the Champs Elysee quarter.

His attorneys were unperturbed by dispatches from the United States that said the extradition of their client might be sought. They asserted they would not discuss what action they could take until confronted with the necessity of doing so.

Some other lawyers questioned whether perjury was an extraditable offense.

Smith Now Claims Within 48 of Delegates He Needs

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 16.

ALL the 1100 delegates to the Democratic National Convention, which opens June 26, have been selected except the 24 from Virginia. Two-thirds, or 734 will be required to nominate at Houston.

The total after each candidate's name in the table below represents the delegates instructed, pledged or claimed for him by his political managers, not the number conceded by opponents. In a number of states claims overlap. The line-up:

SMITH—686, of whom 94 are in dispute—Arizona 6; California 26; Colorado 12; Connecticut 14; Delaware 6; Idaho 8; Illinois 58; Iowa 26; Kentucky 26; Louisiana 20; Maine 12; Massachusetts 36; Michigan 30; Minnesota 24; Montana 8; Nevada 6; New Hampshire 8; New Jersey 28; New Mexico 6; New York 90; North Dakota 10; Ohio 1; Oklahoma 20; Oregon 10; Pennsylvania 66; Rhode Island 10; South Dakota 10; Utah 7; Vermont 8; Washington 14; West Virginia 16; Wisconsin 26; Wyoming 6; Alaska 6; District of Columbia 6; Hawaii 6; Philippines 6; Porto Rico 6; Virgin Islands 2.

Smith's claim to the following 94 delegates is disputed by opponents: Colorado 6; Illinois 12; Louisiana 20; Oklahoma 20; Pennsylvania 16; Utah 2; West Virginia 12; Porto Rico 6.

REED—129, of whom 93 are in dispute—Reed's claim to the following 93 is disputed: Illinois 12; Kansas 20; Oklahoma 20; Pennsylvania 26; Utah 3; West Virginia 12.

Pomerene—47. Ohio 47;

George—28. Georgia 28.

Hull—24. Tennessee 24.

Ayres—20. Also claimed by Reed's managers: Kansas 20.

Hitchcock—16. Nebraska 16.

Ritchie—16. Maryland 16.

Indiana's 30 delegates were instructed for Evans Woollen, Indianapolis banker.

No candidate at present is claiming the following 156 delegates: Alabama 24; Arkansas 18; Florida 12; Mississippi 20; North Carolina 24; Texas 40; South Carolina 18.

HOOVER PLANS AWAIT ARRIVAL OF PARTY LEADERS

bility of his resignation from his cabinet post and the time of his withdrawal; his summer plans and whether he should go immediately to his California home; the selection of a National Committee chairman and the form of his campaign organization.

He already has received a dozen invitations from individuals and communities, chiefly from the middle western states of Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota and Michigan, offering him quarters and facilities for the establishment of a summer base. All these invitations, however, were held over.

It was said to be customary for Republican presidential nominees to receive their formal notification from a convention committee at their own home. In Hoover's case a compliance with this custom would, place him in Palo Alto, California, by August, and the expectation was strongly held that he would be out of office and out of Washington well before that time.

The nominee will meet with members of the National Committee next Thursday to discuss the selection of a national chairman.

Hundreds of Friends Call to Congratulate Curtis.

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., June 16.—Senator Curtis, Republican vice presidential nominee, spent today at his office here greeting hundreds of friends, who came to offer congratulations and pledge their support in the forthcoming campaign.

Curtis said he hoped to remain here until Monday evening, but might find it necessary to leave for Washington before then. "We've received more telegrams than we can open, to say nothing about reading them," he said.

Dirigible in Hangar After Cruise.

POLITICAL SCENE WILL SHIFT NEXT WEEK TO HOUSTON

Only 24 Delegates, Virginia's, Remain to Be Selected for Democratic National Convention.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The political spotlight, centered on Kansas City and the Republicans during the past week, is now turned on Houston. There the Democrats, hoping to avert a repetition of the strife that split their ranks four years ago at Madison Square Garden, are beginning to select presidential and vice presidential nominees and draft a party platform.

The Republican line-up for the campaign has been determined. Hoover and Curtis are the party standard bearers. The platform on which they stand calls, among other things, for vigorous enforcement of the prohibition amendment, and goes along with the administration on farm relief.

At Houston, the big question to be settled is whether Gov. Smith of New York is to be the presidential nominee. That issue overshadows all others, including the prohibition question, which is intertwined with his candidacy, and farm relief.

In 1924 Smith and McAdoo fought each other to a standstill in the New York convention, both losing out in the end. This year McAdoo is not a candidate. Smith, however, is, and he has gathered up such an impressive total of delegates that he stands out, far ahead, but nevertheless the target of a determined, though somewhat scattered opposition.

Only 24 Delegates to be Chosen.

Only the delegates from one State—the 24 from Virginia where a convention will be held next week—remain to be chosen. With 733 1-3 of the 1100 convention votes needed to nominate, the Smith men claim that their candidate is within 49 1-3 of that total, and may have it before balloting begins.

Of the 684 delegates placed in the Smith column by his supporters, 516 are classified by them as definitely instructed on pledges for him. The remainder, as they see it, are uninstructed delegates who are certain to support the New York Governor at the outset. In addition they have their eyes on 38 additional delegate votes which they predict will swing to Smith quickly. This would give him within a dozen votes of the number he would need to go over.

The computations of the Smith followers are challenged, however, by his political foes, who concede that he probably has more than a majority in the bag, but who contend with figures that he is far from the necessary two-thirds.

One of the objectives of the Smith opposition has been to build up a block of votes that not only would comprise more than one-third of those in the convention, thus giving it a veto power so far as the nomination is concerned, but also would hold together in the face of raids by the Smith forces. The friends of the New York Governor predict that the opposition lines will be shattered almost before the convention settles down to balloting.

For the most part the opponents of Smith are looking to the South and to states having "favorite son" candidates for their holdout strength.

His boosters, on the other hand, are doing their utmost to bring about a situation where he will win quickly and without factional strife. To win in November, they contend, the nominee must be named without an outbreak of bitterness.

They are counting strongly on second-choice support from such "favorite son" states as Ohio, Kansas and Nebraska, and predict that before the windup many of Indiana's delegates will be on their side.

Smith Gets Kentucky's 24.

This week, Smith picked up Kentucky's 26 votes at a stormy State convention. His friends were jubilant, pointing out that the coalition had been counting on the delegates from the Blue Grass State in their "Stop Smith" campaign, and declaring that the action of a border state would have a tremendous psychological effect on delegates to the Houston convention.

Smith, however, did not fare so well in North Carolina. An uninstructed delegation was named in that State, with indications that most of the delegation would support Cordell Hull, Tennessee's "favorite son." From the Smith camp, however, came claims that a part of the delegation was friendly to the Governor.

Smith will not be at the Houston convention, but Reed of Missouri and other presidential aspirants in the field against him will be on hand to direct their forces.

Whether there will be harmony, or a fresh outbreak of hostilities, hinges on platform developments as well as candidacies. There will be showdowns on both the prohibition and farm relief questions.

Farmers to Go to Houston.

Corn belt farm leaders who failed to get anywhere with their McNary-Haugen program at the Republican convention are moving on to Houston. They will appeal to the Democrat sfor recognition, and one of their arguments will be that votes can be gained in the farming regions if a plank, looked on with favor by the McNary-Haugenites, is put on the platform.

As for prohibition, there is certain to be a clash between modificationists and those who favor rigid enforcement of the dry laws. In between there will be a group that will advise against going to either extreme.

Tom Taggart to Stay Away From Houston on Doctor's Advice.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 16.—Thomas Taggart, Indiana delegate-at-large to the Democratic national convention, will not be at Houston this month to advance the cause of his candidate for the presidential nomination, Evans Woollen, Indianapolis banker. On the advice of his physician, Taggart said today he had abandoned plans for participation in the party council, and will remain at his Indianapolis home.

Taggart is 71 years old. With Mrs. Taggart, he will celebrate tomorrow their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Ex-Senator Gore to Be Presented for Presidency at Houston.

By the Associated Press.

TULSA, Ok., June 16.—Thomas P. Gore, former Senator from Oklahoma, who is blind, will be presented to the National Democratic convention at Houston as a candidate for the presidency, it was announced here today by J. Harve Maxey, delegate from the first Oklahoma district. Gore, is a delegate-at-large from Oklahoma.

"We have received considerable encouragement from other states," Maxey said. "Senator Gore was for many years chairman of the Senate committee on agriculture and he knows as much about the farmer and his problem as any man in the country."

Kaw Indians Rejoice Over Honor to Kinsman Curtis

"Charlie Always Was a Good Boy," Says Sage of Tribe of Vice Presidential Nominee.

By the Associated Press.

KAW, Ok., June 16.—The Kaw Indians today celebrated the nomination of a blood member of their tribe, Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas, as the Republican candidate for the vice-presidency.

The Kaws are an undemonstrative people, but their rejoicing was as sincere as the more exuberant demonstration of their tribesman's white friends in the Indians' old Kansas home on the banks of the Kaw. The tribe's home now is a reservation in a sequestered bend of the Arkansas river.

"Charlie always was a good boy," said old Ben Fronkier, 86 years old, the Kaw sage, who knew the nominee as a boy on the Kansas reservation.

"The Kaw Indians surely are proud that Charlie was nominated," said Tiayah, the woman tribal chief, known among white folk as Mrs. John Eads. A simple telegram—"The Kaw tribe congratulates you on your success"—was dispatched to the nominee by Mrs. Eads.

Mrs. Jim Auld, a cousin of the Senator, expressed her gratification that her kinsman had been honored, and said the Indians had been certain that he would be accorded the vice-presidential, if not the presidential, nomination. Mrs. Auld, a quarter-blood Kaw, lives on the reservation with her husband, a white farmer.

The Kaws felt that a formal celebration should mark the honor to their tribe, but today they were awaiting the return of Emmett Thompson, a tribal leader, from Kansas City, before making any plans. Thompson, a wealthy oil man, assisted in the Curtis campaign. He is a patron of the tribe and usually furnishes the beef that forms the basis of a tribal celebration.

The Kaws are a disappearing people. There are a scant 200 on the tribal rolls, and less than 40 of these are full bloods. A few of the older Indians cling to the dress and custom of their ancestors, but the younger tribesmen are modern.

FRENCH PRESS THINKS IT'S HOOVER VS. SMITH

Stress Possibility That Republican Split May Help the Democrats.

By Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

Copyright, 1928, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, June 16.—The nomination of Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York as the Democratic candidate for President is considered certain in Europe, it being reasoned that the Democratic party cannot afford to oppose Hoover with a less imposing personality.

Newspapers and political leaders consider that the forthcoming election is the most important since the days of Woodrow Wilson.

Hoover is accorded universally friendly comments due to his war and post-war food organizations and he is generally accredited with being the chief author of American prosperity, but his victory in November is not considered as certain.

In addition to Smith's record as a Governor and his personal popularity, it is believed that the split in the Republican party is more serious than is yet realized in America. This, it is believed, will throw many more votes to the Democratic candidate than heretofore predicted.

Political leaders here, of course, are refusing to make comments which might be interpreted as unfriendly to either political party, but the economic struggle between the industrial East and the agricultural West is declared a more serious issue for the Republican party than the wet and dry split in the Democratic party.

In the two previous elections the Democratic candidate was not considered in Europe to have any chance at all.

Hoover Strongest Choice Since T. R., Says London Paper.

LONDON, June 16.—Herbert Hoover will hold a prominent position in tomorrow morning's London papers, both in the pictoral and news sections. Many special articles will be devoted to details of his private and public life and editorial comment will also be in evidence again.

The Observer says editorially that Hoover "is the strongest figure the Republican party has found to represent it since Theodore Roosevelt, and is the best known outside of America."

The Sunday Times thinks that "it is to the credit of the Republican party that they have stepped outside of the narrow political grooves and chosen as their champion a man of such obvious fitness for the post." The Times adds: "There is every likelihood that his Democratic antagonist will equally be a man whose nomination involves a break with tradition. Gov. Smith has most of the popular qualities that Mr. Hoover lacks."

President Delays First Visit to Executive Office on Learning It Is Raining in Superior, Wis.

WIRES GREETINGS TO SENATOR CURTIS

Mrs. Coolidge Improved in Health but on Advice of Doctor May Not Attend Church Today.

By the Associated Press.

SUPERIOR, Wis., June 16. — Resuming his summer custom of taking a day off from his desk on Saturday's, President Coolidge made the most today of the fine weather and cool breeze at Cedar Island Lodge and with fishing tackle never far from his hand, spent most of the day in the open.

Mrs. Coolidge, likewise invigorated by the fresh air and rested from her trip from Washington, came out on to the lawns surrounding the lodge in the early afternoon after a morning of quiet on the porch.

Delays Visit to Offices.

Heavy and continuous rainfall in Superior, only 33 miles from the Summer White House, undoubtedly influenced the chief executive not to abandon the good weather at the lodge and to put off 'till next week his first call at the executive offices. No pressing matters had come up to require immediate action, but nevertheless the clerical force under the supervision of Edward T. Clark, Mr. Coolidge's personal secretary, was busy clearing up routine matters.

The President wired commendation and greetings to Charles Curtis on his nomination for Vice President.

"The report has just reached me of your nomination for Vice President," President Coolidge's message read. "Your long public service which has made you the Republican leader of the Senate has given you a knowledge of affairs and of parliamentary law, such as is possessed by few. To the gratitude I have always felt for your help to me I now add my best wishes for your success in your new office."

Walks Through Woods.

Mr. Coolidge's day in the open began with an early and long walk through the virgin wood which surrounds Cedar Island Lodge. He noticed the winding of the stream crossing the estate.

Mr. Coolidge felt the temptation of rod and reel and these were prepared for him. The secrecy which surrounds the chief executive, however, prevented the giving out of any information as to his luck.

Late today President and Mrs. Coolidge had not yet settled which, if either, of the churches in their immediate neighborhood, they would attend tomorrow. On advice of Col. James F. Coupal, White House physician, it appeared likely Mrs. Coolidge might forego religious service tomorrow.

Both the Congregational Church at Brule, six miles from the summer White House and the Presbyterian Church at Lake Nebagamon, four miles from the lodge, were in readiness to receive Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge. Both these churches are small frame buildings.

Protection Against Mosquitos.

Arrangements at the lodge to accommodate the large force of attendants required by the presidential establishment were completed today with the exception of Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge and a few personal servants, the rest of the personnel surrounding the chief executive has been accommodated in tents about half a mile from the residence itself.

Water pipes have been laid and netting has been spread in all tents as a defense against mosquitoes, which, especially in damp weather, are numerous.

Everett Sanders, secretary to the President, arrived in Superior tonight from Kansas City, where he attended the Republican National Convention. He drove immediately to the executive offices and busied himself with the stack of papers which had accumulated since he left his desk in Washington a week ago today.

With him arrived former Senator Irving L. Lenroot of Wisconsin, whose warm indorsement of Cedar Island lodge influenced Mr. Coolidge's selection of the place for his summer residence.

THREE CONFESS BANK HOLDUP AND KILLING IN KANSAS CITY

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 16.—Confessions were obtained from three of four men arrested in connection with the holdup of the Home Trust Co. here Wednesday and the killing of James H. Smith, traffic patrolman, Chief of Police Toyne said today.

Charges of murder and robbery will be filed against Tony Mangiarcino, Carl Nasello and John Messino, named as actual participants in the holdup, Toyne says, while Maurice Nagle, who admitted renting the automobile used in the robbery, and his wife, will be accused as accessories.

St. Louis Beats Memphis, 9 to 7, in First Game of Inter-City Polo Match

Captain Wallace of Country Club Team Scores Goals—Pony Kicks Point for Visitors—Final Contest Today.

A hard-fought game opened the third annual polo match between the Memphis Hunt and Polo Club and the St. Louis Country Club yesterday on the local club's field. The St. Louis team won, 9 goals to 7.

This is the third season, after a lapse of five years, in which St. Louis has had match polo at home. A moderate crowd paid 50 cents admission and watched from parked automobiles, while club members and guests, including 100 or more from Memphis, looked on from the terrace on the opposite side of the field. Nonmembers are expected to turn out in larger numbers for today's game, which will begin at 3:30 p. m.

It was a Wallace day. While Mrs. Audrey Faust Wallace was winning the women's district golf championship at Normandie Golf Club, her husband, Mahlon B. Wallace Jr., captain of the St. Louis team, was running up a total of six goals. His unusual score was but a jump ahead of that of W. L. McKee, who shot four and almost monopolized the scoring for a period and a half. E. C. Simmons II made the other three goals for St. Louis, while Curtis King and Sam Rembert made one each for Memphis.

An uncommon accident gave the Memphis club its seventh point. In a frantic scramble in the shadow of the St. Louis goal, the ball was kicked through by a St. Louis player's pony.

For the first two chukkers the score was tied. St. Louis was ahead, 4 to 2, at the end of the half, but McGee, who began as No. 4, the defense position, traded places with King as No. 1, and started off the second half with an orgy of goal-shooting. Before the local players stopped him he had tied the score at 5 to 5, but the St. Louis team took the lead again in the fifth period and held it through the final sixth.

Wallace, in the pivotal No. 3 position, led off with a spectacular long shot in the first minute and a half of the game. Twice the blue-jacketed Memphis riders and the red-coated St. Louisans streaked down the field toward the Memphis goal, and twice to the St. Louis goal, but each time the ball went out. Just as the bell tapped for the end of the chukker Rembert tied the score.

Play was hard but bunchy—like football on the 10-yard line—for six minutes. With less than two minutes to go, King carried the ball the length of the field in a breathless race with G. Hayward Niedringhaus, St. Louis No. 4. His score put Memphis in the lead, but Wallace scored again from a difficult angle to end the second period at two up.

The Memphis defense closed down. Several times the ball was turned from dangerous territory, and then St. Louis got away with it. King and Rembert backed it in succession, but Wallace, riding close, put it through. A moment later the tightening defense rode him off at the goal, and Simmons, at No. 2, the chief offense position, made his first score to give St. Louis a two-point lead for the first half.

Right here McKee left to King the guard position, No. 4, and took King's place in the lead position, No. 1. The second half wasn't

4 KILLED, MANY HURT IN OKLAHOMA TORNADO

Town of Blair Demolished, Headrick Wrecked—30-Mile Path of Destruction.

ALTUS, OK., June 16.—The explosive force of a tornado, which swept from Blair to beyond Headrick, north and east of this place, tonight, wrecked both towns, lay waste farm land in a path three miles wide and 30 miles long, through three counties, and caused at least four deaths.

The known dead, all in Blair, are: Elmer Castle, 35 years old, grocer; Mrs. George A. Rogers, milliner; Hugh Smith, 12; and L. C. Cann.

More than a hundred residents of Blair, a town of 800 inhabitants, were injured. Every business building in the town was demolished and most of the residences were blown to pieces. Not a structure in the town escaped damage. Castle and Mrs. Rogers were killed in their places of business.

Casualties, if any, in Headrick, and in the farm houses leveled by the tornado, were not known late Saturday night, so great was the confusion into which the country had been thrown.

All lines of communication were destroyed by the storm and roads, barricaded with debris, were impassable.

The storm, which took a southwesterly direction, struck Headrick, Ok., where it unroofed the hotel, and did considerable damage to residences. Several persons were reported injured at Headrick, but it was thought no lives were lost.

The storm next was reported to have struck seven miles west of Snyder, where others were reported injured, none seriously, and to have hit a construction camp on the north fork of the Red River, where a new bridge is being built. No serious damage was reported from that district.

60 Telegraph Poles Brown Down at Martha, Ok.

WICHITA FALLS, Tex., June 16.—Reports received here said the storm which struck Blair, Ok., also swept through Martha, Ok., west of Blair, blowing down about 60 telegraph poles but injuring none.

Among the injured at Blair were Oran Gates, Emmett Milburn and a Mr. Camm.

Near-Cloudburst Hits Eastern Nebraska; Autos Stalled.

OMAHA, Neb., June 16.—A near-cloudburst struck eastern Nebraska early tonight, preceded by an electrical storm. Nearly two inches of rain fell here in less than 30 minutes. Automobiles were stalled in high water throughout the city.

YOUNG PAIR MISSING SINCE LAST SUNDAY

Police Seek Youth and Girl, Each 17, Last Seen on Meramec River.

Searching for Raymond Swanberg, 17 years old, of 3921 North Twenty-second street, and his sweetheart, Bernice Hunt, 17, of 4251 Blair avenue, who have not returned to their homes for a week, Deputy Sheriff James Slevin of St. Louis County yesterday spent the day in the Meramec River district where they were last seen.

Inasmuch as Swanberg had twice attempted to take his own life in recent weeks, relatives of the two expressed grave fears for their safety. Three weeks ago Swanberg swallowed poison after Miss Hunt's parents had objected to a marriage. Last Sunday, he again swallowed poison after a quarrel.

Swanberg and Miss Hunt went to Drake, on the Meramec, last Saturday to spend the week-end at the clubhouse of Elmer Ehrhardt of 3225 Nebraska avenue. Sunday, according to Ehrhardt, Swanberg quarreled with Miss Hunt and Ehrhardt knocked him down with his fist. Afterward Swanberg swallowed a small quantity of poison, but was revived.

Ehrhardt went home early and learned the next day that Swanberg and Miss Hunt had not returned to the city. Wednesday he drove to the clubhouse and found a note signed with the nicknames of his two friends, "Bish" and "Mick." It stated cryptically that they were "leaving."

The station agent at Drake told Slevin that a young woman answering Miss Hunt's description bought a ticket for St. Louis and boarded the train Tuesday afternoon. Neither of the young persons was known to have any money.

SOLICITORS GET 9100 NAMES FOR DRY LAW REVISION

Rational American Legion Expects to Obtain 100,000 Signatures in St. Louis.

A petition for a modification of the Prohibition Act, to be presented to Congress next fall, is being circulated in St. Louis and the county by employes of the Rational American League, under the supervision of Harry J. Roberts, general organizer for the League.

Roberts, who expects to obtain 100,000 signatures to the petition here within a two-month period, put 31 solicitors to work last Monday and in five days 9100 names were obtained. The canvass is being carried on in office buildings, factories and other places of business where the solicitors have an opportunity of talking to men.

try it yourself

In any group of men, pick out the ones who seem better dressed. You will find that their clothes are made-to-order.

There's a sort of character and distinction about made-to-measure garments. You may not be able to perceive the difference in detail, but it is there. There's a set to the collar and shoulders—a free swing to the drapery—a general air of rightness.

To be sure, there is the task of selecting the goods — the time taken for fitting—the short wait for delivery But isn't the result worth the effort?

Suppose you let us prove it to you with one of these GLEN ADDIE patterns. Thirty of 'em to choose from — and only $60. (Others from $50 to $70.)

ST. LOUIS DEFEATS MEMPHIS TEAM AT POLO; SCORE 9 TO 7

well started before the results were obvious, and appalling to their opponents.

Wallace scored again, perhaps from force of habit, before McKee got to going. When he did get under way, McKee made two goals in rapid succession and scored again in the first minute of the next chukker to tie it at 5—5. Three furious minutes, and Wallace put St. Louis ahead again. Simmons took the ball out of the scramble at the toss and within 30 seconds had made it 7 to 5, but McKee retaliated as the bell ended the period.

With the local club's lead narrowed to one point, Simmons repeated. Before some of the spectators knew the chukker had begun, he took the ball straight down the field and through, unassisted. Wallace carried the ball almost the length of the field for his sixth goal. In the last minute of play, Niedringhaus at No. 4 was trying to back the ball from the St. Louis goal when his pony kicked it through and the game ended, 7 to 9.

The line up:

Memphis.	Position.	St. Louis.
Curtis King and W. L. McKee	No. 1	W. B. Goltra
Sam Rembert	No. 2	E. C. Simmons II
K. B. Chapman (C.)	No. 3	Mahlon B. Wallace Jr. (C.)
McKee and King	No. 4	G. Hayward Niedringhaus

Goals—McKee 4, King 1, Rembert 1, Wallace 6, Simmons 3.

Referees—Fred W. Gardner and Cupples Scudder. Timekeeper—Wallace Simmons.

Analysis of the Play Between Evenly Matched Teams.

It was an excellent game — among the best I have seen on this field. The teams were evenly matched and both were determined to win.

Hard riding and good malleting distinguished Memphis and St. Louis players alike. The mounts of the Memphis club, although they had only two days' rest after the trying railroad trip, appeared quite the equal of the local ponies.

The Memphis players used some pretty teamwork, particularly in the passes by which they returned the ball to safe territory more than once when their goal was in danger. They did not seem to be quite the equal of the St. Louis players in malleting. Our younger men did well and the more experienced players by no means disappointed us.

The score is no index of the parity between the two teams and it may be reversed in the second game. Last year at Memphis the Memphis club was badly defeated in the first game and defeated St. Louis as badly in the second.

A. T. P.

WITH THE WATCHERS ON THE TERRACE

A perfect June day, not too warm, with a bright sun shining from a cloudless sky flashing reflections on the colorful accouterments of the players, found a loyal group of polo devotees on the velvety lawn of the St. Louis Country Club yesterday afternoon for the first match of the season between the Red Birds of the Country Club and the Blues of the Memphis Polo and Hunt Club.

The terrace of the club overlooking the polo field is at its best in June. Pink rambler roses in full bloom climbed the walls of the clubhouse and the red and blue Japanese lanterns swung overhead added to the charm of the setting.

It was sort of a family party, with groups intermingling, and the informality enhanced perhaps by children of the club members who had been for a swim in the beautiful new pool of which the club boasts and who joined their parents later. Tea parties there were in abundance, some of them at small tables under gay umbrellas which border the pool, with groups drifting back and forth between chukkers, and others on the terrace.

Applause for Mrs. Wallace.

Added to the excitement of the game was the return of Mrs. Mahlon B. Wallace Jr., from Normandie Golf Club, where she successfully defended her title as women's district golf champion, her escorts driving her car down the side of the polo field to the applause of the spectators.

Conspicuous in the group at the terrace edge was the large Memphis contingent which accompanied its team to St. Louis and enthusiastically cheered the hard-fighting but losing Blues. In that group were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Curtis Adams, the latter formerly Miss Matilda Overton of St. Louis and who are visiting Mrs. Adams' mother, Mrs. Charles Pope O'Fallon; Mr. and Mrs. Percy Parker, the latter a sister of Mrs. Andrew W. Johnson; Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Lee Wilson, who are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson; Mrs. Samuel Rembert and Mrs. Curtis King, whose husbands played on the Memphis team; Mr. and Mrs. Van Vleet, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Fly, and Sidney Farnsworth, a substitute player for Memphis.

Out-of-Town Guests.

Mr. and Mrs. William Francis Niedringhaus of New York, formerly of St. Louis, were among the out-of-town guests, as were Mr. and Mrs. Hugh J. Caperton of Louisville, brother-in-law and sister of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Langenberg, and who are visiting them.

Mrs. Henry Clarkson Scott and Miss Mary Lionberger were interested spectators among the Country Club members, as were Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Pryor, who sat near by, when Mr. Pryor was not busy attending to his multitudinous duties as president of the club and official announcer.

Another party, that had tea on the lawn, included Mr. and Mrs. Allan Preston Gamble, Miss Marceline Reyburn, Donald Parker, Dudley French and Hilgard Tittman. Miss Reyburn who has just returned from abroad, looked well in a two-piece poudre blue knitted suit, the sweater embroidered in self tones, with which she wore a drooping hat of white straw banded in blue velvet.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Orthwein were with Mrs. Edward Gillette Hetchkiss to watch the game, Mrs. Orthwein in an attractive green and white sports costume with a green small checkered silk skirt, and scarf to match and a green floppy hat. Miss Elizabeth Smith was with Lannan Benoist. Miss Anne Farrar Semple, the reigning Veiled Prophet Queen, was on the side lines with Miss Florence Jones. Both are debutantes of the season. Miss Semple wore a white knitted sweater suit banded in blue, and her curly blonde hair was tied back from her face with black velvet. Miss Jones wore a yellow silk sports dress with a small bangkok hat. Mrs. John T. Davis Jr., watched the game from the terrace edge, as did Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Wright, who were with a party of friends.

Some Striking Costumes.

Mrs. Dwight Dana was stunning in a gray crepe suit with a bright purple suit and a medium sized purple match adorned with a spray of flowers to match. Another becoming costume was worn by Mrs. Carl Langenberg, who was in thin yellow linen. A broad brimmed black hat with a yellow crown and graceful straw bow to correspond, completed her costume. Mrs. Florence Lambert Niedringhaus was with Sharp Ezzell, the former in a white sweater bordered in red, green and black, a pongee skirt and broad brimmed red hat. Miss Agnes Benoist was among the guests as was Miss Roccena Baldwin, Miss Mary Brooks Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. Henry McRee, Mr. and Mrs. Gates Williams, the latter having recovered from a recent fall from her horse and looking well in a red and white print with touches of black and a red hat.

Miss Martha and Miss Virginia Sluder were there, both in filmy chiffons and big hats; Mr. and Mrs. Oliver J. Anderson with the Harold Kauffmans stayed for the dinner. A number of the younger crowd left early to attend the wedding of Miss Carol McDonald at 5 o'clock, although Miss Martha Love and Miss Alita Davis were at the club late.

Others seen about the terrace were Mr. and Mrs. Ford Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Koehler, the latter in a smart blue two-piece sports suit and hat; Joseph L. Werner, Clarence King, Miss Janet Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Lewis, Field Goltra, Mr. and Mrs. Wooster Lambert, Mr. and Mrs. Pelham Turner, the latter in pink crepe with a broad brimmed leghorn and Mr. and Mrs. Asa Brookings Wallace.

TRAIN SCHEDULE CUT 8 HOURS

A saving of 8 hours and 20 minutes in the schedule of the Union Pacific and Wabash railroad trains between Los Angeles and St. Louis was announced yesterday by the traffic bureau of the Chamber of Commerce. Rerouting of the trains through Omaha and Cheyenne instead of Kansas City and Denver eliminated almost five hours formerly consumed in layovers.

The new schedule brings a passenger into St. Louis at 8 a. m. on the third day out of Los Angeles instead of at 4:20 p. m., as formerly. The starting time remains at 11 a. m. The Wabash brings the train in from Omaha for the Union Pacific which operates west of that city.

NORRIS ASSAILS G.O.P. CONVENTION AS BOSS-RIDDEN

If Republicans Win Senate Should Return Teapot Dome to Sinclair and Doheny, He Says.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Dissatisfied with the Republican platform and with the party nominee, Senator Norris (Rep.), Nebraska, in a statement today declared the action of the Republican convention at Kansas City "will be a sad disappointment to every progressive citizen in the United States."

A "direct slap" had been given the farmers at Kansas City, he said, at the same time deploring silence on the activities of the power interests, disregard of the disclosures made by the investigation of the naval oil leases, and silence as to Boulder Dam, Muscle Shoals and the "lame duck" constitutional amendment.

Beginning with Senator Fess of Ohio, Senator Norris assailed also Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney-General; Senator Smoot of Utah, chairman of the Platform Committee; William E. Vare, E. Bascom Slemp and Irvine L. Lenroot, former Senator from Wisconsin.

"Senator Fess, the keynoter of the convention, defended Daugherty on the floor of the Senate," he said, and opposed the investigation.

"Mabel Walker Willebrandt, chairman of the important committee on credentials—the committee that was careful to seat all the Hoover delegates from the solid South—while she was Assistant Attorney-General of the United States, went to New York to testify in behalf of Daugherty.

"Senator Smoot, who was chairman of the platform committee, and was one of Hoover's lieutenants, was disclosed in the oil investigation to have gone secretly to Fall's apartments to advise with him about his defense.

"When the psychological moment came, it was no other person than Boss Vare, the leader of the Philadelphia political machine—the man who, on account of the disgraceful proceedings in the Pennsylvania primary, was excluded from the United States Senate—It was this same Vare who compelled the Pennsylvania delegation to go solidly for Hoover.

"The rank and file of the great Republican party will be disgusted and humiliated, but the power trust as well as the Hoovers, Daughertys, the Sinclairs, the Dohenys' the Falls, the Smoots, the Hayses, the Lenroots, the Fesses, the Moseses and the machine politicians everywhere, will be happy and delighted.

"If this program is indorsed at the polls, it will be the duty of the Senate when it reconvenes in December, to apologize to Power Trust Insull and his man from Illinois, for whose election he contributed more than $100,000; to seat Boss Vare, the representative of the Philadelphia political machine; to reinstate Daugherty; to apologize to Sinclair and Doheny and to pass a law returning to them the property which the Supreme Court of the United States said they had fraudulently obtained.

ROOF PLAYGROUND TO OPEN

Daily Classes to Be Given on Top the Y. M. H. A.

The roof garden playground on top the Y. M. H. A. Building, 724 Union boulevard, will be opened for its second season at 9 a. m. tomorrow.

The playground is open to children between the ages of 9 and 14 years. In addition to general games, there will be daily instruction under competent teachers. For boys there will be drawing, metal and leather craft and the building of boats and airplane. Girls will be instructed in painting and reed and needle work. Swimming instruction will also be given several days a week.

M'NARY WILLING TO SHELVE FEE IN FARM RELIEF BILL

Senator, After Conference With Hoover, Says It Would Aid Agriculture Without Equalization Plan.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Willingness to sidetrack the equalization fee in the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill in order to get farm legislation passed in the next Congress was expressed today by Senator McNary (Rep.), Oregon, one of its authors, after a conference with Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee.

McNary said he believed that the farm relief bill, without the equalization fee which twice has brought about a presidential veto of the legislation, would offer some measure of aid to the American farmer, and would assure early passage during the next session of Congress.

Secretary Hoover had nothing to say regarding the 15-minute conference with the Oregon Senator this morning, but McNary declared that the nominee was "sympathetic and anxious to relieve the distress of our farm population."

Says Relief Is Imperative.

"I still believe in the fairness and soundness of the plan," McNary said with reference to the equalization fee provision. "The necessity, however, of some measure of farm relief is so imperative as to warrant the suggestion that differences of opinion must be composed and a common ground found for successful congressional action.

"In my judgment, the enactment of the bill that passed the last session of the Congress with the omission of the equalization fee would improve the condition of agriculture. At least it would supply the basis upon which helpful legislation could be fashioned."

The Oregon Senator said that he did not contemplate abandonment of the equalization fee, but was willing to have the farm relief plan as passed at the last session tried out without such a provision.

"If this remedy were tried and found to be ineffective or only parly effective," he said, "in my opinion, the Administration and the Congress would unite upon an effort to devise some other remedy that would prove to be sound, sane and successful."

McNary expressed the belief that the Republican party would keep its pledge to the farmers as contained in the agricultural plank in the platform adopted at Kansas City, declaring that it committed the party to the enactment of legislation that would place agriculture on a basis of economic equality with industry.

Provides for Farm Board.

The McNary-Haugen bill, without the equalization fee, would create a Federal farm board, abundantly financed to make loans to co-operative associations and farmer-controlled stabilization corporations for the purpose of preventing violent price fluctuations and of controlling agricultural surpluses through the process of orderly marketing.

"The time is not far distant," McNary said, "when we will consume our entire farm surplus at home, but in the meantime, and at the earliest possible date, we should do all that can be done legislatively to remove agricultural depression which has weakened the whole economic national structure.'

REGISTRATION DAY THURSDAY IN CITY

All New Voters and Those Who Have Moved to Enroll for Primary.

Thursday will be registration day in all the St. Louis precinct polling places, from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m.

All voters who have moved since their last registration, and all new voters, must be enrolled Thursday if they wish to vote in the primary of Aug. 7. Those who still live at the places from which they voted in 1924 or later need not register at this time.

After the primary the registration books will be discarded and a four-day general registration, Sept. 24—27 inclusive, will be held, preparatory to the national and State election. This new general registration is held every four years.

Each supplementary registrasuch as that to be held Thursday, is followed by a revision. In the revision the names of persons who have died and those who have moved are stricken from the lists in their former precincts. It is the usual experience that these subtractions are greater than the additions of new voters and those enrolling from new places of residence. Hence, the total registration tends to decline through the four-year period. It declined from 303,150 in 1924 to 265,644 in the city election of last year.

The League of Women Voters is trying to bring up the registration for the primary, and is conducting a campaign to call the attention of both women and men to Thursday's opportunity for registering. Information will be given by telephone as to the places of registration, the League's number being JEfferson 5578.

New voters, entitled to register for the primary, are those who have attained the age of 21, or who have completed a residence of one year in the State of Missouri and 60 days in the city.

In the primary both parties will name candidates for United States Senator, Governor and other State offices, nine Circuit judgeships, the Circuit ttorneyship and other important local offices, and will elect ward committeemen and committeewomen.

VISITOR WITH A CHECK WRITER HELD AS BAD CHECK PASSER

David George Bell, Who Says He Is Ex-Ball Player, Arrested Here On Chicago Charges.

David George Bell, 48 years old, who said he was a member of the Cleveland baseball team 20 years ago, was arrested today at the Kingsway Hotel for Chicago police under charges of passing worthless checks.

Bell had in his possession a check writer of the Hedman Manufacturing Co. of Chicago, where he said he was formerly employed. Police said he admitted passing worthless checks for about $500 in Chicago.

Police seized the check writer as well as two checks, payable to Bell, which, the police said, appeared to be forgeries. Bell related that he came to St. Louis a few days ago to see a friend who is a member of the New York Yankees team. He was confident that Chicago friends would raise money to pay off his obligations, police said he told them.

GEN. T. H. JACKSON TAKES OVER POST OF COL. POTTER

Assumes Place on Head of River Commission and Member of Flood Control Board.

Brigadier-General Thomas H. Jackson, appointed president of the Mississippi River Commission by President Coolidge, took over the offices yesterday from the veteran Col. Charles L. Potter, who was retired with the rank of Brigadier-General.

The appointment carries with it membership on a three-man board, created by the $325,000,000 Mississippi River flood control act, to iron out differences between the commission's plan and that of the Engineers Corps. Other members of the board, which will meet here this week, are Major-General Edgar Jadwin, chief of engineers and chief advocate of one plan, and Carleton W. Sturtevant of New York, who fills the place designed by Congress for a neutral civilian. Some doubt had been expressed of the balance of opinion on the board, since Gen. Jackson replaced, Col. Potter, chief advocate of the commission's plan.

"Although I have spent a month of studying the two plans, I have formed no opinion I should care to express," said Gen. Jackson. "I do not expect to form an opinion so definite until I have heard and read everything available on the questions involved, and probably its first expression will be my vote.

Sees No Wide Difference.

"So far as I can see, there is no basic difference between the commission's and the engineers' plans. The fundamentals are the same. The difference in detail is one that should not be difficult to iron out by a study, from the engineering standpoint, of every bit of evidence that can be gathered on the local conditions involved."

He saw no great difference between Mississippi flood control and the $50,000,000 project on the Sacramento river, which he started and directed for four years, except that the Mississippi was a "man" and the Sacramento a "boy."

Gen. Jackson is an engineer of distinction. He was awarded the distinguished service medal for his achievements in the division of construction and forestry overseas under Gen. Jadwin. He has been on duty on the Pacific Coast, but came here from three weeks' temporary assignment as division engineer of the gulf division, with headquarters in New Orleans.

Jackson's River Experience.

His river experience includes the Sacramento flood control project from 1907 to 1911, lock and dam construction on Trinity River for more than three years as district engineer at Dallas until 1914, and the following three years, or until the United States entered the World War, as district engineer at Wheeling, W. Va., in charge of Upper Ohio channel improvement. He was born in Canada 54 years ago and appointed to West Point from Michigan.

Col. Potter, who received notice of his retirement and promotion yesterday, plans to clear up his affairs and take a trip to Europe. It is a vacation he has been looking forward to, he remarked, for he has had only 10 days off duty in six years. He was 64 years old last Jan. 24, received notice of his legal retirement then, and was recalled to active duty the next day. His first encounter with the Mississippi occurred in 1899, when he was appointed district engineer at Memphis. He remained there until July, 1903, and returned to the century-long struggle to control the stream—began in 1924—as division engineer of the Western division and secretary of the Mississippi River Commission from 1910 to 1912. From then until 1915 he was in charge of head-water work on the Mississippi as district engineer at St. Paul, returning to St. Louis in 1920 as Western division engineer and president of the commission.

$10,000 FOR CAMP FOR Y.M.H.A.-Y.W.H.A.

David P. Wohl, Shoe Merchant, Makes Gift for Boys' and Girls' Recreation.

A gift of $10,000 to the Young Men's Hebrew Association and the Young Women's Hebrew Association for the purchase of a summer camp for boys and girls of the association, by David P. Wohl, president and owner of the Wohl Shoe Co., was announced today by Harry Lesser, president of the Y. M. H. A.-Y. W. H. A.

Several prospective sites in the vicinity of St. Louis are under consideration by a committee, and it is expected that a location will be announced shortly.

Wohl, a native St. Louisan, has been in the shoe business since he was 14 years old. At 41 he is the head of a company which operates 65 shoe stores in various cities. He lives at 6400 Forsythe boulevard.

Last November, Mark C. Steinberg, investment broker, gave $100,000 for expanding the work of the organizations, and last January the six children of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Stix gave $10,000 for educational purposes as a memorial to their parents.

Hoover Autographs Baseball.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Herbert Hoover is no home run king but nevertheless his name today stands beside those of Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker and other baseball luminaries on a much autographed baseball. As he walked to an elevator at the Commerce Department Hoover was stopped by Thomas J. Casey, a Seattle lawyer, and asked to autograph the baseball. Hoover was greaty amused but acceded to the request.

COLORADO

Come Up . . . to the Beauty and Coolness of High Mountains

No poet, painter or any one can tell you of the vast beauties of the Forty Million Acres of wonderland that is Colorado!

They are indescribable—unbelievable. That is why you can never know of them without seeing them—actually feeling the glory of them—yourself.

But that is simple and, for the good a trip to Colorado does to mind and body, it is surprisingly inexpensive.

Come by rail or motor—come in luxury or come to rough it—you cannot miss the joy of the exhilarating, rarefied air and the soul-stirring grandeur of the high mountains.

Scores of one-day trips from Denver bring you to untold beauty. See hundreds of miles of the great Continental Divide from many points in Denver, tour the 65 miles of Denver Mountain Parks that include the last resting place of "Buffalo Bill" and the famous "Lariat Trail" up Lookout, ride up Mt. Evans on the world's highest auto road, visit Rocky Mountain National Park (Estes)—these and many other trips of one day or less give an idea of Colorado's rare beauty.

Spend a few hours or a few months in Colorado and you'll find every moment filled with benefit to mind and body. There are so many unusual things to do and such rejuvenating force in the air!

Colorado has the highest average altitude of any state in the Union and on the "top of the world" things are different and delightful. Come up.

You've never known the ultimate joy of golf until you have played on a mountain course.

Come up for the Amateur OPEN Golf Tournament in Denver, July 27, 28 and 29.

COUNTY VOTE SATURDAY ON $10,000,000 ISSUE OF BONDS TO BUILD ROADS

Fourth Similar Proposal in 12 Years; Two Were Defeated—How Funds Will Be Used if Project Carries.

A proposal to issue $10,000,000 in bonds for good roads will be voted on in St. Louis County at a special election next Saturday. This will be the sole subject on the ballots at that time, which is one of the reasons why proponents of the bonds anticipate success. The 121 precinct polling places will be open from 6 a. m. to 7 p. m.

This is the fourth country road bond proposal put to vote in the last 12 years. The county voted $3,000,000 in 1916, then litigation delayed use of the funds for several years. In 1925, it defeated a $5,000,000 issue by 1154 votes, along with other items. On Nov. 29 last it defeated a $10,000,000 issue by 974 votes, rejecting at the same time items for county parks and a new courthouse and jail but approving the issuance of $1,000,000 for a public county hospital.

A two-thirds majority is necessary to pass the bond issue. There are 56,077 voters registered in the county, since the supplementary registration last month, but politicians will be surprised if more than 15,000 exercise the franchise next Saturday. In that case, 10,000 favorable votes will be needed. In the last election, the vote on road bonds was 8798 in favor and 5860 against, or a total of 14,658. The Citizens' Road Bond Committee, of which Fred J. Hollocher of Clayton is chairman, thinks the new proposal will win.

No Definite Opposition.

No definite opposition to the road bonds have appeared, and no organization is working against them. Last November there were signs of more general opposition, crystallized under leadership of one man intermittently active in politics, and partly due to objections to other items on the ballot.

There is undoubted need of general road improvement throughout the county, and there is insufficient income from ordinary taxes to meet the demand for paving and repairs. Most of the paved roads in the county are part of the State system, and local roads are softer, old-fashioned types, unable to stand up under constantly increasing motor traffic.

Among the unmerous civic and commercial organizations which have indorsed the bond issue, according to the Citizens' Committee, are: Automobile Club of Missouri, League of County Municipalities, County Chamber of Commerce, County Real Estate Board and the governments of the 15 incorporated suburbs. Precinct organizations of both the Republican and Democratic parties are expected to help get out the vote on Saturday and the Citizens' Committee is intensifying its pubilcity efforts this week.

The vote of the suburban towns defeated the bond issue last time, largely because no special provision was made to give their comparatively large population direct benefit from the money. This time the County Court, or administrative body, which proposed the issue, intends to allot $1,900,000 of the funds to the towns in proportion to their assessed valuation. This allotment will be for construction of main streets connecting with county roads and will be legal

How the Money Will Be Spent.

The projected distribution follows: Brentwood, $80,000; Clayton, $260,000; Ferguson, $80,000; Glendale, $35,000; Kirkwood, $200,00; Maplewood, $240,000; Oakland, $25,000; Richmond Heights, $160,000; Florissant, $25,000; Shrewsbury, $40,000; University City, $400,000; Valley Park, $35,000; Webster Groves, $300,000. The new villages of Ladue and Deer Creek also will receive allotments, but were not included in the table because their assessed vaulation was not known.

The rest of the funds the County Court proposed to distribute among the five townships, outside of the incorporated suburbs, in proportion to assessed valuation, as follows: Central, $3,000,000; St. Ferdinand, $1,400,000; Bonhomme, $1,350,000; Meramec, $1,000,000; Carondelet, $1,350,000. The Court's intention is to have the main arteries in the townships improved first, not only to care for the heaviest traffic, but because these highways have been a severe drain on county revenue for maintenance.

Increase in Taxes.

The Citizens' Committee announced that $2,000,000 of the bonds would be sold annually for five years. It estimated, on the basis of anticipated increases in assessed valuation, that the bond issue would add the following sums to the county sinking fund tax rate: 1928, 7 cents; 1929, 13 cents; 1930, 18 cents; 1931, 22 cents; 1932, 25 cents; 1933, 23 cents; 1934, 22 cents; 1935, 20 cents; 1936, 19 cents; 1937, 17 cents, the decrease continuing thereafter at the rate of about 1 cent a year. The bonds would bear 4 per cent interest and mature in 20 years, making the annual tax rate for these 20 years average about 14 cents.

Under the scale, the owner of a small dwelling assessed for $1000 would have to pay only 70 cents additional taxes this year or—at the possible maximum rate of 25 cents on the $100 in 1932—$2.50. It is pointed out that the county receives 3 per cent interest on daily balances in bank, which would offset the interest charges on bonds to a considerable extent. Proponents call attention also to the estimate by the State Department that it costs 2.5 cents a mile less to travel on concrete than on dirt roads, or 1.6 cents less on gravel than on dirt.

Supervisory Committee.

In a proclamation by the County Court, the following General Supervisory Committee of citizens was appointed "to supervise the expenditure of these funds should they be authorized:" Edward Beecher and Jacob Studt of Bonhomme Township, Henry Rott and August Boenecke of Carondelet Township, Thomas Shields and Edward J. Bayer of Meramec Township, C. W. Reinemer and Mrs. J. K. Stribling of Central Township, Charles Kinar re and Bernard Gerbers of St. Ferdinand Township and the Mayors of the suburbs who, at present, are: Harry J. Burkart, Oakland; John B. Chipman, Webster Groves; Sidney R. Garrett, Florissant; Charles S. Humphreys, Maplewood; Edward J. Houlihan, Richmond Heights; R. L. Jacobsmeyer, Kirkwood; William Kenney, Brentwood; William O. Reeder, Deer Creek; Eugene D. Ruth Jr., University City; William G. Schlueter, Shrewsbury; Edward F. Stockho, Clayton; William H. Tiffin, Ferguson; Orvill K. White, Glendale; William Young, Valley Park, and Fred Zeibig, Ladue.

It is admitted that such a supervisory body has no legal standing, but the County Court has promised to abide by its wishes. A similar committee was appointed to supervise the hospital bond expenditures. The city engineers of the larger suburbs are expected to survey and plan the improvements within their towns and the County Highway Engineer, Roy Jablonsky, elsewhere. They are prepared to start surveys immediately if the bonds are voted, with a view to awarding some contracts this summer, if possible.

The Citizens' Road Bond Committee declares that 80 per cent of the money spent will stay in St. Louis County, for labor and materials. This is possible, inasmuch as great quantities of cement, gravel and sand are produced within the county. This committee is composed of Chairman Hollocher, A. G. Schumacher, secretary; L. John Weber, treasurer, and the 15 Mayors. It has headquarters at 13 North Central avenue, Clayton.

No Definite Plan Prepared.

No plan of exactly what roads will be improved or new roads opened, or of what types of surface will be employed, has been prepared. Lack of such a plan brought criticism in previous campaigns, but proponents of the bonds assert that to announce a plan in advance would be to alienate persons whose roads were not included.

"There is no doubt but what we will gain a comprehensive system of highways," said Hollocher. "Public opinion will demand it and traffic needs require it."

There is no connection between this proposal and the $75,000,000 State road bond issue to be voted on throughout Missouri in November, although the State plans to spend nearly $8,000,000 on new concrete highways and widening of existing State routes in St. Louis County if the issue is passed. In case the county uses local bond funds to build roads later taken over by the State, the State would pay a refund with which additional local mileage could be constructed.

WHEAT LOWER, CORN UNCHANGED TO UP

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, June 16.—Weather contributed largely to the decline in wheat futures at the final session of week. Liverpool did not come as expected. Private estimates dealing with Canadian wheat question also exerted influence. Corn closed unchanged to higher.

In the cash grain market Saturday soft red wheat was steady. There were only a few cars on the market. Better qualities were in light demand for mills, but grades not suitable for mills were wanted only on a new crop mixing basis of prices. New No. 2 for the first half July shipment was bid at 20 cents above July figure. Hard wheat was unchanged to 1 cent off. Offerings were scarce. Inquiry from mills was light. Corn was steady to down 2 cents, mostly ¼ and 1 cent lower. A close clearance was effected as there was good general demand, with mills and industries the principal buyers. Oats were steady to 1 cent up. There was still a considerable larger demand than could be supplied. Most of the day's limited offerings went to mills and local trade.

Report of favorable weather conditions for spring wheat on both sides of the Canadian border was credited with bringing lower prices in the early wheat market. Winnipeg was down more than a cent early. Liverpool closed ⅜d lower on July and 1⅛d on October and December. Corn here was fractionally lower early. Rain in winter wheat belt had some offsetting influence on prices.

July wheat opened at $1.37¼, September wheat $1.39, December wheat $1.42½. July corn $1.03¼.

Local wheat receipts, which were 72,800 bu, compared with 33,600 a week ago, included 28 cars local and 24 through. Corn receipts, which were 156,800 bu, compared with 70,000 a week ago, included 96 cars local and 16 through. Oats receipts, which were 78,000 bu, compared with 44,000 a week ago, included 21 cars local and 18 through. Hay receipts were 12 cars local and 3 through.

The three Northwestern markets combined had 829 cars of wheat, compared with 321 a week ago and 462 a year ago, Minneapolis receiving 99 cars, Duluth 52 and Winnipeg 678.

St. Louis Bran Market.

Bran was easier and middlings were steady and in good demand. Trade was quiet. Offerings were light. Oat feed was quoted, $25.80 for immediate shipment. Sacked white hominy feed nominally, $29 to $30. Sales were reported as follows: 2 cars pure bran (next week's shipment), $32 local, 1 mixed car pure bran, $32.50 and middlings, $43.50 local 1 mixed car (to go out) pure bran, $32.50 middlings, $44.50. 1 car bran to go out, $32.

Alfalfa Meal.

Alfalfa meal new crop No. 2 was quoted in secondhand sacks at $27; No. 1 in new sacks $31 and choice $33.50.

WEATHER IN SPRING WHEAT BELT LOWERS GRAIN PRICE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 16.—Auspicious weather conditions for spring wheat today more than overcame the market effects of undesirable rains in the winter wheat harvest region Southwest. A vigorous rally which the market scored in the last hour failed to last.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, ⅞c to 1⅜c net lower. Corn finished unchanged to ¾c up, oats at ⅛c to ½@⅝c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10c.

Supplementing the bearish influence of welcome downpours in Canada and of better moisture conditions over parts of domestic spring wheat territory were private estimates that the Canadian wheat area this year is 2,000,000 acres larger than last year and that Canadian farmers still have 12,220,000 bushels of wheat to be marketed. It was also estimated that the 1927 Canada wheat yield amounted to 444,000,000 bushels, a total of 33,000,000 bushels in excess of the official figures.

Meanwhile, Liverpool wheat quotations today were lower than due and very little was heard of any new export business at the Gulf of Mexico. Moreover, houses here with connections Southwest were on the selling side of the market. Under such circumstances, bulls found themselves unable to make any permanent headway, despite news of wet fields in Kansas and elsewhere Southwest, together with a forecast which suggested further moisture unwelcome at this time for winter wheat.

Good demand from shippers and industries for immediate supplies of corn and oats had a strengthening effect on the price of future deliveries besides, a further decrease of the corn visible supply total on Monday was looked for.

Provisions derived firmness from the fact that hog receipts appeared likely to show a decrease after next week.

Power companies and industrials purchased heavy electrical equipment in a fair way the last week, with demand somewhat more active in the West than in the Eastern district, Electrical World reports. Business in the electrical industry, taking the country as a whole, is not so active as a short time ago, but the decline in activity is no more than seasonal.

NATIONAL STOCK YARDS, June 16.—Prices in cattle were generally steady this week with the exception of steers and veal calves. Attempts were made early in the week to lower steer values but no success was had by killers, prices closing 15 to 25c above the previous week. Veal calves on the other hand declined $1.75, losses being the rule from day to day during the week. The run of steers was of about normal proportions as regards volume and quality too averaged up to the usual standard of recent weeks. Mature steers scored a top of $14.40, paid for some 1292 pound averages and one short load of yearling steers reached $14.00. A sprinkling of sales was noted as high as $14.25, light weight steers and inferior kinds ranging downward to the $11 column. A bulk of all sales was caught at $12.50 to $14. A string of 18 cars of Texas grass steers sold early in the week in a price range of $11.50 to $12.35, considered 25c lower at the time of sale. Top for straight heifers equalled the previous weeks peak of $14.25, odd lots of mixed steers and heifers at the same price although no car lots were featured above $14. Better kinds sold largely from $13 to $14 with medium to good kinds from $12 to $12.75 largely and plain kinds ranged down to $7. All grades were steady for the week and demand good. Cows encountered a fair buying demand all week and sales were full steady. Top for prime beef cows was reported at $11.75 while a few sales were noted between $11 and $11.50. Some of the better kinds cleared in the $10 column but bulk of all sales was between $8.50 and $9.75. Cutter cows ranged from $6.75 to $7.50 largely and canner cows cleared from $5.50 to $6.50. Bulls declined 25c in the week's early trade but an improved demand effected a recovery later on and closing deals were fully steady with the previous week. Most bolognas sold from $8.25 to $8.75, beef and butcher bulls around $9 to $9.50. Common bulls ranged around $6.50 to $6.75 or $7. No change in price was evident in either stock steers or she stuff here the past week, receipts continuing of modest proportions and selling fairly brisk. Steer sales were confined to light weight varieties and ranged from $7.75 to $11 and $11.60, majority on the $9 and $10 columns. Bulk of heifers sold around $8.50 to $10 and cows from $7.50 to $8. Veals featured declines from day to day and at the close were $1.75 lower. Top ended at $13.25, first cuts in proportion going mostly at $10.75 and second oust and heavies from $8 to $10.50. Throwout veals and common calves quotable at $5.50 to $7.50. Southern canner yearlings sold mostly around $6 to $6.25 on the close.

Hog Receipts Lighter.

Receipts of swine the past week were somewhat lighter than either a week ago or a year ago. Eleven principal markets also received a lighter offering than a week ago. The trend in the swine department the past week was toward higher levels, although in one or two instances setbacks were noted. The shipping demand was good, although somewhat below normal. Packers were fair buyers, fighting the darket one day and then going in for numbers the next day. The best demand centered on weighty hogs and that class encountered little difficulty in finding outlet at top prices. Light hogs on the other hand were in poor demand throughout the period and experienced difficulty in finding an outlet. In some cases salesmen were forced to carry that class over a day or so before finding a satisfactory outlet. Half fat kinds also were in off demand and sales were made at sharp discounts in most cases. A good share of the supply also was composed largely of light hogs and half fat descriptions. Top price for the week was $10.25 with most sales appearing between $9.85 and $10.15 on good 190s up. Light hogs sold in wide spread of $9.50 to $9.90 for 160s to 180s. As compared wtih a week ago good hogs 190 lbs and up are around 25c higher with lighter kinds steady to weak. Slaughter pigs and stocker pigs show about 25c advance over last week's closing prices. However, the stocker pig market showed the most action throughout the week. Good 140 to 150 lb pigs brought $8.75 to $9.50 late with those weighing 120 to 130 lbs at $8 to $8.50. Stocker pigs 110 lbs and down and of good quality sold late at $7.25 to $7.75 mainly. Packing sows are 15c to 20c higher at $8.85 and $8.90 mostly, with top at $9. Stags bulked at $8 to $8.50, showing little or no change from last week's trading.

Buyers hammered values in the sheep and lamb department consistently the past week and, although the market tended to steady itself from the Thursday session on values, were around $2.25 lower on lambs late, $1.50 lower on culls and $1 lower on aged sheep. And considering the close sorts some lambs are more than $2.25 lower. During the nine-day decline of sheep and lambs, lambs lost $4, culls $3 and aged sheep $1.50. Receipts were liberal, running over last week's total, but Friday the run dropped off considerably. Quality gradded fair to good. The early part of the week the markets were all day affairs, with some lambs going over in first hands. However, buyers seemed content when choice lambs got down to $14.75 and values held around steady Thursday and Friday. Lambs sold from $16.75 down during the week, with culls at $10.50 down. Bulk of good quality lambs cashed at $14.75 to $16.50. Most culls, $9 to $10. Numerous lots of plain and medium stuff cleared between $10 and $14. Light half fat lambs were in very poor demand, and the market on that class was a catch-as-catch-can affair usually. Only small droves of yearling wethers put in appearance and cashed at $13.50 down, according to quality. Declines were in accordance with lambs. Fat ewes 150 pounds and down were affected by the decline, but cull kinds held around steady. At the close of the period best light ewes were quotable at $6.50, with weightier kinds at $4.50 to $6 and some extreme heavies down to $4. Choppers and bucks cashed at $2.50 to $3 mainly, with canners $1 to $2. Quotations: Slaughter stock—Good to choice lambs, $14 to $15; medium to good, $12.50 to $14; plain to medium, $11 to $12.50; cull and common, $9 to $11; skips, $6 to $8. Good to choice yearling wethers, $13 to $13.50; medium to good, $11 to $13; plain to medium, $9.50 to $11; cull and common, $8 to $9.50. Good to choice mutton ewes, $6 to $6.50; plain to good, $4 to $6; choppers and bucks, $2.50 to $3.50; canners, $1 to $2.

The week just closed saw no essential change in prices for any class of horse or mule, receipts running light throughout the trading period and demaind fair, although local purchasers furnished the main outlet with little competition from outside interests. Quality for the most part was of a very ordinary sort, medium price horses as well as mules meeting with the best inquiry. Almost any horse or mule with harness marks was readily salable, less inquiry for the green kinds, however. All were afforded a satisfactory outlet.

LONDON DOES NOT LOOK FOR OLD BULL MARKET

Special to Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

By ARTHUR W. KIDDY.

LONDON, June 16.—It would require a clever and courageous individual to determine whether the present rally in the industrial favorites, which were the center of the recent gamble in New York and London, is likely to be continued. Experience usually shows that after a prolonged boom a big slump generally brings comparatively early a rally, due partly to the bears covering and partly because, with the recent high level fresh in the memory the lower level seems tempting.

Rightly or wrongly, however, London is inclined to believe that in the absence of Coolidge's standing for President the political uncertainties are likely to prevent return of the recent bullishness.

Moreover, there are mingled feelings in England in the sense that while many British speculators in gramaphones, hydro-electrics, international holdings, graphophones, etc., would like to see a quick resumption of the Wall street boom with a corresponding rise in London, others, who may have their affections centered on home investment stocks, or indeed any security not specially dependent upon Wall street fluctuations, would prefer that the Wall street boom did not revive, preferring rather that brokers loans should decline and that money rates in the United States become easier, with a beneficial result to trade and high class securities in all centers.

The extent to which England is still linked with markets in Wall street is sufficiently indicated by the fact that although the bank returns of London are extraordinarily strong, with money rates easy and the prospect of more gold coming, the monetary policy of Great Britain is still swayed by the uncertainty of developments in the United States, combined with equal certainty regarding the effect the French stabilization of the franc.

In noting the records of the coin and bullion held in England, namely, more than £170,000,000, it must be remembered, however, that Great Britain no longer, as in pre-war days, holds a secondary reserve in the shape of gold in private banks and the pockets of the people, which before the war was estimated to amount to £120,000,000.

No one seems able to take a decisive view as to whether, when the French franc is stabilized, exchange is likely to move favorably to France, or otherwise; but the consensus of opinion favors a movement favorable to France, which, of course, emphasizes caution.

Moreover, although it may seem ultra cautious, London is also keeping a weather eye on the reparation problem, in view of the approaching period when Germany's annual payment will rise to £125,000,000.

Further evidence of the prolonged severe depression in the iron and steel industry is furnished by the reconstruction of the scheme of Baldwin's Limited, involving the reduction in the nominal share capital by nearly £4,000,000.

Considerable interest is taken here in the formation of the Anglo-French Bank, with F. A. Scarvasy as chairman and Earl Derby as president. The bank will have a powerful board, representing big French and English interests. The capital will be £2,000,000, of which about £1,250,000 is to be issued shortly.

The readiness of the American exchange to move in favor of Great Britain is reviving talk of possible further gold engagements, but the exchange would have to rise considerably to make practicable a repetition of the former Midland Bank operations.

Industrial and Financial Briefs

NEW YORK, June 16.

The Erie Railroad has ordered 500 steel box cars from Pressed Steel Car Co. and 400 steel automobile cars from Standard Steel Car Co.

Net earnings of Associated Gas and Electric for the year ended March 31 rose to $18,010,919 from $13,950,819 the year before, a gain of 29 per cent. Gross earnings and other income were $40,525,236, against $30,649,400. Balance for dividends and depreciation, after preferred dividends of underlying companies and interest, was $8,182,572, against $5,993,759 for the year before.

U. S. Freight Co., through its universal car-loading and distributing division, handled 261,356,814 pounds of freight in May, largest for any month, an increase of 84,572,737 pounds over May, 1927.

R. G. Dun & Co. reports 441 commercial failures this week, against 488 the week before and 402 a year ago.

Production of oil in Venezuela in May was 8,784,123 barrels, a daliy average of 283,360 barrels, and a new high record, against 7,594,476 barrels in April, and 4,630,275 in May, 1927.

Export sales of Dodge Bros. cars and Graham Bros. trucks in May from plants in the United States and Canada were 3614 units, a gain of 29.3 per cent over a year ago, and 17.5 per cent more than April.

Crude oil was in a stronger position last week because of advances in posted prices for Eastern grades. The average price at the wells in 10 principal producing fields was $1.487 a barrel; against $1.452 a barrel the week before and $1.422 a year ago, Oil, Paint & Drug Reporter says. Gasoline at refineries continued strong, averaging 9.31 cents a gallon, against 8.156 cents a year ago.

The Sugar Institute, Inc., reports total meltings by 15 refiners in the United States this year to June 9 amounted to 4,312,300,137 pounds against 5,036,595,700 pounds a year ago.

Hale Holden, president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, said net income for the first four months of 1928 was $8,364,146 after fixed charges, an increase of $2,145,395, or 34.5 per cent over the 1927 period.

COTTON FUTURES LOWER IN TRADE AT WEEK END

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 16.—The cotton market was lower today under week-end realizing or liquidating. There was a bearish view of the boll weevil report issued after the close Friday and favorable early weather reports. After selling offto 20.52c in early trading, October rallied nine or 10 points from the lowest, but later declined to 20.50c and closed at 20.52c. The general market closed steady, at net declines of 15 to 17 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 4 points to an advance of 1 point. Some covering of local buying on relatively steady Liverpool cables was quickly supplied and prices eased under liquidation, coupled with Wall street and commission house selling, promoted by a favorable view of the early weather news and the boll weevil report indicating that a slightly accelerated emergence of boll weevil during the last half of May had not been sufficient to change materially the situation reported on May 15.

This report, doubtless, disappointed some of the local traders, but it appeared to be offset to some extent by recent private advices of increased infestation in some sections, and the market steadied up on covering promoted by the official forecast for showery weather and rebuying by recent sellers. Demand, however, was not active or aggressive enough to make much of an impression on prices and rallies of 8 or 9 points from the lowest were within 2 or 3 points of the lowest on the active positions.

Private cable attributed the relative steadiness of Liverpool to local and London buying accompanied by reports of an improved demand for cotton cloths from the British home trade and the continent. Cable also said the Chinese cloth auctions were slightly better.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 73,788 bales, against 100,340 last year and 45,207 two years ago.

New York Cottonseed Oil.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Cotton seed oil closed easy; prime summer yellow 10.00c; prime crude 8.50@8.75c. Close: Jan., 10.50c; June, 10.10c; July, 10.12c; Aug., 10.33c; Sept., 10.45c; Oct. 10.52 bid; Nov., 10.52; Dec., 10.54. Sales 5500.

The cottonseed oil market was dull and slightly easier due to week-end liquidation and scattered selling influenced by the reaction in cotton, bearish interpretation of the boll weevil report and irregularity of grains. Refiners absorbed July offerings on the decline. Final prices were generally one point higher to six points lower. Sales 5500 barrels.

WEEK'S METAL MARKET REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 16.—While there was continued curtailment of production by steel mills and smaller orders were booked in the way of new business, with the development a seasonal situation, the steel market during the week generally was not without special features. Automobile manufacturers, farm implement and tractor makers continued to draw well on the mills against contracts for rolled steel and other qualities. U. S. Steel unfilled orders for May decreased, and ingot production was at smallest rate since January. Pig iron was unchanged.

European buying of copper was somewhat less active, although in fair volume toward the close of the week. Thus far this month foreign takings are estimated at about 40,000 tons, while domestic bookings totaled about 20,000 to 25,000 tons. Home consumers are confining purchases to small filling-in lots. Producers have sold most of their July output and are holding steady at 14¾ cents for electrolytic delivered Connecticut Valley. May statistics showed smallest refined stocks since July, 1926.

Tin price fluctuations were very irregular. New low levels for the year were established and this was followed by a rally with a good demand from dealers.

Lead was fairly active, with the leading feature the consuming demand for nearby shipment.

Zinc remained firm and producers reported an increase in demand for prompt and nearby shipment. There was a small increase in stocks during May. Ore continued strong.

Antimony was slightly easier, while consuming inquiry improved a little for nearby delivery. Future shipment offers from the Far East were reported at moderate declines.

CUT IN LOANS DISAPPOINTS WALL STREET

Week's Liquidation of Stocks Reduces Brokers' Accommodations Only $135,000,000 Below Record Peak Reached June 6—Twice Sum Would Not Have Surprised Financial District.

Total stock sales, 1,549,300 shares.

NEW YORK, June 16.—The Evening Post in copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"Evidence of weariness in the 'Coolidge' bull market grew as the week wore on. Not even the sweeping victory for Hoover on the first ballot at Kansas City or the overwhelming defeat of the farm bloc, indicating greater Republican harmony than was anticipated before the convention, brought anything more than a feeble rally. These constructive forces were not strong enough to offset the market's disappointment over the relatively small reduction in brokers' loans. The week's liquidation of stocks reduced the loan to total only $135,000,000 below the record peak reached on June 6. Eight successive 1926 weeks carried the loan total down nearly $700,000,000 and, considering the extensive selling wave covered in this week's loan statement, the financial district would not have been surprised at a reduction twice that reported. The consensus is that loans must be reduced substantially more before the goal set by the reserve system is attained.

Tightening Process Continues.

"Except for a slight and temporary upturn in the Federal Reserve systems' holdings of Government securities all items in the weekly statement reveal a continuation in the tightening process. A depletion of reserves at the regional institutions has compelled the member banks to restore their position through an exercise of the discount privilege. Member borrowings this week rose another $61,000,000 to the highest total in six years, above a billion dollars. Roughly discounts now total three times those of a year ago, and the enormous increase has come almost entirely in 1928. Mounting discounts over any extended period invariably tighten the money structure through the removal of additional funds from the market. So long as members themselves are obliged more and more to depend on the regional banks thus to restore their reserve positions the present firming tendency in call money is likely to hold. If the outward gold tide continues and if through sales of Government securities the reserve banks persist in tightening rates either the member banks must swell their discounts or liquidate loans.

Effect on Bond Market.

"Undoubtedly the aim of the reserve system has been to obtain a liquidation of loans through a contraction in stock speculation but in hitting at speculation it has indirectly unsettled the bond market. In the last day or two the drifting tendency has not been so pronounced but for a month the supply of bonds has exceeded the demand. A part of the decline in high grade obligations plainly resulted from sales by banks anxious to bolster their positions in conformity with reserve policy. In such cases the banks usually select high-grade issues selling at a low yield basis, figuring that they can temporarily place the funds out on call at an advantageous rate. While the volume of undigested bonds still is sizeable and the flow of bank offerings continues the adoption of a conservative attitude by the investment houses promises to correct the temporary glut. At least the situation so far as the bond market goes is viewed by compeent authorities as one likely to improve as necessary adjustments are made in the stock market.

Little Change in Fundamentals.

"Fundamental conditions in business reveal little change but the strength of the position lies in this increasing assurance of stability. Standard Statistics Company's production index for May just figured held surprisingly close to the seasonal peak for the year of March. Both in 1927 and 1926 the decline in production was fairly sharp. Sustained activity in such key branches as the building and motor industries indicate that the distinguishing feature of 1928 business might very well turn out to be its evenness of flow throughout the year. If that is the case corporation profits in subsequent quarters should run appreciably above those of corresponding 1926 and 1927 periods. Much of the earlier rise in agricultural commodities has been lost but in the last two weeks the weather has turned distinctly favorable. The spring wheat sections which needed rain have gotten it and the corn and winter wheat sections have had the warm growing conditions they so badly needed. Progress in the cotton belt has not been so satisfactory but a warm spell would greatly benefit that crop.

PREPONDERANCE OF NET DECLINES IN STOCK CLOSE

Extensive Readjustment of Speculative Accounts Gives Brief Session of Market an Irregular Appearance.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Extensive readjustment of speculative accounts gave today's brief session of the stock market an irregular appearance. Final quotations again disclosed a preponderance of net declines, most of which were held to a point or less. Trading was fairly heavy for a summer half holiday session, the day's sales aggregating 1,549,300 shares.

Except for the publication of a number of earnings reports, most of which made favorable comparisons with last year, there was nothing in the overnight news to influence the price movement. Fears of tighter call money rates next week when the Federal income tax checks return to the banks for payment tendered to bring about some further liquidation.

Selling Pressure Early.

Selling pressure was resumed from the start of today's market, extreme declines in many of the active issues running from 2 to 6 points. Trading turned dull on the decline and a brisk rally set in during the last hour, cutting down many of the early losses and sending a few issues above yesterday's final quotations. The recovery was stimulated by the covering operations of "bear" traders.

Radio, Wright Aeronautical and DuPont each broke about 6 points to new lows on the current reaction. Radio made up all but a point of its loss and Wright and Dupont covered about half. International Harvester dropped 6½ points, and rallied one. American Bank Note, Eastman Kodak, Mackay Companies, Otis Elevator and International Silver showed net declines of 3 to 6 points, the last named touching a new 1928 low at 136 after having sold as high as 196 earlier in the year.

Gen. Motors Has Net Gain.

General Motors, U. S. Steel and several other pivotal industrials received strong support above their recent low points. General Motors showed a net gain of 1¼ at 178⅝ after having sold down to 175¼, as contrasted with the year's high of 210. U. S. Steel closed fractionally lower at 138⅝. Oils failed to make much response to talk heard of probably early increases in crude oil prices.

Rails offered fairly good resistance to selling pressure with a 3-point gain in Boston & Maine as one of the few features. Wall Street generally looks for the railroads to make a better traffic showing in the last half of the year than they did in the corresponding period last year when the trend of freight car loadings was downward.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged. Foreign exchange trading was quiet with quotations holding fairly steady. Sterling Cables ruled around $4.88 3-16.

Foreign Exchange

NEW YORK, June 16.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly foreign exchange market review, says:

"For a time in the early part of the week the foreign exchange market was unsettled by the sharp break in security values. Sterling then sold at $4.88⅛, for cables showing a loss of about 3-16 and dragged for several days around that level. Yesterday strength developed again, bringing the rate back to $4.88¼. Continental rates moved in close unison with sterling, receding at first and then becoming firm. The market was not influenced by the engagement of $28,000,000 for shipment to France or by the prospective outflow of metal including a large part of the 'earmarked gold.' The prevailing high rates for money in this market were likewise without effect on European exchanges.

"Spanish exchange was exceptionally heavy all through the week, pesetas yesterday dropping to 16.58, a new low for the year. The action of this exchange is governed to a great extent by purely speculative operations. Italian in a period of weakness made a new low for the year at 5.25⅝ for lire cables, but moved up again to above 5.26.

"Far Eastern exchanges were irregular, Chinese holding firm for a time but in the past few days Shanghai was under special pressure, yielding over a cent to the tael. Calcutta was in supply and had a moderate decline.

"Some of the South American units developed weakness, a special feature being a decline of 7 points in exchange on Argentina to 42.63, a new low for the year.

"Canadian exchange continued heavy, holding close to ⅛ per cent discount, only moderate amounts of gold have been transferred from Montreal to New York as a result of this exchange position.

"The suggestion is made by some of those concerned in exchange trading that the fact that no interest is allowed on deposit balances in Canada caused general transfer of funds to this city some time ago, leaving only a small surplus in Canadian institutions available for exchange purposes.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Foreign exchange quotations were as follows:

ENGLAND—Sterling, demand, $4.87 13-16; cables, $4.88 3-16; 60-day bills on banks, $4.84⅝.

PREPONDERANCE OF NET DECLINES IN STOCK CLOSE

Extensive Readjustment of Speculative Accounts Gives Brief Session of Market an Irregular Appearance.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Extensive readjustment of speculative accounts gave today's brief session of the stock market an irregular appearance. Final quotations again disclosed a preponderance of net declines, most of which were held to a point or less. Trading was fairly heavy for a summer half holiday session, the day's sales aggregating 1,549,300 shares.

Except for the publication of a number of earnings reports, most of which made favorable comparisons with last year, there was nothing in the overnight news to influence the price movement. Fears of tighter call money rates next week when the Federal income tax checks return to the banks for payment tendered to bring about some further liquidation.

Selling Pressure Early.

Selling pressure was resumed from the start of today's market, extreme declines in many of the active issues running from 2 to 6 points. Trading turned dull on the decline and a brisk rally set in during the last hour, cutting down many of the early losses and sending a few issues above yesterday's final quotations. The recovery was stimulated by the covering operations of "bear" traders.

Radio, Wright Aeronautical and DuPont each broke about 6 points to new lows on the current reaction. Radio made up all but a point of its loss and Wright and Dupont covered about half. International Harvester dropped 6¼ points, and rallied one. American Bank Note, Eastman Kodak, Mackay Companies, Otis Elevator and International Silver showed net declines of 3 to 6 points, the last named touching a new 1928 low at 136 after having sold as high as 196 earlier in the year.

Gen. Motors Has Net Gain.

General Motors, U. S. Steel and several other pivotal industrials received strong support above their recent low points. General Motors showed a net gain of 1⅛ at 178¾ after having sold down to 175½, as contrasted with the year's high of 210. U. S. Steel closed fractionally lower at 138⅜. Oils failed to make much response to talk heard of probably early increase in crude oil prices.

Rails offered fairly good resistance to selling pressure with a 3-point gain in ~ston & Maine as one of the few features. Wall Street generally looks for the railroads to make a better traffic showing in the last half of the year than they did in the corresponding period last year when the trend of freight car loadings was downward.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged. Foreign exchange trading was quiet with quotations holding fairly steady. Sterling Cables ruled around $4.88 3-16.

Foreign Exchange

NEW YORK, June 16.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly foreign exchange market review, says:

"For a time in the early part of the week the foreign exchange market was unsettled by the sharp break in security values. Sterling then sold at $4.88⅛, for cables showing a loss of about 3-16 and dragged for several days around that level. Yesterday strength developed again, bringing the rate back to $4.88¼. Continental rates moved in close unison with sterling, receding at first and then becoming firm. The market was not influenced by the engagement of $28,000,000 for shipment to France or by the prospective outflowing metal including a large part of the "carmarked gold." The prevailing high rates for money in this market were likewise without effect on European exchanges.

"Spanish exchange was exceptionally heavy all through the week, pesetas yesterday dropping to 16.58, a new low for the year. The action of this exchange is governed to a great extent by purely speculative operations. Italian in a period of weakness made a new low for the year at 5.25⅝ for lire cables, but moved up again to above 5.26.

"Far Eastern exchanges were irregular. Chinese holding firm for a time but in the past few days Shanghai was under special pressure, yielding over a cent to the tael. Calcutta was in supply and had a moderate decline.

"Some of the South American issues developed weakness, a special feature being a decline of 7 points in exchange in Argentina to 42.63, a new low for the year.

"Canadian exchange continued heavy, holding close to ¼ per cent discount, but only moderate amounts of gold have been transferred from Montreal to New York as a result of this exchange position.

"The suggestion is made by some of those concerned in exchange trading that the fact that no interest is allowed on deposit balances in Canada caused general transfer of funds to this city some time ago, leaving only a small surplus in Canadian institutions available for exchange purposes."

000,000-SHARE AY, SHARP DROP FEATURE WEEK

ndard Industrials and Rails Reach Level 10 to 30 Points Below Year's High—Some High Priced Specialties to 40 to 100 Points From Peak.

the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Specula- for the advance recevied the rpest setback at one time since disastrous decline of March, 6. Prices of standard indusls and rails at one period were to 30 points below the peak es of the year, most of which re established only a few weeks , and some of the high-priced cialties 40 to 100 points below. ere was reaction and secondary ling and irregularity.

Credit Situation Uneasiness.

Considerable uneasiness exists er the credit situation. Normal- the summer period is one of deining rates with an upward tenncy in the fall when the crops being harvested. Owing to the avy exports of gold this year d the tremendous increase in reiscounts, which have weakened e reserve position of the banks, tle hope is held out for any apeciable drop in money unless ere should be a further drastic duction in the volume of brokers' ns.

The decline in stock prices ought about a sympatethic reion in the bond market. It also -retarded the sale of new securs.

The commodity markets also owed a reactionary trend this ek. Wheat prices broke more an 5 cents a bushel on reports of re favorable weather, with corsponding reductions in other ains. Net declines in the cotton rket were held to less than $1 a le after a week of erratic fluctions.

First 5-Million Day.

The reaction in stock prices gave all Street the first 5,000,000 are day in its history.

The reaction was generally reded as a necessary correction of e speculative excesses of recent onths.

The decline in prices was immediately reflected in a drop of early $136,000,000 in brokers' ans reported by the New York Federal Reserve Bank. The tol is still about 1¼ billion dollars ove a year ago, and there is a ther general feeling in the finanal disrtict than a further drastic t will be necessary to meet the jections of Federal Reserve auities to the excessive use of dit on brokers' borrowings.

Wide Range to Bancitaly.

sudden collapse in Bancitaly rporation common stock, which pped about 100 points in two s, preceded the wave of selling the New York Stock Exchange. h-priced specialties, which have en under influence of pools, ke 5 to 25 points in Tuesday's ction. Several of them selling to 100 points below high levels the year established only a few ks ago. A brisk rally Wednes- and Thursday was followed by secondary reaction on Friday, hough trading showed a marked ling off in volume. Today's mart was irregular.

Measured by the Associated ss railroad and industrial avers, the decline in prices is week was the sharpest since disastrous break of March, 26. Prices generally went back levels of last March, losing ns of the last two months, with re than a score of issues sinking new low levels for the year.

The week's trade news was ixed in character. Steel centers ported a further slowing down in tput with forward buying relaely slight. An advance in nnsylvania crude prices was the st since last December. There s been report of record-breaking soline consumption. General Mors reported record-breaking May es and Ford plants set a new h record for employment. Freight traffic showed some improvement.

ENERAL CURB LIST ON LOWER PRICE LEVEL

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 16.—The "secondary action" looked for by market observers e the initial break early in the week arently was realized in the curb mar today. Prices sagged as much as 20 s, and while there was some recovery re the close, the general list closed lower levels, either through the exreaction or customary week-end taking.

Curiously, Bancitaly, which precipitated earlier decline, was one of the er issues today, closing up a point, olive Peet extended its gains, advanc more than 4 points to a new top at General Bronze, Newmont Mines, ville Shoe, Spalding and Deere & Co. made substantial gains, the latter up nearly 10 points.

Declines, however, were general. Pines Front A was pounded down more 16 points, Safeway Stores 11, Royal Powder 10½. A score of other s including Columbia Graphophone, ral Baking, Canadian Marconi, Tubize American Rolling Mills, sustained losses.

Utilities were irregular, with Electric and Share, Cities Service, American and Electric and United Gas Improvegaining 1 to 4 points. American and Traction closed about 5 points

Oils were neglected and weak. There no trading in Gulf, leader in the readvance.

Dry Goods Market Review.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Cotton goods a firmer tendency today with prices ⅛ of a cent higher in the cloth division. Raw silk showed strength. More business is being offered in lines of summer goods that are cleaned up. Burlaps held steady.

BONDS DULL BUT FIRM IN WEEK'S FINAL TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 16.—The bond market was dull but firm today. U. S. Government obligations displayed group strength, but elsewhere in the list considerable irregularity was apparent, although rails improved under the buying activity of "bargain hunters" and probably of institutions.

The atmosphere of hesitancy that has surrounded the market in the past few weeks was evident again today and market observers are uncertain as to the trend of prices in the immediate future. Indications that the money market stringency, which had eased somewhat, will become acute next week, and the traditional tightness of money in late June, are regarded as precluding any sudden upturn. On the other hand, with prices ruling around the lows of the year and some urging the making of good use of this advantage, an increase in prices would occasion little surprise.

Industrials were under pressure today. Coppers sagged fractionally. Liquid Carbonic convertible 6s yielded more than 3 points and other convertibles reflected the heaviness of stocks. A few oils, notably Humble Oil & Refining 5s, made small gains on buying encouraged by the strength of oil stocks.

International Railways of Central America 6½s, which advanced nearly 2 points, led the advance in the rail group. International 5s gained 1⅛ points and St. Paul 5s, Southern Pacific 4½s, Northern Pacific 3s and others made smaller gains. Erie 5s and New Haven 4½s were among the soft spots.

Week-end profit-taking caused recessions in the foreign group. Fiat 7s with warrants led the decline with a loss of more than a point and other Italian industrials and Governments, Caldas 7½s, Australia Commonwealth 5½s and some Latin-American issues eased off.

Treasury 3¾s and Liberty first 4¼s were prominent among the U. S. Government obligations to seek higher levels.

CLEARINGS, MONEY AND SILVER

WAGNER ELECTRIC AND COMMERCE IN WIDE RANGES

Two Stocks Nosedive on St. Louis Stock Exchange Early in Period but Rebound Some Later.

Nose dives by Wagner Electric and Bank of Commerce stocks early in the period, after which there were mild upturns, featured the trading on the St. Louis Stock Exchange the past week. The electric issue, again was active, aggregate sales amounting to more than one-quarter of the total business transacted on the exchange during the six days. The stock went down to 61 from the previous week's close of 80¼ and then was bid up 14 points, closing at 75½ for net loss of 4¾ points. At one time Saturday it sold at 78. The bank issue took a greater dip, going 27 points in one swoop, or from 207 to 180. There was a rebound to 190 before close of week which still left the price some 15 points net lower. There were several 5-share lots sold Saturday, last one at 86½.

New York Leads Way.

The declines here followed in the wake of the downward movement at New York. The two issues had wide advances in recent weeks or months and naturally they suffered most when selling started. The break of 67 points in Bancitaly Corporation common on the New York Curb one day attracted sentimental selling to some other banking shares that had previously recorded big gains. The local bank stock was thought to have been influenced. There may have been liquidation, also by holders who had New York issues in which they had losses. The low of week of 61 on Wagner Electric compared with a high of 120 and low for year of 37. Commerce sales were little over 900 shares.

Some Other Ranges.

The other more active stocks besides Wagner Electric were International Shoe common, Hamilton Brown, Missouri Portland, Ely-Walker and Scullin Steel preference. Hamilton-Brown ranged between 24 and 18 for net loss of 7 points. International Shoe sold ex-dividend late in the week and was fractionally lower. Scullin Steel sold down to 33½ from 38¼ but rebounded to but fractionally below previous week's close. The cement issue ranged between 44 and 40, recovering part of the setback. Ely-Walker ranged between 29¾ and 29.

The Koplar preference stock was listed during the week and sold between 54 and 53.

There were fair turnovers of St. Louis Public Service and Polar Wave issues.

CARDS W

Blades' Ho

RALLY WITH TWO OUT IN NINTH WINS FOR SHERDEL

By J. Roy Stockton.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

BROOKLYN, June 16. — Ray Blades is a bench warmer. Time and accidents have taken from him much of his speed. But, he still has the heart of a winner. Always he has been a great man in the pinch, and this afternoon he left the bench, went to the plate in the ninth inning with the Cardinals three runs behind, two men on base and two out and delivered the only base hit that could tie the score.

Blades took two called strikes and beefed a bit, then he watched a ball, a pitch that barely missed the outside corner of the plate. It takes nerve to let a ball like that go by, with the outcome of the game hanging on your bat and with no more strikes to spare. But Blades has the nerve. He took the outside ball and when Jess Petty, crafty southpaw, pitched the next one in the strike zone. Blades swung his bat and how w ll he did swing. The ball sailed far out to left field, ricochetted from bench to bench in the bleachers and Blades trotted around the bases, following Hafey and Wilson over the plate with the tying run.

There was an anti-climax, in fact more than one, but Blades' punch was the high-light of the game.

Seventh Victory in Row.

Fifteen thousand fans were wedging toward the exits, happily laughing in their unusual pleasure at seeing the Dodgers winning a game. The scoreboard boy decided the game was over and was taking down the out-of-town scores, but Blades' blow stopped everything and after the Cards had taken the lead with a run in the tenth, only to have the Dodgers push over the tying in their half, McKechnie's men again tallied in the eleventh and won, 6 to 5.

It was the Cardinals' seventh straight victory, the fourteenth in 17 games on the road campaign and enabled them to increase their lead over the Cincinnati Reds, who lost two games in Philadelphia.

Wattie Holm delivered the punch that finally scored the winning run in the see-saw contest. Tommy Thevenow, who went to short after Blades had taken Harper's place as pinch hitter for Maranville, and batted so well, opened the eleventh by drawing a pass. Sherdel, trying to sacrifice, forced Thevenow at second, but Taylor Douthit hit a

By J. Roy Stockton.

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

BROOKLYN, June 16. — Ray Blades is a bench warmer. Time and accidents have taken from him much of his speed. But, he still has the heart of a winner. Always he has been a great man in the pinch, and this afternoon he left the bench, went to the plate in the ninth inning with the Cardinals three runs behind, two men on base and two out and delivered the only base hit that could tie the score.

Blades took two called strikes and beefed a bit, then he watched a ball, a pitch that barely missed the outside corner of the plate. It takes nerve to let a ball like that go by, with the outcome of the game hanging on your bat and with no more strikes to spare. But Blades has the nerve. He took the outside ball and when Jess Petty, crafty southpaw, pitched the next one in the strike zone, Blades swung his bat and how well he did swing. The ball sailed far out to left field, ricochetted from bench to bench in the bleachers and Blades trotted around the bases, following Hafey and Wilson over the plate with the tying run.

There was an anti-climax, in fact more than one, but Blades' punch was the high-light of the game.

Seventh Victory in Row.

Fifteen thousand fans were wedging toward the exits, happily laughing in their unusual pleasure at seeing the Dodgers winning a game. The scoreboard boy decided the game was over and was taking down the out-of-town scores, but Blades' blow stopped everything and after the Cards had taken the lead with a run in the tenth, only to have the Dodgers push over the tying in their half, McKechnie's men again tallied in the eleventh and won, 6 to 5.

It was the Cardinals' seventh straight victory, the fourteenth in 17 games on the road campaign and enabled them to increase their lead over the Cincinnati Reds, who lost two games in Philadelphia.

Wattie Holm delivered the punch that finally scored the winning run in the see-saw contest. Tommy Thevenow, who went to short after Blades had taken Harper's place as pinch hitter for Maranville, and batted so well, opened the eleventh by drawing a pass. Sherdel, trying to sacrifice, forced Thevenow at second, but Taylor Douthit hit a

TAKES STATLER HANDICAP IN STRETCH; TINER ON TWO VICTORS

By Dent McSkimming.

One of the most colorful race days Fairmount Park has ever experienced was capped by the record-smashing victory of Helen's Babe in the Statler Handicap yesterday.

The crowd of 10,000 was frantic as Broadside, Bobashela and Helen's Babe turned into the stretch, running almost abreast and then fought it out for the last sixteenth of a mile. Bobashela was beaten only a neck by the winner and Galahad, as usual, added a further thrill by coming with a great rush to finish third.

Helen's Babe broke the track record by running the mile and a sixteenth in 1:44 2-5, as compared with the mark of 1:44 4-5 held by Mix Up.

The winner was not the favorite in the betting. The crowd supported Bobashela at odds of 9 to 5, and a ticket on the winner paid $6.4•

Track and weather conditions were perfect. The crowd was bright and very exhuberant. Favorites were beaten rather consistently, which made the picking of a winner even a greater gamble than usual.

Five Starters.

In the big race, which brought Hal Price Headley, owner of the winner $5510, there were only five starters. The original field of six was reduced when William Keating withdrew Willie K just before the race. His decision was prompted in part by the fact that his jockey, W. Boganowski, was unable to ride as a result of a bad fall in the second race on Friday.

The start was delayed several minutes by the contrary disposition of Helen's Babe who insisted on approaching the barrier wrong end to. Then, as Starter Snyder pressed the electric button which sent the barrier flying up, Broadside popped immediately to the front and at the clubhouse turn had an advantage of a length over Helen's Babe. Bobashela was two lengths back of Helen's Babe as they went down the backstretch and Galahad trailed Aviator. At the half mile ground, Morris started his move and cut Broadside's lead to a neck.

Helen's Babe Finishes Gamely.

On the turn, Morris tried to pass Broadside but Horvath let the son of Man o'War down for an extra effort to resist the challenge. The task of Helen's Babe was a difficult one, for Broadside refused to weaken, and he had the advantage of the rail, forcing Helen's Babe to take the long route. But, at the stretch turn, Broadside finally faltered as Helen's Babe came forward, and at the same moment, the purple jacket of Audley Farm was visible, even with the leaders. Bobashela was also making a belated bid for the top. The three matched straides for about 50 yards and then Helen's Babe started to pull away and she never faltered from the sixteenth pole to the finish. Broadside, spent by his effort to maintain a furious pace, could go no further and finished fourth as Galahad took third money.

Next to the performance of Helen's Babe, the crowd was impressed most, perhaps, by the riding of Apprentice Jockey J. Tiner, who got two mounts under the wire first.

Elias O. Nips High Life.

Tiner rode his first winner on Elias O. in the third race, coming up on the rail to nip High Life, which was carried wide in the stretch by Salutation. Rose, riding High Life, either gave no heed to the threats of Elias O. or his mount was unable to give a fur-

Gibson Breaks World Record, Hahn Lowers American Mark In New York Olympic Tests

By Alan J. Gould.

Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Two record-smashing performances—a new American mark by Lloyd Hahn, the Boston Express, in the 800-meter run and a world's record by Johnny Gibson, Bloomfield, N. J., star, in the 400-meter low hurdles—furnished the principal thrills today in the Eastern Olympic track and field tryouts.

Hahn, running his first outdoor race in big league competition in two years, demonstrated he has lost none of the edge off his remarkable indoor form of last winter by galloping home in front of a crack 800-meter field in 1m 52 1-5s.

The transplanted Nebraska flyer, setting his own pace after working his way quickly out in front, knocked one and three-tenths seconds off the American record of 7:53 5-10 set four years ago by Larry Brown and beat his nearest rival, Sam Martin of the Boston A. A. by six yards. Hahn's time was only three-fifths of a second short of equaling the world's outdoor record held by the German doctor, Otto Peltzer.

Gibson Sets World's Record.

Hahn had barely finished this brilliant performance to the cheers of a crowd of 15,000 in the big ball park when Gibson romped to a world's record of 53 3-5 seconds for the 400-meter low hurdles—outclassing most of his rivals and beating Russell (Whitey) Lloyd, Navy football star by six yards, Gibson clipped one-fifth of a second off the official world's mark on the books to the credit of the tall Swedish star, Sten Petterrsen, who made it in 1925 at Paris. Gibson's performance was sensational enough but not so good as his own feat of last July, when he won the national championship and broke the world's record for the 440-yard hurdles. Slightly longer than the 400-meter route, in 52 3-5 seconds, a full second faster than his race today.

Other Fine Performances.

RUTH BAILEY WINS WOMEN'S TENNIS TITLE

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, June 16. — All but one of the Missouri tennis titles today were whisked away from the show-me State at the Rockhill courts here when players from Iowa and Oklahoma bore away a lion's portion of the laurels in the annual Missouri tournament.

The men's singles crown passed to a collegian from Des Moines, Harris Coggesshall, who took a five-set match from Gordon Lum, one of China's Davis Cup entries, who were defeated her last month by Tilden and Company. Taking the first two sets with little trouble, the Iowan was met with an unexpected rally that almost swept him out of the running when the Oriental star quickly captured the third and fourth, allowing his opponent but two games in each. Coggesshall braced and gained victory in none too hard last set, 6—1, 6—3, 2—6, 2—6, 6—3.

Ruth Bailey, St. Louis girl, had no trouble in retaining at least one title for the tournament's stamping grounds. She defeated Augusta Coleman, Kansas City, in straight sets, 6—2, 6—3.

To the Sooner State went both events in the junior division. Harry Thurman of Oklahoma City vanquished his fellow townsman, Arthus Voss, 0—6, 6—3, 6—4, 6—2 and then winner and loser combined to defeat Close and Flynn of Kansas City, 6—0, 6—3, 3—6, 6—4.

Coggeshall finished a perfect day when, matched with another visitor from Des Moines, Len Struble, he turned back two players from Wichita, Kan., Claude Pierpont and Lester De Witt, 6—0, 6—4, 2—6, 6—2.

Earlier in the day the Kansans advanced to the final round by defeating Muir Rogers and John Hubbell of Kansas City, 2—6, 6—0, 3—6, 6—4, 7—5.

Oran Page Wins 10-Mile Race

Oran Page, of the Flori A. C., won the 10-mile road race between Point Breeze and the Water Tower on Twentieth street and East Grand boulevard, yesterday afternoon, but the real feature was supplied by J. M. Keefe, ag 17, and his 41-year-old father, J. P. Keefe, who finished second and fourth, respectively, with only three minutes difference separating them.

The time for Page, the winner, was 1:11:30, while young Keefe covered the distance in 1:17, and his father in 1:120. Albert Sheedy, who finished third, had a mark of 1:19:15.

Twenty-three entrants started the race, which was held under the auspices of the Flori A. C. Trophies were given to the first 10 who finished. The first 10, their club affiliation, and time, follows:

Orion Page, Flori A. C., 1:33:30.
J. M. Keefe, unattached, 1:17:00.

"The Corker" Wins Motorboat Race

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Charles Stevens of Albany, N. Y., today guided his sea sled, the Corker, across the finish line the winner in the first Boston-to-New York outboard motor boat race here today.

Behind the leader came Alton T. Buffington of Fall River, Mass., who was driving a Cutecraft. J. Lewis Chapman of Groton, oCnn., piloting another sea sled was third.

The race—265 miles—was fought out under as ideal conditions as could be found for such tiny craft over the reaches of Boston Harbor through Cape Cod and down the Sound, with the stretch at Buzzard's Bay as a hazard for all of the 34 entrants.

Named Assistant Coach.

CARBONDALE, Ill., June 16.—Lot Henson, last year coach at the Vienna High School, has been employed as assistant coach at McKendree College next year.

YACHT TALAYHA WINS CALIFORNIA-HONOLULU RACE; STARTED JUNE 3

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, June 16.—The yacht Talayha, the largest of six entrants in the race from Newport Harbor, California, to Honolulu, crossed the finish line here about 2:30 p. m., today. The Talayha was the scratch boat in the race, which started June 3. The official time will be announced later.

By Jack Alexander.

The Browns' 7 to 5 victory over the Yankees yesterday, their second in two days, added weight to two famous maxims of the great Chinese shortstop, Confucius. Briefly put, they are that a cat with cream on his whiskers is easiest rattled and put to rout and that audacity, not pitching, is 90 per cent of a winning ball game.

The great Oriental always held to the latter maxim in the face of stern opposition on the part of Addie Joss and it was only fitting that another Eastern prophet, Dan Howley of East Weymouth, Mass., should be chosen to demonstrate the truth of the theory.

George Pipgras' whiskers were simply sopping with the cream of victory when he went out on the mound to face the contemptible locals yesterday. He had won 11 games out of 12 and was the league's leading pitcher. But before four innings had passed into the official records, George was mincing around the shower room, picking his way between slimy, despicable little pieces of soap, like a cat with paper tied around his hind leg.

Audacity did it. Or gall. Pick your own word. Howley told the Browns when the series started that their cue was to think small of elephants and the idea has worked so well that the Browns now lead in the series, two games to one. They have beaten the Yanks twice, more times than they could win all last season. They can't get any worse than an even break on the series, since the last game of the series is scheduled for this afternoon.

Young Dick Coffman (you can't call him anything else but young when you see how frail he looks beside the big Yanks) did an especially good job of cataloguing the elephants mentally as mere peanuts. Dick shone especially when the Home Run king, Babe Ruth, was swishing his bludgeon around his villainous-looking black cap.

In five times at bat Ruth struck out once in a pinch, grounded out easily in another pinch, tapped to the box once, grounded out again and hit a high fly to right.

In three games here Ruth has hit only once, a homer in Friday's game.

Yesterday Gehrig did some damage. He drove in one run with a single and later doubled and scored. Lou also struck out once.

Coffman had five strikeout victims and gave only one pass. Pat Collins got the pass but he repaid the favor amply in the fourth inning.

It was in the fourth that the Brownie audacity sprouted out in full bloom. They were behind, 2 to 0, and had got only one hit in three innings of Pipgras.

Manush Beats Out a Hot Grounder To Start Five-Run Rally in Fourth

Well, with one gone in the fourth Manush hit a hot grounder over second. Durocher speared it but Manush beat his throw to the bag. Schulte, who has been in an awful slump, was scowling fiercely as he came to bat and cracked out a most venomous double, a low drive to center, sending Manush to third.

With the crowd yelling joyously over Schulte's return to batting form, "Red" Kress, who perhaps best personifies the spirit of the Browns stepped up and sliced a grounder down the right field line, driving across both runners and tying the score.

Then, with Blue at the plate, Kress, catching the Yanks off balance, pulled the unexpected and dashed for second and Pat Collins, either flabbergasted or overgrateful for the walk, threw the ball over Durocher's head and hands into center field and the sorrel-topped Brownie went to third.

More Steals, More Runs.

Pipgras' poise was badly hit and his next pitch was wide, giving Blue a base on balls. Of course, Blue's steal of second with Kress on third did not take a whole lot of audacity but more was in store.

Frank O'Rourke crouched over and lashed out a nice double to right, scoring Kress and Blue. Still only one out and Manion at bat, O'Rourke suddenly took a flier for third and again Pat Collins threw wild, the ball this time being low and wide, giving Frank ample time to score.

Pipgras was disgusted and rightly so, and he walked Manion, the second pass of the inning.

Thus, with five runs in the bag and another potential one on base, Huggins yanked Pipgras and sent in Shealy, who retired the side.

The Browns hit Shealy but

Miss Ermyntrude Harvey, English captain, and Miss Peggy Saunders, defeated Miss Eleanor Goss, U. S., captain and Miss Helen Jacobs, 6—4, 6—1.

By the Associated Press.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 16.—For the first time since 1925, Great Britain's women tennis stars broke through the American defense today to win back the Wightman cup, symbol of supermacy as famed in the women's court world as the Davis cup is among the sturdier sex.

By a margin of four matches to three and chiefly through brilliancy in doubles play in the two days of competition, the English girls regained the trophy that has not rested on Britain's shelf since the conquest at Forest Hills in 1925.

In total victories the count now is tied at three all, for America won in 1923, 1926 and 1927, losing the second of the series in 1924.

Victory for England came with a rush today after Helen Jacobs, California companion of Helen Wills, had squared the matches at three all with a clean-cut win over Betty Nuthall, 6—3, 6—1, in the final singles contest. On the shoulders of the crack doubles teams of the two countries rested the burden of final victory, and with surprising ease Mrs. M. Holcroft Watson and Miss Eileen Bennett overpowered Penelope Anderson, from Richmond, Va., and Helen Wills, the one outstanding star of the tournament, 6—2, 6—1.

Miss Wills Fails in Dobules.

Standing alone in the singles play, except for the help of Miss Jacobs, the queen of American courts was the ace of the invaders' play. Her game on the Wimbledon center court came up to all the expectation of the British crowds that have welcomed her to England as a new Suzanne Lenglen. Miss Wills conquered Mrs. Watson yesterday, 6—1, 6—2, and this morning swept aside Eileen Bennett, England's finest singles player, in straight sets, 6—2, 6—1.

But in doubles play, Miss Wills was a distinct disappointment today and in the critical match, with the fate of the trophy depending on the power of her racket, Helen from Berkeley made more errors than her partner. In the British women's swift victory, a match that lasted only 30 minutes, Miss Wills sent drive after drive whistling beyond the baselines or into the net.

Mrs. Mallory Beaten Again.

The complete route of Mrs. Molla Mallory, many times champion of American women, was the surprise of the tournament and a distinct disappointment to American supporters who dotted the gallery of 8000, largest ever to witness a Wightman cup series here. Mrs. Mallory lost to Miss Bennett on Friday, 6—1, 6—3, and fell again today before the stroking of Mrs. Watson, 2—6, 6—1, 6—2.

The American veteran seemed a certain winner in the early stages of the singles match that could have turned the final tide toward the cup defenders. Game after game added to her score as she romped through to victory in the first set. But Mrs. Mallory collapsed almost completely in the second set and, although there was a welcomed and prolonged rest after that disaster, all the power was gone from her game. The fire had disappeared from her racket and she fell an easy victim of the accurate Mrs. Watson.

Miss Jacobs Improves.

Wimbledon fans were surprised at the power wielded by Helen Jacobs as the sturdy California miss trounced Betty Nuthall. She appeared to hit the ball almost as hard as the more famous California Helen, although she lacked the control and finesse of the champion. Teamed with Miss Eleanor Goss, American captain, Miss Jacobs lost to the doubles team of Ermyntrude Harvey, English captain, and Peggy Saunders, Friday by scores of 6—4, 6—1.

The singles match between Helen Wills and Miss Bennett was the feature of the day's program and brought together the masters of two continents. Realizing that she could not match Helen's tremendous power, Miss Bennett attempted to outgeneral the California girl, playing every shot known to tennis.

She mixed forehand smashes with backhand drives, lobs, and cross-court shots in an effort to keep Miss Wills moving up and down the court. But rarely could she dislodge the American ace from her accustomed place at the backlines, where Helen stood and boomed her heavy artillery through and around her opponent.

The strategy worked fairly well for six games with each winning her own service. Then Helen uncorked her fiercest drives, kept Miss Bennett dancing in an effort to return the burning shots, and dominated the court throughout the remainder of that set and the next one.

The Princess Helena Victoria presented the cup to Miss Harvey, as captain of the English team.

Two Records Fall in Tests for Olympics

was the triumph of little "Mac" Smith, former Yale cross-country runner, in the 5000-meter run. Hitherto virtually invincible at distances around three miles in the East and the outstanding favorite in the race, Lermond found himself outrun and outgamed by Smith in a thrilling drive down the stretch. Lermond started the last lap with a characteristically wild gallop and opened a gap of 10 yards, but Smith, hanging on grimly, made this up and won by two yards in a spectacular duel. Trailing Lermond by some 25 yards was Johnny Romig, Olympic veteran.

Smith's time of 14 minutes 57 2-5 seconds was 30 seconds slower than Paavo Nurmi's world's record, but one of the best American performances at the distance recorded since C. F. Hunter set the American record of 14:45 at Pasadena, Cal., in 1920.

Sid Robinson, formerly of Mississippi A. & M., but now of the New York A. C., turned in a surprisingly good performance by winning the 150-meter run in 3:59 1-5. Two veteran favorites, Harold Cutbill of the Boston A. A., "flying parson," and Bill Cox of Penn State were fifth and sixth in this race, as two Philadelphia schoolboys, Bill McKniff and Carl Coan, came through with startling performances to take second and third places.

Sprinting honors were divived by two New York A. C. stars, Frank Hussey and Jackson Scholz. Hussey won the 100-meter final by inches from Henry Cumming of the Newark A. C., former Virginia star, while Scholz took the measure of his clubmate, Roland Locke, in the 200-meter final.

Locke and Bowman Out.

Locke and Chet Bowman of the Newark A. C. National 100-yard champion, were shut out of the 100-meters, the latter losing all chance to make the Olympic team as a result. Karl Wildermuth, Georgetown youth, who, like Bowman, has experienced leg trouble, also was eliminated, but Hank Russell, Penn A. C. crack, although unable to run because of a slight soreness, was assured an opportunity to compete later at Boston.

Syracuse turned up the winner in the 400-meter run in Norman St. Clair, member of the great Orange one-mile relay team, but competing under the colors of the Rochester A. C., he beat a former Colgate rival, Eddie Roll, after the favorite, Joe Tierney of the New York A. C., pulled a tendon and withdrew at the start of the first heat. Cecil Cooke, burly Negro star, who won the national 440-yard title several years ago while running for Syracuse, failed in an attempted comeback.

The field events failed to produce any outstanding performances except in the pole vault, in which Frank Wirsig, former Nebraskan, now in the Marine Corps, cleared 13 feet 6 inches after clinching first place with a mark of 13 feet flat. The West Point football captain-elect, Mortimer Sprague of Texas, came through to win the shotput from the veteran former Olympic hero, Pat McDonald, with a heave of 47 feet 6½ inches.

BOEHMER MEETS PORTNOY FOR JUNIOR TITLE

Junior Boehmer, defending champion, will meet Joyce Portnoy in the final of the junior singles division of the St. Louis district junior and boys' tournament this afternoon on the Forest Park courts. The match will be for three out of five sets.

The defending champion advanced to the final yesterday afternoon by defeating Herbert Steideman, 6—2, 6—4, while Portnoy won his semi-final match from Jack Plunkert, 6—4, 8—10, 6—3.

Another title will be decided when Warren Davis meets Junior Poelker for the boys' single championship. This match will be two sets out of three.

In a junior doubles semi-finals match, Boehmer and Tietjen will oppose Wyman and Smiley.

Owen Rowe Beats 200-Meter Mark.

DENVER, Colo., June 16.—Owen Rowe, star Brigham Young University sprinter, bettered the Olympic record for the 200-meter run in the Rocky Mountain district Olympic trials here today when he outran a fast field in 21.1 seconds. Haynes of Denver University, the favorite, was a close second, and Albers, also of Denver University, was third.

The Olympic record for the event is held by Scholtz of United States, 21.6 seconds.

Dye Set New World Record in Hurdles.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 16.—Leighton Dye, running under the Los Angeles club's colors, established a new world's record for the 110 meters hurdles during the sectional Olympic tryouts here today. The former University of Southern California timber topper cleared the hurdles in 14 3-5 seconds, or two-tenths of a second better than the mark set by E. J. Thomson of Canada.

Frank Wykoff, 19-year-old Glendale sprinter, twice showed his heels to Charles Paddock in feature races. Wykoff led Paddock to the take by two yards in the 100-meter dash and broke the tape in the 200-meter event five yards ahead of the veteran of two Olympiads.

Wykoff equaled the world's record of 20 4-5 seconds for the 200 meters in beating out his illustrious rival.

Yale Polo Team Wins.

By the Associated Press.

RYE, N. Y., June 16.—Yale, defending its intercollegiate polo championship, today defeated Princeton 7 to 6 in the first game of the 1928 title tournament at the Westchester Biltmore Country Club. Wallop scored the winning goal with two minutes to go. Capt. Borden starred for Princeton.

Blades' Pinch Home Run Helps Cards Defeat Robins

long single to right center, sending Sherdel to third and Holm then punched a single to right, scoring Sherdel.

Sherdel Wild But Effective.

The Cardinals could have won the game with ease if it had not been for Sherdel's wildness. Wee William usually is a model pitcher in that respect, but he lacked his normal ability to lay the ball where he wanted it and as a result he almost suffered a defeat that would have broken the winning streak.

The Cards scored a run easily in the first inning. Douthit bounced a double over Hendrick's head on Ray Moss' first pitch and Holm picked on the next throw and skipped a single over second, scoring Douthit. Moss then pitched effectively and until the ninth he was never in trouble.

Sherdel held his one-run lead until the sixth, when Flowers opened the inning with a scratch hit to Maranville in deep short. Hendrick then sacrificed and Sherdel walked Carey and Bressler, to fill the bases.

Sherdel put over two strikes on the dangerous Bissonette. The first baseman took one and missed the next and then it was expected that Sherdel would throw one at the slugger's chin. That is not polite, but it is being done in the best baseball circles. But Sherdel did not do that. He pitched a curve that broke squarely over the heart of the plate, waist high, and Bissonette clicked the ball over the right-field wall for his thirteenth home run of the season, and score that had been 1 to 0, St. Louis, was now 4 to 1, Brooklyn, and Moss was still pitching like a champion.

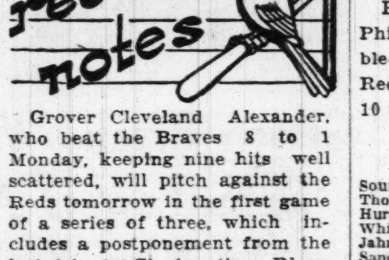
An error started Moss on his way out of the game and it happened to be his own misplay. Bottomley opened the ninth with a grounder to Bissonette and Moss, covering on the play, took the throw but failed to touch the bag and Bottomley was safe.

Both Score in Tenth.

Hafey then walked and Bottomley, with Roettger at bat, had a nightmare or something and was picked flatfooted off second and run down. Roettger then flied to Bressler., Wilson walked and Harper went in to bat for Maranville. Manager Robinson decided an older pitcher was desired and sent Jess Petty to relieve Moss. McKechnie countered by deciding to let Blades do the batting and Blades quickly tied the score.

With McWeeny pitching the tenth, the Cards filled the bases on singles by Douthit and Holm and a pass to Frisch, Elliott then relieved McWeeny and Bottomley's pop single, a safety because the infield was drawn in, scored Douthit. Elliott then disposed of three batters in a row.

Sherdel's wildness enabled the Dodgers to tie the score in their half of the tenth. He walked Carey to start the frame and Bressler scratched a single off Holm's glove. Carey moved to third while Bissonette was forcing Bressler and Tyson's sacrifice fly to Roettger scored Carey with the tying run.



Grover Cleveland Alexander, who beat the Braves 8 to 1 Monday, keeping nine hits well scattered, will pitch against the Reds tomorrow in the first game of a series of three, which includes a postponement from the last trip to Cincinnati. Rhem and Haines probably will work in the second and third games.

After the series the Cardinals jump to Chicago for five games in four days, then return to Cincinnati for two. After exhibition games in Indianapolis and Bloomington, the team will return home, meeting the Pirates June 28.

Brooklyn has a valuable franchise. The fans occasionally "ride" the players unmercifully, but they turn out in large numbers and even with second division teams, Brooklyn is able to pay excellent salaries. About 15,000 attended the final with the Cards.

Bottomley's Star Play.

Bottomley turned a potential extra base hit into a spectacular double play in the fourth inning. With Bissonette on first and one out, Jim made a diving glove-hand catch of Tyson's liner. Jim's glove was not more than a foot from the bag when he grabbed the ball and as he fell, he slapped the base, doubling Bissonette.

In the second, third and fourth innings the Brooklyn lead-off batter singled, but Sherdel prevented a score. Bissonette, leading off in the second with a single off Frisch's glove, was forced at second for the third out after Tyson had popped out and Bancroft, trying to bunt, fouled to Wilson.

After Moss singled in the third, Flowers sacrificed, but Hendrick and Carey flied to Douthit.

Into the Basket.

Bressler's single starting the fourth was a real smash to left. He was forced by Bisonette and then Bottomley pulled his fancy tumbling double play.

The fifth was the Dodgers' first hitless inning. Deberry appeared to have a Texas leaguer, but Maranville went far into left field for a basket catch. The "Rabbit" always gets a laugh and a round of applause for his catches. His hands close to his body at the belt line form a basket into which the ball drops.

Women to Play Golf.

The St. Louis District Women's Golf Association will hold its weekly team tournament at Riverview Country Club tomorrow.

HEADLIGHT A. C. WINS INDUSTRIAL ATHLETIC GAMES

Headlight Athletes Invited to Compete In Olympic Trials

FOUR members of the Headlight Athletic Club have been invited to compete in the sectional tryouts for the American Olympic Games team to be held next Saturday at Iowa City in a telegram received last night by Gerald Murchison, one of the club's star sprinters.

Two sprinters, Cockrell and Leffler, in addition to Gerald Murchison, a brother of Loren, will make the trip. The fourth man will be Rufus Haggard, who holds the intercollegiate high jump record of 6 feet 7¼ inches.

Leffler is a former University of Illinois athlete. Cockrell and Haggard were teammates at the University of Texas, where the former broke the conference record with a time of 9 4-5 seconds for the 100-yard dash.

The Larned-Carter Headlight Athletic Club won the fourth annual industrial track and field meet yesterday afternoon at Francis Field, scoring a total of 39 points. The A. J. Tower Co. and Rock Island Railroad were tied for second with 11 points.

The Headlight athletes placed in every event but the shotput and medley relay. The feature of the afternoon was the record-breaking jump of Rufus Haggard, Larned-Carter representative, who leaped 73½ inches in the high jump, besting the old mark by eight and one-half inches.

A. Cockrell of the Headlight team won the 50, 100 and 220 yard dashes to be the high point man of the afternoon. Cockrell also ran in the 440 and 880 yard relays.

The point score and summaries: Larned-Carter, 39; A. J. Tower, 11; Rock Island, 11; Frank Adam Electric Co., 9; Purina Mills, 8; Wabash, 5½; Devoy-Reinheimer, 5; M., K. & T., ½.

The summaries:

ONE MILE—G. Eroe, Devoy-Reinheimer, first; J. Varney, Rock Island, second; G. Warren, Frank Adam Elec. Co., third. Time, 4 mins., 59 secs.

FIFTY YARDS—A. Cockrell, Larned Carter Co., first; R. Cook, Rock Island, second; R. Keller, A. J. Tower Co., third. Time 5.6 seconds.

12-POUND SHOT PUT — Neill, Rock Island, first; Knierim, Frank Adam Electric Co., second; E. Crooks, A. J. Tower Co., third. Distance, 44 feet, 10 inches.

400-YARD RELAY — Haggard, Thomas, Leffler and Cockrell of Larned Carter Co., first; Frank Adams' team, second; A. J. Tower team, third. Time 44 1-5 seconds.

HIGH JUMP—Haggard, Larned Carter, first; E. Krook, A. J. Tower Co., second; Mossotti, M. K. & T., and Blaeuer, Wabash, tied for third. Height, 73½ inches; a new meet record.

100-YARD DASH—Cockrell, Larned Carter; first; Leffler, Larned Carter, second; Knirm, Frank Adams Co., third. Time, 10.1 seconds.

MEDLEY RELAY—Purina team (Bach, White, Bennett, Vachuber), first; A. J. Tower team, second. No third. Time, 4m. 35.2s.

BROAD JUMP—Blaeuer, Wabash, first; Leffler, Larned Carter, second; E. Crook, A. J. Tower Co., third. Distance, 20 feet 2¼ inches.

NEW TRIPLE A CLUB DIRECTORS ELECTED

Six directors were elected at the annual meeting of the Triple A Club held at the clubhouse in Forest Park yesterday afternoon. The four men re-elected were Fred Josties, Dr. George Gorin, Bonner Miller and W. D. Dalrymple. Grover Holthaus and R. J. Schanuel were named to succeed R. L. Daly and A. Landecker. Josties led the ticket. The officers will be elected by the directors at the July meeting.

WHEN the copper finds his coppers growing hot,
And his tongue is hanging out from spitting cotton;
Don't blame him if he takes a little shot

In the bastile he is not compelled to smother
For having what is often called a "bun."
So take one consideration with another,
The copper's lot is quite a happy one.

Quite So.

In this connection, however, it is only fair to say that Mr. Sharkey holds entirely opposite views. While as an Indian fighter he may be no Crook or a Custer, he claims that he knows his Indian turnips.

COUNTRY CLUB PLAYER DEFEATS MRS. HYNES, 8 UP AND 6 IN FINAL

Mrs. Mahlon B. Wallace Jr. of the St. Louis Country Club won the women's district golf championship for the third time yesterday by defeating Mrs. I. S. Hynes at the Normandie Country Club, 8 up and 6 to go. Mrs. Wallace won the title last year and also in 1924.

Except at rare moments, the match was a pretty dull affair with both contestants playing below their best form. In the morning round, Mrs. Wallace and Mrs. Hynes each had a 94. Mrs. Hynes earlier in the week was considered a strong contender for the title after she had won the low medal and established a course record of 83 on successive days.

The Turning Point.

After the seventh hole, Mrs. Wallace never lost her advantage. Starting the morning round, the first and second holes were halved. Mrs. Hynes won the next two but Mrs. Wallace recovered to square the match and at the ninth she was two up. On the second nine, Mrs. Hynes' putting suffered and four full stymies helped Mrs. Wallace to reach the eighteenth 4 up despite her own occasional inaccuracy on the green.

In the afternoon round, Mrs. Hynes was in trouble frequently while Mrs. Wallace's fine tee shots gave her strokes to spare. Mrs. Hynes won only two holes, four were halved and Mrs. Wallace took the rest to end the match on the 12th green.

Mrs. Wallace Longer Off Tee.

Mrs. Wallace's drives outdistanced Mrs. Hynes' by a considerable margin during most of the match and one member of the gallery thought her shot from the eighth tee was "gorgeous." At times, Mrs. Wallace putted brilliantly and her short approaches were accurate throughout the engagement.

Mrs. Hynes, who is a member of the Normandie Club, was also finalist in the 1925 tournament when she lost to Virginia Pep. Miss Pep was eliminated by Mrs. Wallace in the semifinal of the upper bracket on Friday.

DEFENDING CHAMPION BEATEN IN TRIPLE A GOLF TOURNAMENT

An upset in form in the first round of the Triple A golf tournament was recorded in a first-round match yesterday afternoon, when Orville Mitchell, defending champion, was eliminated by Charles Hemp, 1 up in 18 holes.

The driving of Mitchell was below his usual standard, which, coupled with the steady and sure work of Hemp on the greens, led to his downfall. Hemp is expected to go far in the tournament as a result of the victory.

In other first-round matches, E. C. Schwartz defeated W. Krummell, 3 and 1, and W. G. Gregory eliminated J. Hellmich, 5 and 4.

Tournament officials have announced that both the first and second rounds must be completed by Friday.

ther effort. At any rate, Tiner came through rather unexpectedly to win in the last few jumps. Lucent was third and Salutation, which had set the pace, was fourth.

Then Tiner came right back to win with Water Lad in the fourth at three-quarters of a mile. In this case he virtually clinched his victory at the half-mile ground when he forced his horse to outrun Memoria. The latter made a game effort and challenged again, but Tiner once more got a move out of Water Lad to win by a neck in a thrilling finish. Shasta Lad was not far back of Memoria.

Blah's victory in the first was a shock. The bettors had supported Scotland Forever, Benedict Vow and others, but J. Parmelee brought Blah through a victor. He paid $33.28 for $2.

The ability of Meknes, the foreign-bred gray which runs for Phil Reuter, is still being discounted because of the fact that he quit badly in several races. The crowd refused to make him the favorite in the second race and then expressed regret when he won handily. Gold Mint was second and Reprove third.

Petit Pan, E. J. O'Connell's 2-year-old gelding, which holds the track record here for four and one-half furlongs, proved he is no fluke "champion" when he beat a band of very good youngsters in taking the sixth race. He led all the way through the five and one-half furlongs. Zurich was second and MacFogie third. The winner paid $7.26 for $2.

So take one consideration with another,
The copper's lot is quite a happy one.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Strangely Intimate

AN eleventh hour transfer of a fine pitcher from the Boston Braves to the New York Giants injects new energy into the hopes and power of the McGraw machine.

It also injects into the baseball situation a question as to just what sort of intimacy exists between the Braves and the Giants, that leads to such extraordinary transfers of players at opportune times.

This year's succession of transfers includes some important ones to both teams, including the amazing shift of Hornsby to the Braves. It lends color to a belief that has persisted for several years that the man behind the Boston Braves pays taxes on the New York Giants.

It seems incredible that two clubs could play into each others hands in such timely manner without considerable mutuality of interest.

Such relations are not common between major league clubs. Only one important relationship of a similar nature comes to mind and, strangely enough, that was also between a New York and a Boston club—in the American League.

This relationship, which transfused into the sluggish corpuscles of the Yanks, the championship blood of the Red Sox, eventually resulted in putting a winning American League team into New York City for the first time in its history—and a tailender in Boston.

Sharkey Is Coming.

JACK SHARKEY will be on display here next Tuesday. He is here to oppose Leo Gates, the Indian boxer who surprised the world—and possibly himself—by a knockout victory over the party with the vitreous maxillary, Jim Maloney.

Fans will see a very interesting heavyweight in Sharkey, especially if Gates can give him a good warmup. Sharkey needs to be steamed up to his stuff, but has put over only one or two good shows since Dempsey almost ruined him.

His best against Tom Heeney was a draw, but that was his second battle after Dempsey's left hook found that wide opening on the jaw.

Gates probably will give Sharkey enough argument to afford the public a good idea of what the Lithuanian can do. Before his clash with Dempsey, Sharkey was headed for the top.

It is unfortunate for Sharkey's ambition and his pocketbook that Tunney chose Heeney. Jack probably would have made a more interesting foe for the champion than Heeney will.

Bettors Over-Suspicious

CONSIDERING the atmosphere of suspicion that envelops the entire racing game, it is amazing that bettors support the thing they constantly criticize.

The popular view seems to be that something is being "put over" constantly by owners, jockeys and even the association.

Now and then illegal acts are committed by owners, jockeys and trainers. Perhaps a fixed race really goes over once in a while—not often, we are told.

In the main, however, surprises in racing are due to natural causes and in no infrequent number of cases the owner or trainer of a horse himself has been astounded when his entry won.

Educating the Public.

"We try in every way to allay suspicion," commented Manager Head of Fairmount. "The public doesn't know and we want to educate them to the facts about racing.

"It must be obvious to anyone that, with an investment of more than $1,000,000 and only some 50 or so racing days in which to realize on our investment, we can not afford to jeopardize it by unfair practices against the public.

"We safeguard the betting public and it is to our interest to gain their confidence by keeping everything as clean and honest as it is humanly possible.

"The public does not seem to understand that this track and all other tracks in Illinois are under the constant surveillance of a state inspector on the grounds while our own detective force is also on the job. Even if it were in the minds of the association or its operators to cheat it is almost a physical impossibility."

After watching all the details of the certificate system the writer was unable to figure out any way by which any single employe could beat the association's system. The entire force would have to conspire in order to gyp the association.

As for the association itself, it is operating under a law for violation of which severe fines and jail penalties may be imposed, in addition to forfeiture of charter and the total wrecking of a $1,000,000 investment.

Browns Rout Pipgras and Win Again From Yanks, 7-5

couldn't score in the next two innings and the Yanks almost tied the count in the seventh. Robertson singled with one out and Mark Koenig, batting for Collins, connected solidly with the first pitch and dropped it in the pavilion, scoring behind Robertson with the fourth run.

Shealy kept the continuity straight with a single and when Combs also singled, things looked black for young Dick, only one being out. Durocher pushed up a pop foul to O'Rourke and Dick found himself facing a hungry Babe Ruth, with enough runs on bases to beat him. With one ball called, Babe lifted a high but short fly to McNeely for the third out, the only ball he got past the infield all day.

"Call for Wilcy Moore."

In their half of the inning the Browns scored their last two runs. Shealey walked McNeely, who went to second on Brannon's sacrifice. McNeely pulled up at third on Manush's third straight hit, a double to right center. At this point Wilcy Moore, famous trouble-shooter, was summoned, but Schulte hit a long fly to Combs to score McNeely and after Kress had walked, Blue drove in Manush with a single to left. So Wilcy wasn't so hot himself.

The Yanks made two more threats, but neither developed into much. Gehrig, who was mad all day, opened the eighth with a two-bagger to left. Durst flied out and Lazzeri rolled out but Robertson, who played a splendid game throughout, socked a single to score Gehrig.

The ninth was rather worrisome. Somehow or other a fellow cannot help but think that sooner or later the Babe is going to smash one of those home run things. He was up with a man on, but with a 3-and-1 count grounded to Brannon for the final out.

Kress started off the game with his characteristic flash by chasing back of second for Combs' fast grounder and tossing him out by a yard.

Durocher handled all the Yankee chances in the first inning. He threw out McNeely and Manush and got under Brannon's pop.

Robertson Bats in First Run.

Lazzeri's double off the right center wall was the first hit of the game and a clean hit it was. So was Gene Robertson's grass cutter over second base that scored Lazzeri.

Lu Blue got the Browns' first hit. It was a long fly down the left field line which cleared Ruth's head and bounced into the grandstand. The ground rules held it to a double, as it went into the seats in foul territory. Ruth might have caught the fly but did not see fit to risk his high-priced carcass in a collision with the wall, thereby displaying great wisdom and sound business sense, particularly since O'Rourke popped to Durocher for the third out immediately afterward.

Coffman yielded two more clean hits in the third. Combs pushed one against the wall in left center for two bases and scored on Gehrig's sharp sock to center. But the cuss was taken off the inning because Ruth fanned.

Pat Collins went down swinging for the Yanks' third out in the fourth. It was Dick Coffman's second strikeout.

Manush did some fast stepping to beat out a bounder toward second in the Browns' fourth. Durocher charged over and made a nice glovehand stab but was too late on the throw. It was the second Brownie safety.

Schulte's line double to center which followed fairly spat venom. Fred has been in a bad slump.

Two Strikeouts in Inning.

In the Yankee fifth two of the outs were strikeouts, Shealy swinging at a third one and Durocher watching his last one slide by.

Gene Robertson robbed the Brownies in the fifth of two runs when he fell full length in the dust to stop Blue's smash near the foul line with two on bases and two out. Gene scrambled to his feet and got his throw to first in time to nip Blue. At least, Umpire Barry thought so. The crowd didn't, but had to applaud the great play.

They put in Mark Koenig to bat for Collins in the seventh and Mark socked the first ball pitched into the pavilion. Very neat, quick, efficient work. Robertson was on base.

"They All Look Alike."

You should have seen young Dick pitch to the Babe with two out and enough runs on the bases to put the enemy ahead in the seventh. One ball and then one down the alley, and Ruth sent up a skyscraper to McNeely. Wonder what an outfielder thinks of in such a case? It seemed years before that ball plopped in the leather.

A few of the more ravenous wolves were howling for Howley to release Schulte to Tulsa at the start of the game, but those nice hits did make a difference.

Manush's great catch of Dugan's fly in short left center in the ninth was a life saver.

BOBBY JONES HAS 77 ON PAR 71 'OPEN' COURSE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 16.—Playing the championship No. 4 course at Olympia Fields for his first time, Bobby Jones, Atlanta lawyer and golf champion by avocation, turned in a card of 36-41—77 today in a practice round over the links where he will seek to regain the national open golf title next week.

The amateur champion played from the back tees, which give the course the length of 6756 yards with a par of 35-36—71.

He got off a train at breakfast time and hied himself out to Olympia where he will be a guest until after the tournament. He came early to get in a few practice rounds before the open gets under way Thursday.

In a foursome with Emmet French of Southern Pines, N. C., Charles Black and Frank Ball of Atlanta, with the exception of a six on the par four twelfth hole, he shot a steady round for a new course after a night on the train.

French also shot a 77, while the two others did not keep scores.

Mehlhorn Turns in 74.

"Wild Bill' Mehlhorn, who shot a 73 yesterday, was out again and turned in a 74. Among others getting familiar with the championship course were Jack Burke of Houston and Charles Guest of Detroit.

A crowd was on hand to greet Jones and formed a good sized gallery for him for the 18 holes. He started out with a birdie on the par five first, 535 yards, but slipped on the next three, par four holes, taking three fives. He caged a birdie two on the 163-yard sixth and finished the out nine in 36, one over par.

Five Over Par for Nine Holes.

Coming in, Bobby took a five on the 443-yard tenth, slipped for a sixth on the twelfth, a four on the 130-yard thirteenth, a five on the treacherous 433-yard fourteenth, and a five on the 383-yard seventeenth. He finished with a birdie four on the 490-yard eighteenth. His card:

Par out —544 443 434—35
Jones out—455 542 434—36
Par in — 444 345 345—36—71
Jones in— 546 455 354—41—77

The record for the course is 67, although when Walter Hagen and Al Espinosa shot it they were playing from the forward tees, cutting 300 yards from the course.

Tommy Armour, national open champion, is to arrive tomorrow and begin preparations for defense of his title.

Aubrey Boomer, French entrant, turned in the best card of the day's practice rounds with a 73. Willie Ogg of Worcester, Mass., shot a 76 and Jack Daray, the home club pro, shot 76.

VAN RYN WINS FROM SHIELDS IN NET FINAL

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—John Van Ryn, Princeton, became the Pennsylvania and Middle States singles tennis champion today when he defeated Frank Shields of New York, junior national champion, 10-8, 7-5, 6-1, on the courts of the Merion Cricket Club, Haverford. The victory of the Tiger ace, to many, came as a surprise. Only yesterday Shields defeated R. Norris Williams of Merion, who was the defending champion, and former national champion.

JOIE RAY EASY VICTOR IN A 10-MILE RACE

By the Associated Press.

MEDFORD, Mass., June 16.—Joie Ray jogged home an easy winner today in a special 10-mile race, feature event of the American Legion meet here, but failed to break the record for the distance. his time was 52 minutes, 45 seconds. The five-lap track was in poor condition and Ray, who had hoped to set a new mark, said he got cinders in his shoes during the race.

Whitey Michelson, veteran Marathoner, finished second, three laps behind Ray and Clarence Demar was third, five laps back of the winner.

BENTON BLANKS PIRATES, 4-0, FOR 11TH VICTORY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Larry Benton won his eleventh victory of the season here today as the Giants shut out the Pirates, 4 to 0, in the third game of the series. Benton has only two defeats and all of his games have been completed—119 innings of pitching without relief. Kremer pitched for the Pirates.

BOBBY JONES Says

FOR some reason, present day golfers seem to overlook to a great extent the possibilities of the once popular spoon. Possibly that tendency may be due partly to the fact that the increased range of the ball has brought most of the second shots within range of the middle-distance irons, but I do not think that is all of the reason. I know many players who will always extend themselves with the iron rather than resort to the wood. It seems to be a matter of pride with them that they will not allow others to think that they must use a wood club on such and such a hole.

The wood clubs were more popular in the old days probably because the old "guttie" was so hard and unyielding that the shock it gave to the iron blade more than offset the player's desire to be credited with more power than he possessed. It must have been a relief then to take out the spoon or brassie and know that one's fingers would not be cracked by the slightest mishit.

Those who insist upon employing an iron to do the work of the spoon lose sight of the real object of the game. They forget that the successful execution of the shot, and not with what club it was done, is what counts. It does not matter if A reaches No. 15 once with a drive and mid-iron and messes up the hole five times, if B is always close with a drive and spoon or brassie.

Hilton Great on Spoon Shots.

HAROLD HILTON was probably, from all accounts, the greatest master of the spoon the game has ever known. He is reputed to have been able to play with it a shot of little more than mashie distance with startling accuracy. I would not urge upon anyone, however, the advisability of sparing the club too much. Even allowing for the wonderful skill which Hilton possessed, I do not believe he could bring off today with the lively ball, some of the spoon shots I have heard and read about his playing. The modern ball, quick upon the ground as well as off the club, needs the lofted club to control it for the shorter distances.

The spoon for use today should be designed to cover the range between the No. 2 iron and the brassie. By that I mean the club should be of such loft that it can be spared to approximate the range obtainable with a No. 2 and forced to reach nearly that of the brassie. In that way it will cover completely the field assigned to the No. 1 iron with which it ought to be nearly interchangeable.

Take my own case as an example. I do not like to play a long iron shot from a tight lie. I never seem to be able to get the control I like to have. So invariably in that case I employ a spoon, playing the shot with a slight cut to get it up quickly. Again, I do not like to play a full iron shot with the wind off my right, because I know that I am apt to hook if I do. That is the place for a spared spoon shot fading a bit into the wind for control.

Substitute for Brassie.

SIMILARLY, as a substitute for the brassie, the spoon works equally well. Suppose we need a full shot to the green and the wind is blowing across from left to right and the lie is close. In getting the ball up with the straight-faced brassie, the almost necessary result is a slicing spin which exaggerated by the wind may carry the ball many yards off the line. But the loft of the spoon will elevate the ball without need of the spin and we can hit hard and confidently straight for the objective.

And to put the spoon to these uses is within the capabilities of even the ordinary player. The modifications in either direction are so slight that to make them it is only necessary to know what they are. No man who will get a spoon and use it within reasonable limits will ever allow himself to be again without one.

Experts Concede Ace Hudkins Little Chance of Winning Title From Mickey Walker

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 16.—Ace Hudkins, Nebraska Wildcat, having failed to get a crack at the welterweight crown now adorning the brow of Joe Dundee, will jump out of his class here Thursday night, when he opposes Mickey Walker, middleweight leader, in an effort to land the championship of the 160-pound division.

The Nebraska boxer will be fighting to upset one of the strongest adages in the boxing game, to wit: "A good little man cannot defeat a good big man," and after summarizing both boxers' records, and watching them in training workouts, the experts gathered here cannot see that Hudkins will prove an exception to the rule.

Nor can Eastern promoters take the title aspirations of Hudkins seriously, for Walker has been signed to defend his crown against Pete Latzo on July 4, less than two weeks after he fights Hudkins.

10-6 Odds on Walker.

Hudkins is reported as weighing 158 pounds, but he is likely to enter the ring at several pounds below that figure, while Walker is going through quite a sweating process to keep within the limit of 160 pounds. Therein lies the reason for Hudkins receiving no more title consideration than has been apparent in Chicago boxing circles since both champion and challenger appeared for final training. The feeling is shown in the betting odds, which place Walker 10 to 6 in advance wagering. These odds may be lengthened before Thursday night.

Despite the betting odds, and the opinions of boxing authorities, the Hudkins camp is confident of taking a title back to Lincoln.

"Ace has had 154 fights and has lost only six of them," said Clyde, his brother-manager. "He has never been knocked unconscious and has fought the best from the junior lightweight division to the middleweights. He has had two tune-up middleweight bouts for Walker and won both of them."

The bouts to which Clyde referred were with Al Mello, which Hudkins won on a foul, and Buck Holley, whom Hudkins knocked out in the second round.

An Unpopular Champion.

Should the unexpected happen, and Hudkins take the title, great will be the rejoicing up and down the boxing land, for Walker generally is unpopular, due to the fact that he won the title on an extremely questionable decision from "Tiger" Flowers, and that, having won the championship, he, through his manager, Jack Kearns, failed to abide by a written contract, which specified that he would give Flowers another chance at the title should he lose.

Flowers died when in the midst of a campaign to force Walker to live up to the contract.

Hudkins will rely upon his usual rushing attack in combating his heavier opponent. This aggressive style has proved effective against opponents of equal weight, but whether it will against Walker is another question that most observers are answering in the negative.

REGAN HITS TWO HOME RUNS IN INNING; BOSTON DEFEATS CHICAGO

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 16.—After striking out five men in the first three innings, Blankenship blew up in the fourth and was pounded by the Boston Red Sox for eight runs. After that the Boston club had an easy time in defeating the White Sox. The score was 10 to 5.

Regan, the Boston second baseman, hit two home runs in the fourth inning, to tie the world's record for total bases in one inning. He led off the inning with a homer and finished the scoring with his second four-bagger. Four other hits and two walks gave the Red Sox their other runs, with Taitt, Todt and Flagstead getting doubles.

The victory widened the gap between the White Sox in the cellar and Boston in seventh place.

bWhitney entry.

Black Panther far back in the early racing worked his way up gradually and his rider caught Victorian's rider napping and outrode him to win in the final drive. Victorian racing File-Maker into defeat, raced into an easy lead in the stretch and his rider made hte mistake of easing him up through the final eighth. Diavolo outrun early colsed big gap and finished fast. Chance Shot had no mishaps and turned tired after racing along under restraint to the stretch. Brown Flash closed some ground. Black Maria ran a dull race. Scapa Flow broke down.

Two-dollar mutuels paid: Black Panther, win 6-1, lpace 2-1, show even; Vivtorian, place even show 2-5; Diavolo, show 4-1.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Given the benefit of a great ride by Johnny Maiben, Walter J. Salmon's Black Panther, a 6 to 1 shot, captured the Brooklyn Handicap, historic classic, at Aqueduct, today.

Black Panther, a 4-year-old son of Black Toney and Greenery, ran the mile and an eighth in 1:51 1-5 to beat a field of nine, including Harry Payne Whitney's famous Victorian, Preakness and Withers winner. The race was worth $13,500 to the winner.

Victorian showed improvement over his form in the Belmont when he finished fifth in a field of six, but had nothing left to meet Black Panther's spurt on the home stretch. As it was, Victorian was lucky to save second place, for Diavolo, coming wide at the stretch, closed gamely to take third place.

Maiben rode a heady race. He allowed Filemaker and Victorian to set the early pace and then called on his mount at the finish, slipped through on the inside and won going away.

Scapa Flow broke down and finished last.

Mei Foo, the favorite, won the co-feature at Aqueduct, the Hudson, $2500 added, for 2-year-olds. Kopeck was second and Battleship Grey third. The five and on-half furlongs were covered in 1:01.

DOWN the STRETCH

Latonia Derby Next.

THE next $25,000 3-year-old feature is the Latonia Derby, one mile and one-half to be run over the Latonia course next Saturday. Many of the best 3-year-olds in the West are expected to start in the rich classic. Toro, winner of the American Derby and second to Misstep in the Fairmount, is already on the ground and is training for the great race. Misstep, an intended starter, is at Arlington Park but will be shipped to the Kentucky track before Thursday. Other stars listed as prospective starters are Galahad, Phil Reuter's good imported colt; Lawley, owned by the Viking Stable; Audley Farm Stable's Bobashela and possibly his stablemate, Easter Stockings, Kentucky Oaks winner.

Toro is in fine condition and barring mishaps will be a certain starter in the Derby. Trainer Johnny Schorr expects the son of The Porter to be at his best for the race. Toro went a mile and one-quarter over a fast track at Latonia yesterday morning and showed good speed. He breezed the 10 furlongs in 2:09.

Misstep Works.

MISSTEP, winner of the Fairmount Derby, worked a mile and one-quarter at Arlington Park yesterday in preparation for the coming renewal of the Latonia Derby. The fast Lemar Stable colt turned the distance in 2:08. He was breezing most of the way and is in fine condition. Misstep is regarded as a certain starter in the Latonia classic.

Many fast trials were noted on the lightning fast tracks at Latonia and Arlington Park yesterday. The gest move of the day was turned in by the 2-year-old Sandwitch at Arlington. The colt did three-eighths in :35 1-5, breezing and appeared to be in good condition. He is ready to race and will probably be seen under colors in the near future.

Pat and Theo Fay also worked well over the Chicago course. Pat was breezing to do five-eighths in 1:01, while Theo Fay did the same distance in 1:01 handily.

WILL ROGERS' TEAM DEFEATED IN G. O. P. POLO TOURNAMENT

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 16—The Kansas City Country Club "Reds" nosed out Will Rogers' cowboy quartet today in the G O. P. round robin polo tournament, seven goals to six, the humorist tapping one of his team's markers through the posts.

The tournament will end tomorrow with a game between the Kansas City Country Club "Blues" and the Onwentsia team of Chicago. A victory for Onwentsia will place that team in a tie for the title with the combined Detroit-Toledo four, while if Kansas City wins the tournament will go to Detroit-Toledo.

AKE A BOAT HOME,' CRITICS TOLD HEENEY, AFTER DEBUT IN ENGLAND

W ZEALANDER, DEFEATED ON POINTS BY PHIL SCOTT, WENT TO SOUTH AFRICA AND MADE GOOD

Tom Heeney's Life Story

HE POST-DISPATCH presents herewith the third installment of the life story of Tom Heeney, New Zealand heavyweight, will meet Gene Tunney in a match for the world's champion- in New York on July 26. Later Heeney will describe his ning for the title bout.

By TOM HEENEY,

As Told to a Representative of the Post-Dispatch.

HAD now met and defeated all the available heavyweight talent n New Zealand except one fighter. He was Ern Young, a chap s big as a giant.

match was made with him, Ben Aislable, president of the orne Boxing Association (my o town), arranged for Maj. k Stewart to come down from capital to referee the bout.

HEENEY.

Maj. Stewart, of the greatsportsmen in e Dominions, d been in arge of sports ring the army rvice in England and France was just back England, d it was felt t anything he ght say as to y ring ability uld be final.

I knocked out Young in the rth round of the fight. Then art came over to me. He wore g smile. He told me that I ld do well in England against ir heavyweights, all of whom he seen in action, often refereeing ir bouts.

"I will line you up with some d people over there," he said, o will get you fights with the t of them."

That talk was the turning point y career.

ewart cabled Bernard Mortie, the "Tex Rickard" of End, who replied: "Send Heeney r at once."

Fred Dominey, my mate and ner, and I stepped aboard a t for England.

That was the beginning of a hting journey that was to take half way around the world—England, France, Ireland, South rica and then the United States, re to attain a chance at the avyweight title that no native itisher has held since "Ruby b" Fitzsimmons sank down to eat under the powerful blows of n Jeffries.

Lost to Phil Scott.

Well, my ring debut in England s not so good. I lost my first tle to Phil Scott, the English vyweight champion. It was on ts in a 20-round go.

guess my stock suffered a mp as the critics said that h my "large frame and small knowledge of the fighting business," I had been ill-advised to leave New Zealand. "Take a boat home," was their advice.

But it cost money to go home, and besides I wanted another crack at Scott. So I took a preliminary bout at the National Sporting Club in London, and got $100 for knocking out a chap in four rounds.

That win brought me a fight with George Cook, the Australian champion, but again I lost in 20 rounds on points.

After that setback, I drifted down to Tommy Gibbons' training camp. The American fighter was then in England preparing for his fight with Jack Bloomfield. I boxed with Gibbons every day and established a friendship with him that is one of my proudest possessions. Gibbons was the first to suggest that I come to the United States. He told me I would be successful here with my plugging in, boring, slugging style of fighting.

But America wasn't to be thought of then. I was keen for another crack at Phil Scott. But as Scott couldn't see me with an observatory lens when it came to the matter of a return fight, John Mortimer advised me to take a trip to South Africa.

Defeated Squires Twice.

I went over and defeated Johnny Squires, the heavyweight champion of the country. Twice I took him, winning one 20-round bout on points at Johannesburg and the second time knocking him out in 18 rounds, at Durban, South Africa.

In all, I had five fights in South Africa, all of which I won, three on kayoes, one on points and one on a foul.

The attendance there at fights is not to be compared in numbers with American gatherings, but it is a spectacular and colorful affair, with prospectors, bushmen and diamond diggers in their different modes of dress.

They are good sports and show their appreciation of a fast bout by tossing money into the ring. It reminded me somewhat of New Zealand, where the bushmen throw coins to the prelim boys when they put up a good fight.

ETERAN MARK ARIE WINS GRAND AVERAGE HONORS IN TRAP SHOOT

e Associated Press.

ECUMSEH, Ont., June 16.—ough he failed to gain high gun ition on any day of competition, sistent shooting during the k won the grand average at the ernational trapshooting tournant for Mark Arie, veteran ampaign, Ill., marksman.

TUNNEY IN PUBLIC WORKOUT APPEARS TO BE OUT OF TUNE

SPECULATOR, N. Y., June 16.—One panel of the canvas that has shrouded Gene Tunney from the eyes of the curious while he prepares for his heavyweight title defense against Tom Heeney at New York July 26, was lifted today and spectators had the opportunity of watching a champion miss a lot of punches.

Tunney's general physical condition appeared to be very good, but in the three rounds he mixed punches with Billy Vidabeck, a light heavyweight sparring partner, his timing was off and his footwork slow. It appeared, however, that Tunney was punching harder than he ever has. This observation was confirmed by Vidabeck, who has been training with Tunney for three years.

Tunney also boxed two rounds with Charlie Rosen, a welterweight, in an attempt to work up some speed. Experts generally conceded that the champion needed plenty of that kind of training.

A large crowd gathered to see the first public workout. The remainder of his workouts will be open to the public.

Parochial League's Strikeout Hurler

EMMETT MUELLER.

Holy Name Mound Ace Fixes Major Leagues as Goal

A future big league star.

That's the aim of Emmett Mueller, 15-year-old hurler of the Holy Name team which Friday won the championship of the Parochial School League by defeating St. Mark's 4-3, in the final game. Mueller has a good start toward his major league goal for he averaged better than 16 strikeouts in three elimination games, fanning 17 St. Mark's batters and allowing only two hits in the deciding contest. He had no easy task at that in the final game, for Lahey, opposing twirler, struck out 13 men and gave only six safeties. In addition to his hurling, Mueller starred at bat against St. Mark's, getting a home run.

Today Mueller steps into faster company. His brilliant pitching in Parochial play earned him a contract with the Missouri State Life team in the Mercantile League of the Muny Association. He will pitch his first game with the insurance team this afternoon.

Mueller literally "burned up" the Parochial League. His team won 12 contests and lost none, winning with ease in its league. During the dozen games the opposing batters scored only six runs off Mueller.

The Holy Name ace will enter McBride High School and he promises to be a valuable addition to this school's Prep League entry next season.

Holy Name has issued a challenge to Adams School, winner of the Public School League, for a game to decide the city championship.

P. WANER GAINS GROUND AMONG THE "BIG SIX"

By the Associated Press.

With Hornsby still marking time for having taken undue liberties with an umpire, Paul Waner again featured the Big Six with two out of four at the Polo Grounds yesterday, as the Pirates fell before the Giants, 4 to 0. Waner's average climbed three points to .367, as Babe Ruth skidded nine notches down the scale through a hitless afternoon at St. Louis. Ruth now is down to .322.

The hectic Cobb-Frisch duel for fourth place in the Big Six continued yesterday, with each getting one out of five. Cobb remains three points better than the Fordham flash.

The standing to date:

MUNY PITCHER WINS OWN GAME WITH A DOUBLE

BOX SCORES OF MUNICIPAL GAMES ON NEXT PAGE

Doubling in the fifth inning with a man on base, Pitcher Beelik of the Atlas team drove in the only run of the game between the Huttigs and the Atlas aggregation yesterday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. Industrial No. 1 division of the Municipal Baseball Association, the final score being 1 to 0 in favor of Atlas.

In addition to batting in the winning run, Beelik also turned in an outstanding performance on the mound, limiting his opponents to four scattered hits, only one of which was for two bases.

In the Y. M. C. A. Industrial Division No. 2, an opposite extreme was struck, when the Pedigos and the R. C. Cans held a slugfest which ended at 33 to 15 in favor of the former nine. Although there were no home runs, batters on the two teams collected eight extra-base hits.

A no-hit performance was turned in by Ode of the Memorials against the Fourth Baptist Church in the junior division of the Sunday School League. Games in the junior division are limited to seven innings. Ode also got two of the three two-base hits of the game, the other being collected by Lorenze, Memorial third-sacker.

Maryville 4, Chester 2.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHESTER, Ill., June 16.—Maryville pushed over four runs behind the stellar hurling of Novack and defeating Chester here this afternoon, 4 to 2. Schick hit a home run in the first inning with one man on base.

Gates and Sharkey to Work Out at National Gym Today, For Bout Here Next Tuesday

By Damon Kerby.

Although Leo Gates, Indian heavyweight of Siggsville, Mass., comes from the general section made famous as an Indian country by James Fenimore Cooper, fans who see him in action against Jack Sharkey on Tuesday night at the Battery Arena will not mistake him for one of the lithe, supple heros in Cooper's Leather Stocking Tales. Far from being lithe, Gates weighs a full 210 pounds.

Gates has the characteristic features of the typical Indian, with high cheek bones. He may even truthfully be described as a colorful fighter, reference in this case being made to a number of gold teeth and several designs tattooed on the arms and shoulders.

Gates, whose real name is Arthur Leo Barrier, was born in the settlement of Siggsville, Mass., at the foot of Mount Graylock, he said yesterday, in sketching his early history. His father was a trapper and hunter, while his mother lived in the little town so her children could attend school. And the first knockout scored by Gates was in the district school, he says. Although it is not carried in the records books, it gives him more satisfaction than any knockout he ever put across. The knockout, incidentally, ended his school career.

Kayoes His School Principal.

"Every spring my mother would have trouble keeping me in school," he said. I wanted to get out in the mountains. But I knew she wanted me to go as long as I could, so I made an honest effort to stay. Finally I reached the eighth grade. I was then about 15 years old.

"One day the teacher got mad at me about something. She called the principal, a fussy fellow who tried to overawe and intimidate the youngsters. He came storming into the room in his customary overbearing manner. I thought: 'What's the use? Right here is where I quit school.' With that I 'popped' him, and he stayed down for a long count."

The speech was a long one for Gates, and was mixed with some gestures, perhaps borrowed for the occasion from his manager, Max Meyer, of New York, who is not an Indian. When Gates reached the "I popped him" stage he rubbed his huge right fist as though the sensation of "popping" the teacher still lingered pleasantly in his mind.

The blow definitely settled the school career of Gates, and he went to work for the Government on top of Mount Graylock, aiding in clearing it off for a summer reservation. It was after a few months of this work that his boxing career started, and was brought about through a visit to Siggsville by Jack Britton, then welterweight champion, and Clay Turner, a Canadian middleweight. The two boxers made the place their training site at various times.

Jack Britton Taught Gates.

"I liked to fight as a youngster, and when word drifted up to our camp that a couple of boxers were in town, looking for sparring partners, I was one of the first to talk with them. Britton allowed me to put on the gloves with him, and he told me he thought I had the makings of a fighter, if I would learn something of the game. When he flattered me like that I determined I would be a boxer.

"Funds were rather short in the family at that time, and I held my job up in the grading camp; but every afternoon, when five o'clock came I would beg a ride down the mountain and then, without taking time to wash up, would box with both Britton and Turner. I never missed a day while they were there.

"I obtained some matches around that vicinity, and extended my activities until I was fairly well-known as far away as Pittsfield and Adams, Mass. These were the largest cities in the world to me, then.

"Finally a promoter matched me with Arthur Pelkey for a bout in Quebec, Canada. Then I felt I was getting somewhere in the game, when I won from Pelkey. Since then I have met most of the big men, including Tunney, and Johnny Risko, twice.

Meyer says this is the fourth time Gates has been matched with Sharkey. On the three other occasions, Sharkey withdrew after having signed for the bout, Meyer says. The first time was in Hartford, Conn., on Jan. 18, 1926, the second was June 16, the same year, in Cleveland, and they then signed to fight in Detroit in August, but this bout also fell through. Sharkey's disinclination to come to the Middle West was given as the reason for the two latter bouts failing, while he did not want to fight under the promoter who was giving the show at Hartford, according to Meyer.

Sharkey arrived last night, and he is scheduled to workout this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the National Gymnasium. Gates went through a workout yesterday afternoon, and he also will work out today.

Other boxes on the card will also go through workouts today and tomorrow. Eddie Goldberg of St. Louis will meet Rex Ripple of New Orleans in a return bout on the 10-round semifinal. Three six-round bouts will bring together Frankie Powers and Fred Hasson, middleweights; Ray Alfano and Eddie Burke, 137-pounders, and Tom Smith and Al McCoy, welterweights.

We intended publishing the names and addresses of everyone who bought an Auburn car during "Show Me Week" in today's newspapers, but that meant leaving out all who bought after Thursday, because that was the newspapers' closing date. Therefore this significant list of names will be published next Sunday.

This Is the Last Day of "SHOW ME WEEK"

Never has there been such public approval of a motor car manufacturer's sincerity and unique selling policy as evidenced in Auburn's "Show Me Week."

Instead of extravagant claims and boastful adjectives, Auburn says: "You know what you want a car to do, and how you want it done. Come and sample the Auburn. If it does not sell itself, you will not be asked to buy."

To give the public an opportunity to "sample" Auburn cars without the slightest obligation, we announced a special "Show Me Week." The result has been amazing. Sales records broken. People have confidence in a company that puts everything up to the car itself to make good. Unnumbered car owners have been attracted to Auburn stores this week. A large percentage of them became owners of Auburn Straight Eights and Sixes. All have gone away with a high regard and a new appreciation of Auburn values. For those who have not availed themselves of "Show Me Week" we invite you to take advantage of this last day.

Carol McDonald Becomes Bride of Dozier Gardner

Impressive Ceremony at Sunset Fills St. Johns Methodist Church to Capacity—Hundreds at Reception.

THE wedding of Miss Carol McDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart McDonald, and one of the prettiest and most popular of this season's long list of debutantes, became the bride at sunset yesterday of Dozier Lee Gardner, son of former Gov. and Mrs. Frederick Dozier Gardner, in an impressive ceremony which filled St. John's Methodist Church to capacity with a beautifully gowned congregation.

Growing plants of cool, summery green banked the altar and clusters of creamy Madonna lilies gave an effective background for the bridal party. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Ivan Lee Holt.

Shades of pale flesh tints varying to deep amethyst in the gowns of the bride's attendants were emphasized in charming relief against the neutral green.

There were two maids of honor, Miss Cornelia Kelley of New York and Miss Florence Ludington, who will be married later this month to William George Weld, both of whom received with the bride at her debut ball last fall. They wore flesh-tinted chiffon, with long, flowing skirts, shorter at one side, and simple bodices with drapery about the shoulders, finished with chiffon girdles. A series of bows of orchid chiffon adorned the gowns at the side back from the shoulder to the hemline and their drooping flesh-tinted hairbraid hats were ornamented with orchid velvet ribbon banding the crowns and bows to match. They carried orchids and white larkspur.

The bride's maids, Miss Janet Gardner, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Elise Whittemore, contemporary debutantes; Miss Virginia

Flower Garden Scene of Wedding of Josephine Boyd

A BEAUTIFUL June wedding took place late yesterday afternoon when Miss Josephine Anthony Boyd, debutante daughter of Mrs. Josephine Drake Boyd of Kirkwood, became the bride of Robert Endres Meyer Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Meyer of 7189 Westmoreland place. The marriage was solemnized in the garden of the Boyd home and was followed by a reception.

Great bowers of crimson ramblers, clusters of dainty Dorothy Perkins roses, yellow lilies and trailing vines of wisteria, all in full bloom, made the garden with its trellises and quaint pergola, a symphony of color. The bridal party wended its way down a garden path over a picturesque rustic bridge to a dais banked in potted plants and palms and adorned in a profusion of hydrangeas in pastel shades, baskets of roses and standards of lilies. The service was read by the Rev. Dr. Francis Bloy of Grace Episcopal Church of Kirkwood, in the presence of a large gathering of guests.

The bride was accompanied to the altar by her sister, Miss Emily Boyd, as maid of honor; Mrs. George Clipner, sister of the bridegroom, as matron of honor; Miss Virginia Brauer, Miss Janet Blanke, Miss Mary Broderick and Miss Erle Harsh, as bridesmaids. Mary Anthony Boyd, who celebrated her eighth birthday on her sister's wedding day, was flower girl and Nancy Richardson and Mary Alice Collins held the ribbons which formed the aisle.

Dr. George Clipner was best man for Mr. Meyer. The groomsmen were Ralph Krause, Albert Rudd, Southwood Morse, Norman Link and William Engelsmann.

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin trimmed in rose point lace used on the wedding gown of her mother. The bodice was adorned in a bertha of the lace and more of it edged the long tight satin sleeves. A bouffant skirt, much longer in the back than in the front, of several layers of tulle, was fashioned over a petticoat of rose point. A court

Miss Dorothy Drew to Wed K. L. Green Jr

THE engagement of Miss Dorothy Drew, attractive young daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Ingham Drew, and Kenneth L. Green Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth L. Green of 47 Westmoreland place, is the most interesting social news announced today. The bethrothal is being made known informally to their friends because of mourning in the family of the prospective bride.

Although by announcing her engagement she has shortened the list of the young women who are scheduled to make their formal bows to society next fall, the wedding will not take place until the winter, giving her a few months of the formal season in which to participate.

Miss Drew is a graduate of Mary Institute and Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Conn. She spent last summer in Europe with her mother. Since the recent passing of Mrs. Drew she has made her home at 4915 Argyle place, chaperoned by Mrs. Charles Scott McKinney.

Mr. Green was educated at the Lamrenceville School in Lawrenceville, N. J., and Westminster Academy, and is now associated in business with his father.

Former St. Louis Debutante Weds In Pennsylvania

Miss Mary Carter Davis of Westport, Conn., Becomes Bride of William Ernest Parke II of West Chester.

ADDED to the imposing array of early summer weddings is that of Miss Mary Carter Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. L. Davis of Westport, Conn., formerly of St. Louis, and William Ernest Parke II, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Parke of West Chester, Pa. The marriage took place yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the garden of Daystar, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Davis. The Rev. Dr. William Schroeder officiated and the ceremony was followed by a wedding supper in the garden for 30 guests.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. J. Soulard Cates of Trenton, N. J., formerly of St. Louis, as matron of honor and the following bridesmaids: Miss Catherine Davis, sister of the bride; Miss Eva Parke of West Chester, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Anne Carter and Mrs. Llwellyn Price of Philadelphia; Miss Mary Jane Turner of St. Louis and Miss Bertha Bates of New York.

Mr. Parke had as his best man his brother, Arthur T. Parke Jr., and the ushers were Gibbons Cornwell of West Chester, Owen Wister and Robert Oliphant of Philadelphia, Penn McGrann of Lancaster, Pa.; Irving Angell of Springfield, Mass., and Esmond Gardner of New York.

The bride was gowned in ivory satin made with a plain tight bodice and long satin sleeves. The skirt, short in front, was fashioned of tiers that formed a train. A second train depended from her shoulders and was weighted with garlands of orange blossoms. Her veil was of tulle, combined with rose-point lace.

The matron of honor wore a gown of a delicate shade of pink chiffon, with a picture hat of hairbraid to match. The bridesmaids were in yellow chiffon and wore large pink

Carol McDonald Bride Of Dozier Gardner

Simmons of New York, formerly of St. Louis, and Miss Virginia Davis of Cincinnati were gowned in orchid chiffon after a model similar to the gowns of the maids of honor, with amethyst bows and hats of amethyst hairbraid trimmed with orchid velvet to match their gowns. Their flowers were Pernet roses and lavender larkspur, combined with gopsyphelia.

The bride wore an imported white satin gown made simple in a straight-line mode, with a scalloped skirt, shorter in front, and ending in a built-in train, scalloped in a three-petal clover effect and weighted with a bowknot of orange blossoms. The entire skirt and train was bordered in white chiffon picoted in silver. Seed pearls outlined the neckline, which was finished with flanges of chiffon, edged in silver. They were long, close-fitting pearl-edged sleeves. She wore her mother's wedding veil of point applique lace over a second veil of tulle edged in silver and caught to her hair with a lace cap, adorned at either side with clusters of orange blossoms. She carried lilies of the valley and gardenias, and wore as her wedding jewelry a diamond and platinum brooch, given her by her husband, and a string of pearls, her mother's wedding gift.

William King Gardner was his brother's best man, and the groomsmen were Richard Orthwein, James W. Smith, William G. Brumder of Milwaukee, Burton Mudge Jr. of Chicago and G. Keller Burbridge of New York.

A reception for several hundred guests followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. McDonald, 24 Washington terrace, which had been converted into a veritable garden of flowers. The receiving line stood in the library before the great mantel, which was covered from ceiling to floor with climbing Dorothy Perkins roses, making a flowering bower.

Each room had its own color scheme. More than 700 yellow roses were used in adorning the dining room. In the large reception hall the pink roses were combined with blue delphinium. The bridal dinner was served in the music room, known as the gold room, where pink roses trailed over the mirror, and the large oval table, seating 20 guests, was adorned with a centerpiece of lilies of the valley and larkspur with gypsophelia, surrounded by eight silver containers filled with valley lilies interspersed with butterfly roses.

The buffet supper for the remainder of the guests was served on the lawn surrounding the house, which was inclosed in a canvas marquee and adorned to simulate a garden tearoom. The walls were covered with smilax and the ceiling hung with trailing baskets of summer flowers. Small tables for the convenience of the guests were set about at intervals.

Mrs. Gardner gave her attendants beaded bags in the pastel shades and her husband gave his groomsmen gold belt buckles.

Mr. and Mrs. Gardner will sail on the Aquitania June 20 for a wedding trip in Europe, and upon their return in August will make their home at 6227 Rosebury drive.

The bride made her debut at a ball given last October at her home. She is a graduate of Mary Institute and the Westover School in Connecticut. Mr. Gardner is a graduate of Jrinceton University, and is a member of the Racquet Club, the Bridle Spur Club and the Bellerive Country Club.

hosts. The dinner will be given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee, 34 North Kingshighway. The following evening Mr. and Mrs. Boyle O. Rodes of the Greystone Apartments, will give a picnic supper at their cottage, near the St. Louis Country Club grounds. Miss Anne Sipple, a member of the wedding party, will give a dinner and dance Wednesday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Sipple, in Brentmoor, and Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Mepham will entertain the wedding party and out-of-town guests at dinner at their home, to be followed by a box party at the Municipal Theater. A mixed luncheon will be given Thursday afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. Warren Goddard of Brentmoor, who will entertain at the Log Cabin Country Club, and a similar affair will be given the following day by Mr. and Mrs. Lee at the Bellerive Country Club.

The prospective bridegroom's parents, Judge and Mrs. William Nevin Appel of Lancaster, Pa., his brothers-in-law and sisters, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Armstrong of Lancaster, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hartly of Germantown, Pa., and his sister, Miss Emily Rachel Appel of Lancastter, are guests at the Kingsway Hotel. Miss Rachel Appel, another sister of the bridegroom, who will be a bridesmaid, is being entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mepham.

Two out-of-town bridesmaids will arrive tomorrow. They are Miss Alice Rodes of Bowling Green, Ky., who will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Goddard and their daughter, Miss Louise Goddard, and Miss Marie Louise Hanson of Philadelphia, who will be the guest of Miss Anne Lipple.

Miss Parsons and William A. Gill of Cleveland, O., who will be married Wednesday, will be the guests of honor at a buffet supper this evening to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Leo De Smet Garton at the Florissant Valley Country Club. Monday afternoon and evening the prospective bride and bridegroom and the members of their wedding party will be guests at a party to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Neil O'Day at the Meramec Canoe Club. Miss Elizabeth Tupper and Miss Marie Carr Taylor will give a buffet supper at the home of Miss Tupper's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Tupper, Wydown boulevard and University lane, Tuesday evening.

Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Miss Florence Bemis Ludington, daughter of Elliot Kingman Ludington of New York and William George Weld, to take place next Saturday at 6 o'clock in the evening in the garden of the home of Miss Ludington's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Donaldson L. Lambert, at Price and Ladue roads.

Among the out-of-town guests will be Mrs. Joseph Ramsey Brown of Dallas, Tex., and her daughter, Miss Margaret Brown, who will be at the home of Mrs. Brown's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William K. Stanard, of Brentmoor; Miss Catherine Ashbrook of Wilmington, Del., who will also visit Miss Ludington; Mr. and Mrs. Francis H. Ludington of Pelham Manor, N. R., brother and sister-in-law, and Elliot K. Ludington of New York, father of the bride, will arrive tomorrow and will be guests at Hotel Chase.

WHY— Nestle Circuline is Called the Only Scientific Wave in Existence

THE most skilled hairdressers in America will tell you that the Nestle Circuline Process is the one method of permanent waving based on the vital fact that human hair differs with the individual.

And they will tell you that only with Nestle Circuline can you be positive that your hair will be waved with the exact lotion it must have for a perfect permanent. For Circuline does not rely on one waving lotion to meet the needs of all types of hair— it provides ten different lotions! And ten are necessary, for science divides hair into ten distinct classifications.

Realize, then, that you must insist on Circulines for the supreme protection which Circulines alone can give you. Not only do they assure a perfect wave — they safeguard the future beauty of your hair, for they contain no ammonia, no borax, nothing which can harm the hair. Read below how you may quickly recognize genuine Circulines.

GENUINE Nestle Circulines are little cigarette-like tubes wrapped in glassine paper and stamped with the name "Nestle Circuline," and its number.

You will see your hair-dresser immerse them — one for each curl—in a beaker of clear, fresh water. She will be glad to explain to you exactly the reasons "why."

NESTLE Circuline PERMANENT WAVE

Women will soon read more about the Text-o-meter, a brilliant new invention for testing hair, Created by Mr. C. Nestle, originator of permanent waving. Both the Text-o-meter and Nestle Circuline are approved by the Society for the Advancement of Hair and Beauty Science.

Tuberculosis Day Ball Game, July 19

THE fourteenth annual Tuberculosis day celebration, in which hundreds of young girls and society matrons will participate, will be held July 19 at Sportsman's Park. The Cardinals and Phillies will play for the fifth time as the big event of the day, and more than a thousand entertainers will participate in the many other events.

The hundreds of young girls, dressed in gayly-colored costumes and chaperoned by society matrons, will circulate among the stands distributing educational souvenir cards as usual. These programs will contain the schedule of events, activities of the society, and will give educational health messages.

Spectacular flag drills, acrobatic stunts, gymnastic feats, band concerts, fencing exhibitions and other novelties are planned. There will also be 30,000 presents, including an automobile, donated for the occasion.

Tuberculosis day helps finance the society's public health work in both city and county.

HOBELMAN FUNERAL SERVICES TO BE HELD THIS AFTERNOON

He Was Sales Promotion Manager for Nugent Drygoods Company.

Funeral services for John H. Hobelman, sales promotion manager and publicity director of B. Nugent & Bro. Drygoods Co., who died at his home, 4406 McPherson avenue, Friday night, will be held at the Wagoner Undertaking Parlors, 3621 Olive street, at 5 o'clock this afternoon. The body will then be taken to Cincinnati, his former home, for burial Monday.

Mr. Hobelman was 53 years old. He had been ill of cancer for a year but had remained at his desk until a month ago. Born in Cincinnati, he started with Nugent's as a salesman in 1903, becoming publicity director 10 years ago.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. B. B. Hobelman of St. Louis, and the father, A. L. Hobelman; two brothers, H. A. and L. C. Hobelman, and a sister, Mrs. A. K. Thomas, all of Cincinnati.

CLUB TO MEET ON SNAGBOAT

The Propeller Club, Port of St. Louis, will hold its regular luncheon meeting on the snagboat McComb, at the foot of Cherokee street, as guests of Maj. John C. Gotwals, at 12:15 p. m., tomorrow. Afterwards, club members will inspect the boat, Tecumseh, which is a new Diesel electric type.

The principal speaker will be James E. Smith, who will discuss the Dennison bill, the flood control bill and work done by Congress in the last session in the interest of the appropriation for western rivers.

AIR BOARD PARTY TO DEPART THIS WEEK FOR EUROPE

125 in Delegation Leaving Wednesday in Special Train for New York — Sailing Date June 22.

EIGHT COUNTRIES ON THE ITINERARY

Study of Foreign Aviation Methods Designed to Give Impetus to Movement in St. Louis.

With one purpose in mind—to establish St. Louis as the aviation capital of America—a delegation of air-minded St. Louisans will leave here Wednesday morning on a two-months' trip to Europe, where they will study foreign aviation developments.

The party will comprise 125 persons, more than 100 of whom are St. Louisans, members of the Air Board of the Chamber of Commerce, and their families. The balance, from various parts of the country, are friends of Chamber of Commerce members, who are interested in the advancement of the aeronautical industry.

Sponsored by the Air Board, the main tour includes visits to France, Belgium, Holland and England. A number of extensions which have been arranged will carry some of the delegates to Germany, Switzerland, Russia and Italy. Much of the European travel will be by airplane.

Of Great Commercial Import.

From the standpoint of serious commercial significance the Air Mission, according to Walter B. Weisenburger, president of the Chamber of Commerce, is the most important delegation the Chamber has sent forth.

"The trip," said Weisenburger, "has already attracted wide national attention as the first American city to send its citizens to Europe for aviation ideas. Indications from abroad point to an impressive reception and one that will open every official channel for the intimate study of air and commercial conditions. Prearranged audiences in this respect have already been made with foreign leaders for the Air Board's smaller official group which will give most of its time to this phase of the trip."

Depart at 10:30 A. M. Wednesday.

Leaving St. Louis at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday aboard a special train of the Pennsylvania Railroad, the delegates will arrive in Washington at 9:30 the following morning. During their two-hour stay in the capital they will participate in a "Spirit of St. Louis" ceremony at the Smithsonian Institution, near the spot where Lindbergh's monoplane now rests. The program will be brief, consisting of addresses by Harold M. Bixby, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce, and one of Lindbergh's principal backers, and Clarence M. Young, Director of Aeronautics, United States Department of Commerce. Young was formerly Lindbergh's commanding officer in the Reserve Corps. The building will be closed to the public during the ceremony. Seats are to be provided under the wings of Lindbergh's trans-Atlantic plane.

To Be in New York 32 Hours.

The St. Louisans will leave Washington at 11:30 a. m., arriving in New York at 4:10 p. m. the same day. Although no program has been arranged for their 32-hour stay in New York, some members of the party are anticipating a visit to Roosevelt Field, where Lindbergh took off for Paris in May, 1927, and a flight over the city. The party will sail at midnight, June 22, on the Red Star liner S. S. Lapland, arriving in Cherbourg July 1.

From the day they debark in France the delegates will be confronted with a round of business—an intensive study of air routes, equipment and general layout of airports and of the highly developed methods of combatting fog with neon lights. The aviation developments, of which they learn in Europe, they expect to apply locally in the proposed construction of the $2,000,000 municipal airport at Lambert-St. Louis Flying Field.

Will Follow Lindbergh's Trail.

The visitors will proceed directly to Paris after landing in Cherbourg, and throughout their main trip will follow the trail blazed more than a year ago by Lindbergh. Of prime importance in their French program, which will be terminated on July 7, is an inspection of Le Bourget Flying Field. They will also participate in an Independence Day ceremony at the American cemetery at Belleau Wood. Ambassador Herrick has requested the St. Louisans to place a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in the Arc de Triomphe on the morning of July 4.

Due in London July 11.

During their two-day visit in Brussels, July 8-9, the delegates will be occupied chiefly with an inspection of airports and in interviews with foreign aeronautical authorities.

Those who proceed to Amsterdam, and thence to London by train and boat, will leave Brussels the evening of July 9, stopping in Amsterdam July 10 and arriving in London the following day. That afternoon they will go to Croydon Flying Field to welcome a special committee of the Air Board, members of which plan to fly from Brussels to London. After a four-day program in London, those who participate only in the main trip will sail from Southampton on July 15 on the United States liner S. S. America, arriving in New York July 24.

Harold Bixby and Stanley Clarke, chairman of the Air Board, will participate in one of the most extensive airplane trips of the tour. They will fly from Paris to Basle, Switzerland; to Friedrichshaven, Munich, Berlin, Moscow and back to Berlin. After returning to the German city they will continue their flight to London, arriving there July 14. During their journey they will keep an elaborate log, noting types of planes best suited for cross-country passenger trafic and emergency landing and lighting facilities provided along the routes.

Christening the Liner St. Louis.

Those members of the Air Board who go to Germany, as well as other St. Louisans who are touring that country this summer, will be in Hamburg, Aug. 2, to witness the christening of the new Hamburg-American liner, St. Louis. A committee of St. Louisans, headed by Edward A. Fausch, has raised $1000 to pay for a painting which will be presented to the steamship line. It is being painted by a St. Louis artist and will depict Eads Bridge, the "Spirit of St. Louis" and the Memorial Plaza of public buildings now in process of completion here. The painting is to be hung in the ship's salon.

Carl F. G. Meyer, vice chairman of the Research and Survey Committee of the Air Board, and a past president of the Chamber of Commerce, is one of the delegates who plan to visit Germany.

Invitations for Dirigible Builders.

While in Friedrichshaven delegated members of the Air Board will invite Count von Eckener, builder of the LZ-127, large German dirigible for which an American flight is planned this fall, to anchor the ship at Scott Field, Belleville, Ill., where a mooring mast has been completed.

It is one of the few places in this country where a ship the size of the LZ-127 can be tied up. A similar invitation will be extended the builders of the RS-100, English dirigible, for which an American flight is likewise planned. Authorization for both ships to anchor at Scott Field mast has been granted by Secretary of War Davis.

Organized last January to advance aviation in St. Louis, the Air Board has a membership of more than 200. Among its major purpose are: Development of airports, building up the aeronautical industry in St. Louis, surveying

MAGNETISME!

Now she is gay...alluring!

IMPOSSIBLE that he had ever considered her ordinaire! This night, she fairly scintillates . . . she is so gay, so vivacious. A calla-lily turned flaming peony! Is she bewitched . . . or has she unearthed some magic love philter?

Certainement she has discovered a love philter. A secret of magnétisme long known to the sophisticated Parisienne . . . the power of a single, unforgetable fragrance! A parfum of romance . . . of witchery . . . of moon-lit moods. It is Djer-Kiss . . . the creation of Monsieur Kerkoff, master parfumeur of Paris.

So intensely does the knowing Parisienne value this inimitable fragrance that she refuses to blend it with other scents—fearful lest she sacrifice one iota of its charm. She insists upon Djer-Kiss for her parfum, her poudre, her talcum, her rouge . . .! A single harmonizing motive . . . fascinating—magnétique!

She had removed her mask. Could this be she—she whom he had always thought dull—colorless? Tonight she was ravishing—magnétique. What was the secret of her new fascination?

RED CROSS WILL START FREE LIFE SAVING CLASSES MONDAY

They Are Part of 1928 Campaign to Prevent Drownings.

The St. Louis chapter, American Red Cross, will start free instruction in life saving in municipal pools tomorrow as a feature of the 1928 campaign to prevent drownings. Reuben W. Tapperson, Municipal Supervisor of Recreation, is co-operating in the "water safety" movement with the Red Cross.

The first class starts at the Marquette pool, Osage street and Minnesota avenue, when instruction will be given to girls and women from 6 to 7 p. m. tomorrow. Another class for women will be held every Friday from 6 to 7 p. m. at the Sherman Park pool. Classes for men and boys will be held every Tuesday from 6 to 7 p. m. at Sherman Park Pool, and every Wednesday at the same hour at the Marquette pool.

Fred Potthoff and Mrs. Josephine Potthoff, who hold a number of records for swimming, will have charge of the classes. The course will run all summer and thorough instruction will be given in all phases of life-saving work. Examinations will be held from time to time, and Red Cross Life Saving certificates and emblems will be awarded those who are proficient.

Close-Up of Herbert Hoover -- Mathematician in Politics

How Curtis Rode Up From the Plains of Kansas to the Senate

Republican Nominee Distinguished by Capacity for Grand Scale Achievements and Mathematical Precision of His Mental Processes—Weak on the Stump but Fascinating in Conversation—Knows Foreign Affairs Like a Book.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 16.

TO begin with, it is not possible to describe Herbert Hoover by relating him to some historical figure. It has been said of Senator Reed of Missouri that he is the spiritual successor to Andrew Jackson, and of Gov. Smith that he is "the modern, urban Abraham Lincoln." Somewhere in the annals of New England one might discover the prototype of Calvin Coolidge. No resort to the past can help us to an understanding of Hoover. He is a completely new phenomenon in politics.

Not only that, but he is a complete incongruity in politics. Between Hoover and any outstanding figure on the political stage that you might name there is a vast difference. Consider for example, the candidates whom he defeated for the presidential nomination: Lowden, Curtis, Watson, Goff. These are typical politicians. They talk the political language. In what fundamental respect is any of them akin to Herbert Hoover? They are no more like Hoover than they are like Henry Ford or John D. Rockefeller. I say this without meaning to disparage either the old style politician or Mr. Hoover, but simply to emphasize a fact which has now, by virtue of Hoover's candidacy for President, come to have immense importance to the whole nation.

Supremely Sensitive to Adverse Criticism.

Does that fact carry the promise of a good administration or the threat of a bad one if Hoover should be elected President? Time alone can answer that question. Some of the Republicans who fought Mr. Hoover bitterly up to the time of the landslide at the late convention, and who in their hearts never will be reconciled to his success, will tell you that a Hoover administration would suffer from his lack of a political background. These critics vision him as a man supersensitive to criticism; a man whose ability to get things done by Congress would be seriously impaired by his personal resentment of the fire that every President must expect from his opponents. Hoover's friends share the view that he is excessively thin skinned, though they don't, of course, agree that this quality would be likely to militate against his success as President.

Even so friendly a biographer as William Hard lays stress on Hoover's sensitiveness and implies the wish that it may be outgrown.

"To indurated Washingtonians," writes Hard in his campaign book about Hoover, "who can without a quiver hear one another accused of everything from cheating one's baby brother out of his inheritance to stealing old mantel pieces out of the basement of the Capitol, Hoover's behavior when he is under the tiniest drumfire of personal charges seems ignominious and ridiculous.

"He actually minds these charges. He collects the clippings containing them, he broods over them. He sends emissaries to his attackers to explain the righteousness of the events which they have misinterpreted. He does everything except the one thing that Washington could understand. He does everything except attack his attackers and charge them with something worse than the things with which they have charged him.

"He simply genuinely suffers, and then simply, peacefully and scientifically labors to establish his innocence. An advantage for him may some day, it is true, emerge from the fact that nobody will ever be able to remember any personal outrage committed by Hoover upon friend or upon enemy. Hoover has blackened nobody's reputation, assassinated nobody's character, nobody's at all. His political inoffensiveness may some day more than counterbalance his lack of skill in political self defense."

The criticism is often made by his detractors that he is "the most over-pressagented man in the world." Perhaps he has been over-advertised, but that has not been his fault. He has been no more advertised than any other man with a comparable record of accomplishment would have been. Hoover has done tremendous things, and the advertising of him has followed in the natural course of events. Tremendous things, like the feeding of the Belgians, and interesting things as well.

Hoover and His Wife Translated Latin Work on Metals.

In the agricultural experiment station at Fairbanks, Alaska, the Harding party in 1923 came across an English translation of Georgius Agricola's "De Re Metallica," which was written in the Latin of the sixteenth century. The translation was by Herbert Hoover and Lou Henry Hoover, his wife. They had worked it out together in odd hours over a long period. Many of the Latin words had been invented by Georgius Agricola to describe things and ideas which were just then coming within the field of knowledge. As these words were in no Latin dictionaries, the Hoovers had to work out their meaning

Hoover's Position on Outstanding Issues

THE War Debts: In a speech at Toledo, O., in the campaign of 1922, Hoover declared against the cancellation of the war debts on the ground, among others, that such action would be unfair to American taxpayers. This was his position as a member of the American commission which negotiated the debt settlements.

The Tariff: Hoover has upheld the protective tariff on numerous occasions. "The tariff," he said in a radio speech in 1924, "is a protection to labor, it is a protection to the farmer." He declared in 1926 that under the Fordney-McCumber law the United States had come into "fullest measure of prosperity that the world has ever witnessed."

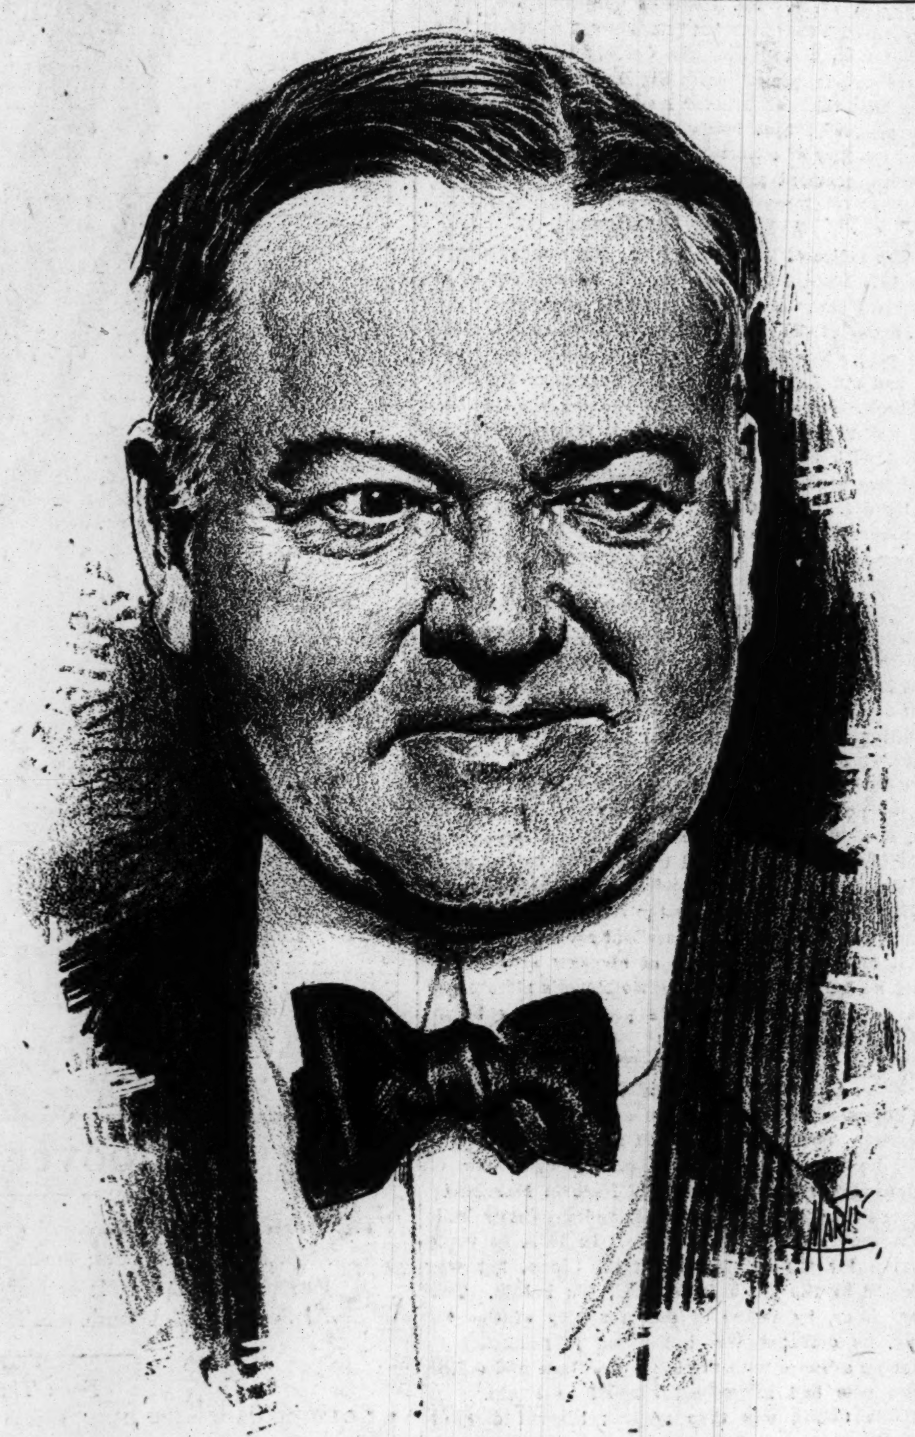
Government Ownership: Hoover has often expressed opposition to the government-in-business principle. The following excerpt from a campaign speech of 1926 is typical of his views on this subject. "The Republican party holds to the protection of public interest by regulation of private enterprise in public utilities. It does not believe in the deadening hand of operation by government bureaucracy. The Republican party has challenged socialism with a new twentieth century American individualism, and we are ready to compare six years' experience in recovery and prosperity with every country which has been infected with these policies. The Republican party has no hesitation in challenging any political party which openly adopts them." Hoover makes an exception, however, of the Swing-Johnson Boulder Dam bill, which would permit the Government to build and operate power transmission lines if it should not be able to enter into satisfactory leases with private interests. This bill is supported also by Secretary Work of the Interior Department. Hoover has taken no public position on the Norris Muscle Shoals bill unless his blanket indorsement of the Coolidge policies may be construed as approval of the President's opposition to it.

Waterways: Hoover is for a program of large inland waterways development. As chairman of a commission to study the possibilities of routes for seagoing vessels from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic seaboard, he championed the St. Lawrence route against the so-called all-American waterway. A resolution authorizing the President to appoint commissioners to confer with Canadian commissioners on the international questions involved is now pending before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. The proposed shipway would save Northwestern farmers an immense sum in freight rates.

League of Nations: He was for the the League with the Republican reservations—the position taken by the majority of the Senate Republicans. In 1920, with 30 other distinguished Republicans, he signed a manifesto declaring that the best way to take the United States into the League was to elect Harding.

Prohibition: He is dry, personally and politically.

Farm Relief: He was first to advocate a Federal farm board and among the early advocates of groups or committees to supervise commodity marketing. He is against the equalization fee.



HERBERT HOOVER.

How War-Time Wheat Prices Were Fixed

IN REPLY to repeated charges that Herbert Hoover as food administrator during the war fixed the price of wheat at a level unfair to the American farmer, the following statement was issued last October by Dr. Harry A. Garfield, president of Williams College, who was chairman of President Wilson's war-time Fair Price Committee.

"As chairman of the commission appointed by President Wilson to determine the price of wheat for the 1917 crop, I have carefully preserved the data upon which the findings of the commission were based. Mr. Hoover had absolutely no part in this matter other than to urge upon President Wilson that some action be taken to protect the American farmer.

"In order that this controversy should be settled with finality, I have laid this matter before the surviving farmer members of the Fair Price Commission—Mr. Charles Barrett, president of the Farmers' Union; Mr. L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange; Mr. E. D. Funk, at that time president of the Corn Growers' Association, and Mr. W. J. Shorthill, secretary of the Farmers' Co-operative Elevators Association. These gentlemen welcomed the opportunity to sign the attached statement, in which I, together with Dr. F. W. Taussig, the Economist member, also concur. (The statement referred to is the same as Dr. Garfield's, with additional details.)

"The occasion for the determination of a fair price," continued Dr. Garfield, "arose from the fact that the allied governments had consolidated their buying agencies into one hand, and through this buying power over the surplus controlled the price of American wheat the moment that exports of the new crop should begin."

"The allied buying agencies considered that they should not pay more than $1.50 to $1.80 for American wheat. They advanced the argument that abundant wheat existed in the Argentine and Australia at prices ranging from $1.25 to $1.50 per bushel, and the further fact that they had fixed the price to their own farmers at about $1.80 a bushel; that the only reason for purchasing American wheat was to free allied ships from the long voyages to the Southern Hemisphere in order that they might carry American troops, and they, therefore, did not consider that they should pay in excess of these prices.

"It was solely to protect the American farmers from this situation that Mr. Hoover presented to President Wilson the necessity for some action. President Wilson appointed the commission, directly under himself, to determine the matter, and the commission unanimously determined $2.20 at Chicago as a fair price. The Congress had fixed the Government price for the 1918 crop at 20 cents less—that is, $2 per bushel.

"Mr. Hoover was not a member of the commission and took no part in its deliberations or conclusions."

One of the nonsurviving members of the commission was Henry J. Waters, for years the dean of the Agricultural College of the University of Missouri and later the president of the Kansas Agricultural College.

There is also of record a statement by President Wilson, Aug. 30, 1917, in which he said: "The price now recommended by that, the Fair Price Committee, $2.20 per bushel, at Chicago for the basic grade will be rigidly adhered to by the food administration. Mr. Hoover, at his express wish, has taken no part in the deliberations of the committee on whose recommendation I determined the Government's fair price, nor has he in any way intimated an opinion regarding that price."

Candidate for Vice President In Public Life 44 Years Is a Regular of Regulars

Charles Curtis of Kansas

By Charles G. Ross

Reprinted From the Outlook of May 16 by Special Permission

(Copyright, 1928.)

THE name of Charles Curtis of Kansas, majority leader of the Senate, is a synonym for party regularity. Political storms of great violence — populism, silverism, progressivism — have swept the Kansas prairies in his time, but none of them has shaken him from his moorings. Through his third of a century in the House and Senate he has planted both feet on the party platform, waved aloft the banner of protection for industry and the farmer, and stood fast for Government by regular Republicans in the tried and regular way. He is the most conspicuous Western outpost of Eastern conservative political thought.

He will continue to be intensely regular; men do not change their habits of mind at 69, which will be Curtis' age in March, 1929. Among the Presidents he would be classed with McKinley.

For a safe and sane candidate, Curtis had a singularly romantic early career. On his mother's side he traces his ancestry back through White Plume, chief of the Kaw tribe of Kansas Indians, to the famous Pawhuska, chief of the Osage tribe. White Plume's granddaughter married Louis Pappan, a French trader, and their daughter, Ellen Pappan, married the adventurous descendant of a New England family, who became Capt. Curtis in the Civil War. Charles Curtis was born of this union—Jan. 25, 1860, at Topeka, Kan.

In Paul Revere Role.

His mother died when he was 3 years old, and he was taken in charge by his grandmother Pappan, who lived on the Indian reservation 60 miles west of Topeka. The Senator has some vivid memories of those early days among his grandmother's people. Once when the Cheyennes went on the warpath he was the youthful Paul Revere, though not on horseback, who went miles across the plains at night to summon aid.

Again, there was the year of the great grasshopper plague, when his wise grandmother Pappan, as he recalls with gratitude, persuaded him that he ought to stay in school rather than join an exodus to the Indian Territory. He sold fruit at trains and worked in stores to get money to keep himself in school.

Before he was 9 he became a jockey. He must have been a good one, for the owner of Tilden, a famous Kansas horse of those days, gave him a regular job. He toured the Southwest with Tilden, meeting all comers and never losing a race. The racing of that period was a haphazard but none the less serious business. Meets were arranged at any convenient place to bring together the fancied horses of rival owners or communities, and the stakes ran high.

Inducement to Win.

Curtis recalls that at a race down in Texas the man for whom he was riding called him over for final instructions. The owner was seated with a rifle across his knees.

"Son," he said, "the last dollar I have in the world is on this race. If you don't win don't stop when you cross the finish line. Keep right on going."

Curtis won.

At 16 Curtis was about to quit school entirely for his riding, when another grandmother intervened. This time it was Permelia Hubbard Curtis of New Hampshire, who set him on the road to the Senate and a presidential candidacy. On her advice, he gave up racing and buckled down to his books. A year or so later he was a reporter on the North Topeka Times. At 19 he began to read law in a Topeka office. The financial going was rough, and he was tempted more than once to return to the track.

Finally he hit upon a way to make money. A livery-stable keeper of his acquaintance had an unused hack and a spavined horse. Curtis owned a horse equally spavined. He rented the outfit from the stable, added his own animal, and set up as a hack proprietor. Success became assured when the politicians who frequented the old Copeland House in Topeka took a fancy to Curtis' disreputable-looking rig and began to patronize it to the exclusion of others. He read law books while waiting for fares. The venture enabled him to keep on with his studies and gave him his first contacts with politicians. He drove the hack for two years, at the end of which time he was admitted to the bar and began practice.

Elected by Wets.

In 1884, when he was 24 years old, Curtis began a career of office-holding that has suffered only one brief interruption. His first post was that of Prosecuting Attorney of Shawnee County—and thereby hangs a tale.

Prohibition had come to Kansas, but it was not being enforced. A hundred saloons flourished in Topeka without interference. To make sure that this happy condition would not be disturbed, the wet faction decided to run young Charlie Curtis, ex-hacker, for prosecutor. Curtis told them that if elected, he would enforce the law, and he added that he knew how to enforce it. They laughed. Nothing could be funnier than the idea of Charlie Curtis, their good friend, putting the saloons out of business. He was merely indulging in a little Kansas humor. So it seemed to both sides, for the drys voted against Curtis and the wets voted for him and put him over.

Curtis had no sooner been installed in office than he began bringing charges against the Topeka joint-keepers. When the first case came on for trial, the case that would test the sincerity of his pre-election statement, the courtroom was packed. Even then it didn't seem possible to the wets that Curtis would carry out his threat. The drys were equally skeptical. On seeing the young Prosecutor allow several known wets to remain in the jury box, the drys groaned and several of their leaders marched out of the room in disgust, convinced that the case was lost before it started.

Curtis' speech surprised everybody; it was something wholly new in the annals of prohibition enforcement in Topeka. He indulged in no moral homilies, but based his demand for conviction solely on the fact that prohibition was the law of the State. The jury returned a verdict of guilty, whereupon the other defendants came forward, pleaded guilty, and threw themselves on the mercy of the Court. Within 30 days Curtis had closed every saloon in the city, and they stayed closed throughout his four years as Prosecutor.

To Congress in 1893.

Curtis was elected to the Congress of 1893-4, and with the exception of two years he has served continuously ever since. Promotion to the Senate came in 1907. His one defeat was in 1912, the year of the Bull Moose uprising, when, although he received the popular vote of his party, he carried an insufficient number of districts to win the nomination. The law was changed the next year to provide for nomination by the direct vote of the people, and in 1914 Curtis staged his comeback, at the expense of Senator Bristow. He was the whip of the Republican majority under Senator Lodge, and after the death of the latter in 1924 was chosen leader.

Search the Congressional Record and you will find few speeches by Curtis. When he does speak on the floor, it is rarely for more than a minute or two. Both in Kansas politics and in the Senate he gets his results by the private and confidential putting together of a few heads. He has been called—and is—the greatest whisperer in the Senate. When most Senators whisper, they are merely telling what Pat said to Mike; when Curtis whispers, he may be arranging a deal with the opposition, or telling how the next vote in the Senate will result, or conveying some message he has received from the White House—conveying just as much of it as he thinks his listener ought to hear.

In spite of the fewness of his words, or perhaps of it, Curtis has left his impress on Congress and the country. One of his first chances to make a mark was given him in the House by "Czar" Reed, whose favor he had gained by his native shrewdness and his

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress or reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

Florida, It Seems, Is Doing Nicely.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR editorial entitled "Rents in Miami," in your issue of June 10, contains so many misstatements of facts and is so misleading that I see no justification for it. The part which you copy from The Nation is substantially correct. It is true that rents are low in Miami and throughout Florida, lower than in 1925 and 1926, as a result of a general readjustment of values which has taken place following the so-called "boom;" but it is not true that Florida is broke. Records in all lines show that the State is in excellent condition.

For example, the speculation in real estate really ended during the fall of 1925, yet during the past year building permits issued for the city of Jacksonville alone averaged better than $1,000,000 a month, and during the year 1926 (after the boom), the total valuation of new building for this city amounted to $21,393,945. Neither is the State overbuilt. We have witnessed a tremendous amount of building and development during the past five years, particularly in the magic city of Miami, but our percentage of vacancies is no greater than elsewhere in the country. I have friends and relatives in St. Louis and Chicago who own apartment houses and other rental properties and all of them are complaining of vacancies, so the condition is national and by no means limited to this State.

For another example, the State is rapidly completing the greatest highway system to be found anywhere in the country, yet the State has no bonded indebtedness. The roads are being paid for as they are built; and the State now has over $6,000,000 in its treasury. As to the financial condition of its citizenry, let me cite the fact that Florida banks now have approximately $50,000,000 on call in New York.

The State is not wholly dependent on the winter tourist trade, as you infer, although the ever-increasing tourist trade is a valuable asset. This is a highly productive state, not in one line, but in many lines, such as farming and fruit growing, lumber and naval stores, phosphate mining, manufacturing and fishing.

Furthermore, even in the summer time, the people of Florida are not suffering from "the burning tropical heat." The records show that the average year-around temperature for Miami is 73 degrees, Daytona Beach is 71 degrees and Jacksonville is approximately 69 degrees. This means that the temperature is moderate all the year. Sunstroke is unknown in Florida, yet we have the greatest blessing of all—an abundance of clear, blue sky, no smoke, no dust, no mud and plenty of sunlight.

That Shot of Whisky.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I NOTICED the other day in glancing over the editorial page a short article about the trans-Pacific flyers taking a shot of whisky. Because they did this and because they did a great thing in connection with it, your paper immediately pounces upon it as another poor excuse for repealing the eighteenth amendment. Does the chap who wrote that stuff know that the flyers took perhaps very little and that they are not regular addicts? Does he think that for a minute four drunken aviators could hope to span the Pacific? The eighteenth amendment was enacted chiefly for the fellow who doesn't know when he's had enough, not for the man who takes a little snack such as in the instance cited by the editorial.

Lost Money in Bank Failure.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I READ your paper with pleasure and like the Pulitzer platform. The article on Mr. Coolidge and Congress, reprinted June 5 from the New Republic, has strong endorsement, but I think you will allow every voter "the unceasing exercise of good judgment guided by a clear and patriotic conception of what the perpetuity of our institutions demands."

American agriculture is not so rotten as some suppose, but it is burdened by conditions and discriminations illustrated by my personal experience. Sometime I needed a little money to help me and I had to borrow. I wanted to put a small farm in cultivation and I put the necessary funds in the Public Mercantile National Bank in 1915. The fact that it was a national bank made me feel safe. I was not allowed interest on the deposit. The bank was pronounced insolvent, a receiver appointed. Occasionally a dividend was declared, but the final divvy left about $200 deficit.

Now if Congress or the McNary-Haugen advocates or any other party will pay me this deficit with interest for 13 years, I will release all persons from all farm aid or obligation to me for all time to come.

MR. COOLIDGE IN HISTORY.

As he observed the Kansas City convention in the joint role of participant and reporter William Allen White became more and more impressed with the political acumen and intrinsic greatness of Mr. Coolidge. That cryptic "I do not choose" sent out from Rapid City last August was not a Yankee colloquialism, as so many New England pundits learnedly explained. Nor was it a Caesarian declination concealing the fond hope that the crown would be thrust upon him. Here was a rare political acumen. Here was clairvoyant knowledge of what was going to be. Mr. Coolidge foresaw a convention which, had he let loose the reins, might nominate a candidate and adopt a platform which would, in effect, be a repudiation of his administration; and, with success at the November polls, a party succession that would adventure into strange paths far from the safe, secure land of the Coolidge policies.

It was a prophet, Mr. White avers, who delivered that Delphic utterance. It was a master politician who still retained control of his party's destiny by keeping himself, through the possibility of renomination, dominantly in the equation. And only the "iron will of a Roosevelt or a Grant" could have withstood the cajoleries and importunities of party leaders and the harangues of the critics to remove the aura of doubt and, in unequivocal language, eliminate himself as a factor.

All this Mr. White has written into the laconic "I do not choose." More, too. Mr. Coolidge, he perceives, has studied the fate of his predecessors. He has seen how Cleveland, Roosevelt, Wilson, Harding were all renounced by ungrateful parties, and he determined that history should carry no such forbidding entry against his name. Wherefore he utilized the vast resources of his office to effect the selection of a successor who, in the matter of policy, would be a residuary legatee, running on a platform that would be a Coolidge chart.

Such is Mr. White's analysis. The marvel of the Coolidge vision and moral stamina moves him to ecstasy. It may, for all we know, be a correct diagnosis of Mr. Coolidge's reasoning and deportment since the Rapid City thunderbolt. But if Mr. Coolidge has dreamed of dictating history along the line of personal compliment, as Mr. White admiringly construes, he has performed Herculean labors in vain.

History has already given Grover Cleveland stature and permanency and dismissed as inconsequential the recriminations of an ill-tempered party's expostulation at the Chicago convention of 1896.

The Republican blasphemies of Roosevelt in 1912, or in the battles with Congress during the second administration, are as dusty myths, and had even become such while Roosevelt was yet living.

So with Wilson. The calumnies heaped upon him by his own party as well as by the enemy are historically forgotten in his already budding "glamour of immortality."

Finally, though the Republican party, in national convention assembled, might laud the name of Warren G. Harding "with the tongues of angels," the judgment of history will be written in the script of truth.

No President's place in history can be contrived by political maneuvering, by official artifice. Nothing that was done or omitted at Kansas City will affect adversely or happily posterity's esteem of Calvin Coolidge. The White House years will be the only testimony considered materially relevant or competent in the great court of last appeal.

THE PRAYER BOOK LOSES AGAIN.

It has been repeatedly said that if Parliament rejects the new prayer book disestablishment of the Church of England will set in under the aegis of the Liberal party.

Well, the prayer book has failed again, and by an even greater majority. The adroit Lloyd George, leader of the Liberals, who was silent during the first vote, this time voted against the prayer book. It remains to be seen if the party will adopt a disestablishment plank. It will undeniably rally to its ranks a great many dissenters, particularly among Welsh, Irish and Scotch Protestants, who deserted the Liberals after the war and have to a very large extent voted Conservative ever since. There is a strong sentiment for disestablishment among these people. They believe that the Anglican church, which has been losing ground, can only be strong again freed from the state and confronted by the necessity of going alone.

It is a very great issue in the British Isles, and one that has tremendously stirred the people. The new prayer book was not designed by churchmen alone, but by both clerics and laymen. It proposed a recession from the advanced position taken by the reformation, the consequences of which have been hurtful to Protestantism, not in the British Isles alone, but in Continental Europe. The opponents of the new book offered to pass it if its advocates would omit the clause as to the reservation of the sacrament, but the offer was refused. The makers of the book could not accomplish their end, which they have studiously debated for 10 years, and not make this concession to Rome.

So they pressed for another vote, which shows even more forcefully than did the first vote how stubbornly Protestant are the British Isles.

THE DUBLIN SWIFT.

At the beginning of the house-fly season, it may be interesting to cite the fact that in Dublin swallow-like birds called swifts are the official fly-swatters. These birds are noted for their marvelous powers of flight. The Dublin ones come from South Africa, and they have American cousins who fly here from Australia, long anticipating the flight of Kingsford-Smith and his companions. The Dublin Swift is of sooty-brown plumage, long, sickle-shaped wings and is further distinguished from his analogue, the swallow, by his more direct and powerful flight.

Writing in the Irish Independent, the Rev. P. C. Kennedy is authority for the statement that these birds, arriving in April and tarrying until the end of August, spend the summer making war on house-flies. "Swifts live solely on flies," says he. "They spend their lives among the housetops, and at evening noisily racing up and down the streets, swooping round buildings, swooping down near the ground, all the time intent on their business of life. Surely the swifts that fly over Dublin during the summer months deserve well of the citizens."

A Post-Dispatch reader suggests it might be a good idea if St. Louis were to import the Dublin swift, but certain exceptions might be taken to that. To begin with, the Dublin swift, partial to his favorite nesting places under old Dublin roofs, might object to spending his vacation here. Presumably a bird with so great a range of flight and all the world to choose from has made, from his standpoint, a discriminating selection. Next, bearing in mind that the Dublin swift is exceedingly prolific, and a shrill screamer, he might be considered a nuisance in a city not brought up to love these remarkable birds. That feathered plebeian, the English sparrow, has made us skeptical of suggested importations.

MR. HOOVER'S SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS.

There are several sentences in Mr. Hoover's message to the Republican convention which suggest liberal vision of the problems that confront the Government and deeply interest the people. They follow:

> Shall the world have peace? Shall prosperity in this nation be more thoroughly distributed? Shall we build steadily toward the ideal of equal opportunity to all our people?

These are mere questions, to be sure, but they touch on vital problems. If they mean anything at all, they strike directly at privilege and the policy of assuring the prosperity of a few by special government favor. Mr. Hoover's questions are not in accord with the "high hat" Republican platform. They are not in accord with the Coolidge policies, which were especially pleasing to Big Business. We indulge the hope that Mr. Hoover meant what he said when he suggested that better distribution of prosperity and equality of opportunity are problems with which the Government must deal.

A BLUE-LAW BOOMERANG.

The police of Westwood, N. J., last Sunday dug up an 1877 Sunday blue law, visited Allan Meyer at his movie, closed up the show, took the proprietor before a Justice of the Peace, and had him fined $16, which he paid. The police might have gotten away with it had not Allan Meyer been a Justice of the Peace himself. For no sooner had Meyer paid the fine than he walked along Westwood's main thoroughfare and, what with being a law official himself, decided to put that 1877 blue law into effect.

He did. He closed up every place in town with the exception of a lone drug store, he stopped all automobile traffic, he decreed no citizen could walk the streets unless his objective was church, and he was just about to stop telephone service when an irate bus driver had Meyer arrested for blocking traffic. That ended Meyer's campaign for the day, but he promises an even more drastic campaign next Sunday. Perhaps he will invoke the old Puritan prohibition about a man kissing his wife on the Sabbath.

We would like to congratulate Justice of the Peace Meyer on his last Sunday's campaign. The Justice knew well that Motion Picture Owner Meyer was receiving an outworn and unnecessary hazing. And as the Justice was the impresario, the Justice had a rather personal interest in the impresario's persecution. The Justice took an excellent revenge and made of it an excellent example of blue-law idiocy. We have a suspicion that Impresario Meyer's picture palace will be blooming in its pristine glory before many Sundays have passed.

ONE OF CHINA'S WORST ENEMIES.

General Chang Tso-Lin was one of China's worst enemies. Though he posed as an independent war lord, he was really the puppet and cat's paw of Japan. For many years he held forth in Manchuria, where Japan has vast interests, and gradually built up a powerful military machine. In 1922, he made his bid for the domination of all China, but was defeated by the southern General, Wu Pei-Fu. Two years later, by virtue of the treachery of General Feng, he defeated Wu, but found it necessary to make an alliance with the latter to attack and defeat Feng, who had intrenched himself in Pekin.

While Chang was thus making himself dictator of North China, a new and powerful movement was begun in Canton by Sun-Yat-Sen. Sun had the idea of democratizing China and to put an end to the reign of independent war lords. This movement has now grown to great proportions and is known as Chinese nationalism. After Sun died, leadership fell to a group of young men like Chiang-Kai-shek, who succeeded recently in driving Chang from Pekin to his own lair in Manchuria.

Sun was a true patriot. Chang was a man on horseback, a tool of interests more powerful than himself. It is a good thing for China that he is no longer a factor in its destiny. The bombthrower who killed Chang might have saved himself the trouble. Chang already had faded out of the picture. His departure from Pekin without firing a shot to stem the advancing horde of nationalists had relegated him to a minor role in Chinese affairs.

MONTAGUE OF THE "GUARDIAN."

The name of C. E. Montague is unfamiliar to most American newspaper readers and, presumably, to most American newspaper editors. In no other way can the fact be accounted for that his death, which occurred a couple of weeks ago, passed almost unnoticed. Yet for 35 years Montague was leader writer and editor-in-charge of what someone once called "the noblest newspaper in the world"—the Manchester Guardian. Doubtless the rare character of the paper derives from the culture and fearless liberalism of its aged editor, C. P. Scott, but Montague, carrying on under the supervision of the older man, proved himself a most worthy intellectual and moral heir.

Just about four years ago Mr. Montague resigned his editorial post to indulge a dream that must, one imagines, have hauntingly importuned him through all the long stretch of daily labor—to write as the wind listeth, to spin whatever tale his fancy chose. He had, in the arduous day's work, ventured modestly into fiction, and why the spokesmen of letters did not exultantly proclaim the arrival of a new star of the first magnitude is a baffling exasperation. In "Fiery Particles," a little book of short stories, one was taken into the trenches under the kindliest of guides, one encountered the spirit of camaraderie that flashed finely between the contending forces in the lulls of rage, and one met a couple of young Irish soldiers who might have been the grandsons of that incomparable Mulvaney whom Kipling's genius has enshrined forever in our hearts. Later came "Disenchantment," an indictment of the political management of war as devastating in its exposure as the indignation of Dickens, as searing as the wrath of Zola.

But to know Montague at his supremest one must fare forth with him to the mountains. That was his passion. He had, in his vacations, scaled the forbidding peaks, achieved impossible summits and memorized the marvel and the beauty and the sublimity of the heights.

Read Montague during the summer's outing and refresh your soul.

Hoover and Business

Mr. Hoover Is a Far Different Type From Mr. Coolidge, and Is a Man of Many More Positive Opinions; Business Will Not Be Dealing With So Acquiescent a Person; Nevertheless, It Is Folly to Believe That Hoover or, for That Matter, Al Smith, Will Disturb the Tremendous Structure of American Industrialism.

From The New York World.

NOTHING in Senator Fess' speech is worthy of notice except the inevitable fact that he ascribed to the Harding and Coolidge administrations all the credit for all the good things that have happened not merely to America but to mankind in the last eight years. From the point of view of morals, taste, and intelligence the address was contemptible. From the point of view of politics it simply signified that the Republicans propose to run on the theory that the country is wholly satisfied and does not wish anything to be changed.

Nevertheless there will be a change if Secretary Hoover is the next President. The eastern politicians who have tried to prevent his nomination have never been able to make the country see what sort of change Mr. Hoover portends. But they nevertheless feel in their bones that a change is coming. They are quite right. Mr. Hoover has a very different temperament from Mr. Coolidge and a very different way of approaching the office of President. He is a man of many more positive opinions. He is a man with much greater confidence in his own opinions and capacities. He has much less faith in the policy of letting things alone and much greater belief in doing something or other.

With Mr. Coolidge in the White House the great industrialists were dealing with a man who trusted their opinions more than he trusted his own. With Mr. Hoover they will be dealing with a man who thinks he knows as much about finance as the bankers, about manufacturing as the manufacturers, about labor as the employers. They will be dealing with a man who will be quite as ready to teach business as to run the government. For Mr. Hoover knows a good deal about a great many things, and what he thinks he knows he is very sure he knows.

He is bound, therefore, to create a very different atmosphere if he goes to Washington. But the extent of the difference can be and has been grossly exaggerated for purely political purposes. American business is as safe in the hands of Herbert Hoover or Alfred Smith as in the hands of Calvin Coolidge. It is childish nonsense to suppose that Mr. Coolidge alone has the secret of propriety or that any President, Republican or Democratic, Conservative or Progressive, would or could disturb the tremendous structure of American industrialism. In a month the politicians and business men who dreaded Herbert Hoover will be proclaiming him the saviour of prosperity. In six months, if Gov. Smith should be elected, they will be getting along quite well with Gov. Smith. These alarms and panics around convention time and election day are in the main manufactured and are in part the jumpiness of stock speculators who must have something to become very much alarmed about or very much jazzed up about all the time. The real business of the nation is not affected by the wild talk.

REASSURANCE FROM MR. LOWMAN.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

FROM Mr. Seymour Lowman, who is charged with the business of enforcing the Volstead Law, comes the assurance that the recent wire-tapping decision of the United States Supreme Court will not be employed in any wholesale invasion of privacy. "There will be no general snooping on the wire," says Mr. Lowman. "We will use it only in the case of tremendous conspiracies as we have in the past. It will be resorted to only when we have direct evidence of such a conspiracy, and then only as a last resort."

Mr. Lowman's promise is unfortunately not binding upon his successors, nor is there any guarantee that it will be binding upon some of his more zealous subordinates. And even were the tapping of wires restricted to the cases he mentions the method of securing evidence is not made cleaner by virtue of a court decision. The majority opinion of the court held that it was not illegal, not that it was respectable. And the opinion which so held furthermore suggested the possibility of intervention by Congress to make the practice illegal in any case.

An effort will be made to get such action by Congress at the next session, yet its success is doubtful. Congress is still too greatly dominated by Drys who think that the end of enforcement justifies any means however disreputable. Meanwhile, those who still argue somewhat hopelessly that the Fourth Amendment means what it says, must take what comfort they can from the scathing denunciation given forth by Justice Brandeis in his dissenting opinion.

LEAVE MORROW IN MEXICO.

From the Dallas News.

IT IS said in Washington that Mr. Kellogg would like to have Ambassador Morrow become Undersecretary of State, which would constitute him Mr. Kellogg's own right-hand man. It is intimated, however, that Mr. Morrow may prefer to retain his post, feeling that he has just begun to realize upon the investment of good will and understanding which has been made there. It is to be hoped that his preference is respected.

Mr. Morrow has made a good Ambassador because he has been a human Ambassador and because he has been an intelligent one. Our difficulties with Mexico have not been completely adjusted, but Mr. Morrow has a better chance of arriving at an adjustment than any successor to him that can be named offhand. It is a matter of no small importance that the United States and Mexico should be the best of friends.

Our entire policy of friendliness with Latin-America will fall if we fail to maintain neighborly relations with Mexico. If we can not get along with the Latins who are closest to us we need hope for little understanding with those farther away. Mr. Morrow has shown an aptitude for treating with the Mexican Government which we are not likely to duplicate after he is gone. We will do well to employ his services at the very point where our diplomatic contacts are most difficult. Indeed, at the moment, we have no post abroad calling for more tact, directness and common sense than the one which Mr. Morrow fills.

Herbert Hoover was born into a Quaker family at West Branch, Ia., August 10, 1874. At the age of 10, after both his parents had died, he was sent to relatives in Oregon, where he was educated in the public schools and at a Quaker academy. He began to support himself at the age of 13. When he was 17 he entered Leland Stanford University and began to study mining engineering. He worked his way through the university. It was while he was a student laundry agent that he met Lou Henry, another student. They happened to be together in the geological laboratory, and, according to one of his biographers, they "fell into conversation about the carboniferous period."

After a while they began "going together." Members of the sorority to which Miss Henry was pledged objected to her association with a laundry agent. She promptly took off the pledge pin. In all the history of college secret societies, there has probably been no graver mistake than that made by the sisterhood that Lou Henry was about to join. There isn't a member of it today who is not steeped in woe when she considers what might have been.

Led Stanford "Barbs" and Routed the Greeks.

While at Stanford, Hoover became a leader of the "barbs" or non-faternity men, in an assault upon the Greek-letter monopoly which controlled the student offices. His ticket won, and he became the student treasurer. He was graduated with an engineering degree when he was 21 years old and a few months later, as one might say, "entered upon the practice of his profession." What he actually did was to start pushing a hand car in a mine in the Sierras. This was in 1895.

Lon Henry waited. In February, 1899, he came back to San Francisco from one of his trips abroad and went to Monterey, where she lived. They were married at noon

It was while he was a student laundry agent that he met Lou Henry, another student. They happened to be together in the geological laboratory, and, according to one of his biographers, they "fell into conversation about the carboniferous period."

After a while they began "going together." Members of the sorority to which Miss Henry was pledged objected to her association with a laundry agent. She promptly took off the pledge pin. In all the history of college secret societies, there has probably been no graver mistake than that made by the sisterhood that Lou Henry was about to join. There isn't a member of it today who is not steeped in woe when she considers what might have been.

Led Stanford "Barbs" and Routed the Greeks.

While at Stanford, Hoover became a leader of the "barbs" or non-faternity men, in an assault upon the Greek-letter monopoly which controlled the student offices. His ticket won, and he became the student treasurer. He was graduated with an engineering degree when he was 21 years old and a few months later, as one might say, "entered upon the practice of his profession." What he actually did was to start pushing a hand car in a mine in the Sierras. This was in 1895.

Lon Henry waited. In February, 1899, he came back to San Francisco from one of his trips abroad and went to Monterey, where she lived. They were married at noon on Feb. 10, took a train at 2 p. m., that day for San Francisco and sailed at noon the next day for China.

The Hoovers have two sons, Herbert Jr., an instructor in the school of business administration at Harvard, and Allen, a student at Stanford.

For the 19 years after 1897 Hoover carried on engineering work in the four quarters of the globe. He was in Australia, China, Japan, New Zealand, India, the Transvaal, Rhodesia, Canada, Egypt, Burma, the Malay States, Ceylon, Russia, Italy, Korea, Germany, France, Belgium and England. Sometimes his family was abroad with him, sometimes in the United States.

Organized Belgian Relief During the World War.

In 1913 Hoover went to Europe at the request of the directors of the Panama Pacific Exposition to enlist the interest of foreign governments in the exposition. He was doing this work when the World War broke out. In August, 1914, at the request of the American Ambassador at London, he organized a committee to collect and send home stranded Americans from the war zone.

This assignment having been completed, he was about to sail for New York when the American Ambassador asked him to take charge of the relief work in Belgium. He organized the Belgian Relief Commission, wihch under his administration spent more than $1,400,000,000 in feeding 10,000,000 Belgian and French people for more than four years.

By appointment of President Wilson, to whom he had been recommended by Ambassador Page, he took charge of the United States Food Administration in June, 1917, and directed it for the next two years. After the war he was in charge of various extensive relief operations in Europe. In 1921, President Harding appointed him head of the Department of Commerce, which he has raised to a high state of efficiency.

Such, in barest outline, is the record of Hoover's multifarious activities—the record that proves him a great organizer and gives him claim also to the title of great humanitarian, even though he may seem to think of humanity as comprising so many units, consuming so many tons of food.

"It is often said, "writes Hard, "that Herbert Hoover, in his humanitarianism, should be more human. He should be more personal. To put it ad absurdum, he should cry more when he holds the bottle to the lips of a starving Czecho-Slovak baby or when he hauls a dripping Mississippian out of the waves of the whelming flood."

As to Americanism and Fixing the Price of Wheat.

One of the stock criticisms of Hoover, much harped upon by Senator Reed, is that his long residence abroad has given him a foreign rather than an American outlook. The reply for Hoover is that the nature of his work abroad, a pioneering, engineering work was intensely American; that he never surrendered his citizenship, but clung to it with pride: that he sent both his sons to Leland Stanford, of which he was elected in 1912, and now is, a trustee; that during the entire period of his foreign activity he maintained his base of operations in the United States; that—to mention a small but significent item—he has never parted with the faintest trace of his American accent.

It has been charged that Hoover fixed the price of wheat during the war and thereby, for the benefit of Great Britain, robbed the American farmer. The facts are that the price was fixed, not by Hoover, but by a commission of which he was not a member, and that the actual effect of this action was to give the farmer more than he otherwise would have got.

In the Republican primary fights on Hoover he was attacked for his support of the McNary-Haugen bill; for his indecision in 1920 whether he would join the Republican or the Democratic party; for his advice to his fellow countrymen in 1918 to stand behind the President in the congressional elections so that Mr. Wilson might not be hampered in the peace negotiations. He was described by Senator Watson and others as not being properly imbued with Republican principles.

Poor Speaker on the Stump but Pleasing in Conversation.

No man with so many facets as Hoover can be put adequately into one article. But certain facts can be set out that will help to give a true picture, or at least a truer picture than that painted by his enemies or his fulsome eulogists. He lacks, as I have said, the political touch, and that lack may hamper him in his dealings with Congress; but in the management of his campaign, notably in the rounding up of Southern delegates, he did not hesitate to resort to time-tried political methods. If he hadn't he might not have got the nomination.

He is a poor speaker on the stump, but in conversation on a subject in which he is interested—and there are many such subjects—he can hold a hearer fascinated by the breadth and exactness of his information. He can take a set of complicated reports from agents in Europe, digest and analyze them and give you a neat and concise summary of whatever problem they may deal with. He probably knows more about conditions in Europe, political as well as economic, than any other man in the United States. If he is elected President, he will be, in effect, his own Foreign Minister.

He Has Knack of Getting Capable Subordinates.

He has the faculty of surrounding himself with capable subordinates and of inspiring in them the most intense loyalty. Much of his campaign work was done by men who had previously served under him in his food administration and relief activities.

He is a dry because he believes that prohibition has been a good thing for the economic development of the country.

He has a passion for the elimination of waste in industry, and as head of the Department of Commerce has done much effective work along that line.

He believes in trade associations. Some critics charge that he has encouraged them in undue restraint of competition.

If elected President, his keenness to develop foreign trade will be a factor for making for friendly relations with the rest of the world.

He is a tremendous worker. This is his philosophy of work:

"In America we want to go ahead. Just where do we want to go? As I see it, we wantt o go greater security in living, greater education, greater social and political justice, greater moral fiber for everybody who will work, and for nobody else." This same philosophy underlies his opposition to the cancellation of the war debts.

He is, to describe him as nearly as he can be described in any one word, the mathematician in politics.

Curtis, 44 Years In Politics, Is Regular of Regulars

unflagging party regularity. Going into the Speaker's office one day, he found himself in the midst of a caucus of Republican leaders. He started to retreat, but Reed, addressing him as "Indian," called him back. Gold-standard legislation was being discussed. It soon became evident that the group would never reach an agreement.

Reed Gives Him Chance.

"Indian," said Reed, "what would you do about this?"

Curtis replied that he would take the whole matter out of the hands of the standing committee which had been unsuccessfully trying to write a bill, and turn it over to a special committee. A day or two later Reed summoned the young man from Kansas to his office and told him his suggestion had been adopted. Curtis was one of the committee of 11 appointed by the Speaker to write a bill. The result of their effort was the Gold Standard Act of 1900, which remains on the statute books today without amendment.

Curtis was one of the first national legislators to come out for women's suffrage, and as whip of the Senate in 1919 he did much to put through the suffrage amendment. He has been a consistent supporter of legislation in the interest of women. Being a Kansan, he has naturally been active on the side of farm relief measures. In the last Congress the McNary-Haugen bill put him in a difficult position. His desire to do something for the farmer clashed with the fact that the "equalization fee" feature of the bill ran counter to his political and economic philosophy. Like a good many others in the same predicament, he voted for the bill.

Curtis was an early advocate of the two-thirds cloture rule adopted by the Senate in 1917. He had an important hand in bringing about the adoption of the national budget system, and it was on his motion that the Senate rule forbidding legislation by conferees was adopted. The stanch prohibitionist from his early Kansas days, he has cast his votes on the dry side without shadow of turning. He followed his party leader, Lodge, in the fight over the League of Nations, and led the administration forces in the effort to take the United States into the World Court. He went the whole route for the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, when to do so was to court political disaster in his home State, and he cast an orthodox Republican vote for the Fordney-McCumber schedules.

Curtis as leader of the Senate majority relies on his time-tried methods of compromise and conciliation. His peculiar qualities are well suited to the task of trying to bring a semblance of harmony out of the deep-seated discord on the Republican side, and he has done as much in that direction as anybody could have done.

To nearly all his colleagues, Senator Curtis is "Charlie." Everybody likes him. Everybody calls him a "square shooter." In the press galleries he has the reputation of fairness and blunt honesty in analyzing a political situation. The reporters like, too, his quiet dignity. He is affable, but never clownish. In the best sense of the praise, he is "plain as an old shoe."

William Allen White said in a recent interview that "for 35 years Charlie Curtis has been depositing favors in the political bank, and today he is drawing checks on them." That describes Curtis neatly. Ever since he entered public life Curtis has been doing favors for his constituents, and the aggregate of good will that he has rolled up in his way is immense.

Some men in politics get their results by appeals to the multitude; Curtis gets his by going after each individual voter. He has long been reputed to have the best card index system in Congress. He has the doctors listed, and the G. A. R. veterans, and the lawyers, the teachers, and so on. Thus he is able to distribute his share of Government publications — of which each Senator and Representative gets several tons in the course of a session—to the best advantage. A perfectly obvious thing for a politician to do? Yes, but a good many supposedly astute politicians neglect the obvious, and ultimately pay the penalty of defeat. Curtis never neglects it.

An Organization Man.

Curtis is an organization man in politics, but he does not rely wholly on any organization. A great factor in his success has been his personal contacts. There is a Curtis leader in every hamlet and town in Kansas. He keeps in constant touch with them. When he goes over the State, Sam meets his here, Bill there, and Jim somewhere else. And Sam or Bill or Jim sits down with Charlie Curtis for a quiet talk about the condition of the Senator's political fences in that particular part of the State. There is never any condescension in Curtis' manner. He talks the Kansas language. It is no wonder that the Senator's fences are kept in perfect repair.

I would not give the impression that Curtis is a vote-hound merely, without other serious thought than that of perpetuating himself in office. That would be doing him a grave injustice. He has solid quilities that entitle him to respect. He has done many good things that might have brought another man large political dividends in favorable publicity; but Curtis has no genius for getting mass publicity.

Very few people know, for example, that he was the prime mover for the Senate rule against legislation by conferees—a rule that the late Senator Lodge called the most important change in procedure in the history of the Senate. Few know the part he played in establishing the gold standard. He has confided many things to newspaper men, but rarely anything about himself.

Has Personal Courage.

Custis has personal courage; Kansans will tell you of classic political feuds in which he has gone direct to his antagonist and faced him with provocative charges. He has political courage when any fundamental tenent of his creed is attacked; witness the time when he stood by the high tariff in the face of a rising tide of rebellion in Kansas. He has a profound knowledge of human nature. He has enormous industry. His word is as good as the proverbial bond. All these things must be given weight in accounting for his rise.

Since the death of his wife several years ago, Curtis has lived with his sister in Washington. He has few social engagements. He is compelled to listen to a vast deal of golf talk in the Senate cloak rooms, but it is doubtful if he would know a mashie from a niblick. Walking is his one form of exercise. His love of racing has stayed with him, and now and then he slips away from his job to one of the tracks near the capital. In sizing up a race, he always pays more attention to the jockey than to the horse.

Such is Charlie Curtis of Kansas—a square-shooting conservative; a quiet, affable man whom everybody likes; a skilful player of the great game of politics.

LOTS OF PARKING SPACE

WIDE STREETS IN ST. LOUIS COMING TO BE THE RULE

Of the 271.51 Miles in Plan Commission's Major List, Only 26.52 Are Not of Satisfactory Width.

SOME IN PROCESS OF IMPROVEMENT

Greater Changes Predicted in Fitting Thoroughfares to Handle Increasing Traffic.

Of the 271.51 miles of St. Louis thoroughfares included in the comprehensive major street plan of the City Plan Commission, only 26.52 miles are not in the category of those either of satisfactory width or subject to pending steps to make them so.

This is shown in the commission's annual report to the Board of Public Service, filed Friday.

The major street plan provides traffic arteries throughout the city, taking advantage of existing broad highways and other existing streets which must be widened, and calling also for extensions where there are no thoroughfares. Of the total mileage, 154.53 miles were originally of satisfactory width—80 or 100 feet. However, the commission's record does not show the extent of satisfactory paving. The greater part of the "satisfactory" group of streets is well paved, nevertheless.

Other items in the report are:

Widenings and extensions which have been carried out, either physically or at least so far as legal steps are concerned—widenings, 15.95 miles; extensions, 10.7 miles; total, 26.71 miles.

Projects under ordinance—widenings, 27.12 miles; extensions, 7.67 miles; total, 34.79 miles.

Recommended to Board of Public Service for ordinance—widenings, 22.47 miles; extensions, 6.49 miles; total, 28.96 miles.

No definite action yet—widenings, 23.39 miles; extensions, 3.13 miles; total, 26.52 miles.

Projects Under Way.

The report lists numerous individual projects under these items, among them the following, which are physically or legally completed or under way, representing an aggregate actual cost of $2,250,524:

Easton avenue widening from 60 to 80 feet between Franklin and Prairie	$504,725
Franklin avenue widening from 50 to 80 feet between Third and Ninth, 1821 feet	504,201
Goodfellow avenue widening from 60 to 80 feet between Bircher and Stratford	5,314
Hampton-Billon avenue widening from 60 to 80 feet and extension 80 feet wide between Oakland and Gravois, 23,440 feet	205,074
Macklind avenue widening from 25 to 60 feet and extension 60 feet wide between Kinkman and Loughborough, 1700 feet	28,025
Sarah-Easton cutoff to correct an irregular intersection by rounding off the southeast corner	41,877
Several street widening from 60 to 80 feet between Market and Spruce, 1200 feet	$10,811
Spring-Vista cutoff to correct an irregular intersection by rounding off the northeast corner	2,632
Twentieth-O'Fallon cutoff to correct an irregular intersection by rounding off the southwest corner	51,848
Vandeventer avenue widening from 60 to 80 feet between Market and Washington, 3954 feet	596,015

Reducing Traffic Congestion.

"Even the most casual observer," says the report, "can scarcely fail to note the many changes being effected in the street system of St. Louis. Within the next few years even greater changes will be wrought in the effort to lessen traffic congestion. Experience has taught that these improvements result in greatly enhanced land values. The major street plan proposes greater capacity in every section of the city, and for this reason the commission particularly regretted the repeal of the Lillian avenue widening (done at the insistence of property owners there), for, with the continued expansion of industrial properties in the northwestern section of the city, it will not be long before there is a pressing demand for greater street space."

Women's Ad Club Luncheon.

The Women's Advertising Club of St. Louis will hold a luncheon tomorrow on the "Scenic Limited" diner, track 12, Union Station, where an illustrated lecture on San Isabel National Forest, Colorado, will be given.

Probably the most unmistakable trend was that of manufacturers of both speakers and receivers toward the so-called dynamic speaker. For the present, at least, the dynamic is emphatically the fashion. At the show, 32 set makers showed dynamic speakers while 28 had cone type speakers, now generally called "magnetic" speakers. Six makers exhibited exponential, or air-column, speakers. Several also exhibited speakers made of airplane cloth, tightly stretched and "doped." Air column speakers ranged in size up to 15 feet in length with bells 54 inches across. A freak speaker of the airplane cloth type, made only as a novelty, was about 12 feet long by 6 feet in height. Speaker units, both for cone and air-column speakers, were greatly improved.

Receivers with AC tubes or otherwise equipped for lamp socket operation, of course, dominated the receiver section of the show. Of the 48 receiver manufacturers at the show, 43 are making socket power or AC tube sets, while 22 are prepared to supply battery-operated sets as well. There were 13 booths at the show devoted to power units, while 5 dry battery firms and 5 storage battery makers exhibited.

Of interest, too, was the entry of three leading eliminator manufacturers and one of the great battery companies into the receiver field. This invasion was countered by the receiver manufacturers already in the field with sets greatly improved in performance as well as in appearance.

Cabinet and console models exhibited rivaled the very finest work of the furniture makers. Any Console models range in price up to $750, $1000, $1500 and even $2000. Some of the consoles are of the massive "antique" type that would go well with living rooms done in teak or jaccobean oak and walnut.

The "flyers" included three makes of "factory built" receivers using the new shielded grid tubes. These tubes, as has been told, have a theoretical amplification factor as high as 175 compared with about 8 for the ordinary 201A tube. Thus far it has been difficult to realizing ever half or a third of this high amplification. However, these three factories are putting out extra models using these tubes.

Several custom built receivers using two, three and four of these shielded grid tubes also were exhibited. Two of these sets already have won reputations as distance getters through use of the shielded grid tubes.

A short wave set exhibited has a shielded grid tube ahead of a regenerative detector, and three stages of resistance coupled amplification. It is suited also for re-

Radio Exhibition Reveals Improved 'Tone Quality'

Better Reproduction General — Trend Toward "Dynamic" Speakers—Push Pull Amplification and Larger Power Tubes Largely Used — Cabinets and Console Models More Attractive Than Ever.

INTERESTING as were the evidences of distinct trends—and also the flyers set forth to feel out public sentiment—the outstanding feature of the radio trades show, which drew thousands of distributers and dealers to Chicago the past week, was the great advance that has been made, all of sudden seemingly, in quality of reproduction.

The new receivers and speakers are very much better than those of even a few months ago. Partly this is due to improvement in audio transformers and to general use of power tubes, either the 171A alone, or all power tubes up to the superpower 250 type in push pull, or the 210 and 250 tubes alone. Partly it is due to general improvement of speakers.

Probably the most unmistakable trend was that of manufacturers of both speakers and receivers toward the so-called dynamic speaker. For the present, at least, the dynamic is emphatically the fashion. At the show, 32 set makers showed dynamic speakers while 28 had cone type speakers, now generally called "magnetic" speakers. Six makers exhibited exponential, or air-column, speakers. Democratic Convention Over KSD

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., June 16.—Practically the same group of stations, including KSD, which broadcast the Republican National Convention at Kansas City will be hooked up to carry a detailed report of the Democratic Assembly, starting here June 26.

While the list is as yet incomplete, it is expected to number at least 100, making available the story of the convention in all sections of the country, as was the Republican gathering.

The convention sessions will be broadcast by WGN, and two chains, the National Broadcasting and the Columbia system. Graham McNamee will be in charge of the microphones for NBC, and Maj. Andrew J. White will be director for Columbia, as was the case at Kansas City. A corps of assistants has been provided.

For WGN, Quin Ryan will keep the radio listeners informed of what is happening. The stations will come on the air shortly before the opening of the day's session.

Newspapermen will be called before the microphones at intervals to summarize some of the incidents that always develop in the make-up of the platform and during committee meetings.

After the day's session summaries of what has happened will be presented. Similar summaries will be made at the noon recess.

The same arrangement of microphones as for the Republican convention will be used. They will be placed on the speakers' stand and at the strategic centers of the hall to permit the listeners to obtain all details possible. Elaborate precautions are being taken to prevent any possible slip-up due to failure of transmitting apparatus.

In giving the radio fan the Democratic convention, many more miles of telephone wires will be required. Use of such long wire lines across a section of the country subject to summer electrical storms is expected to require more attention to the feeder lines than was the case at Kansas City. In many instances the crashes of lightning that come in on the telephone lines during such storms probably will be heard over a wider area than ever before.

The cost of putting the Democratic assembly on the air will be much greater than for the Republican, due to the many more miles of telephone wire required.

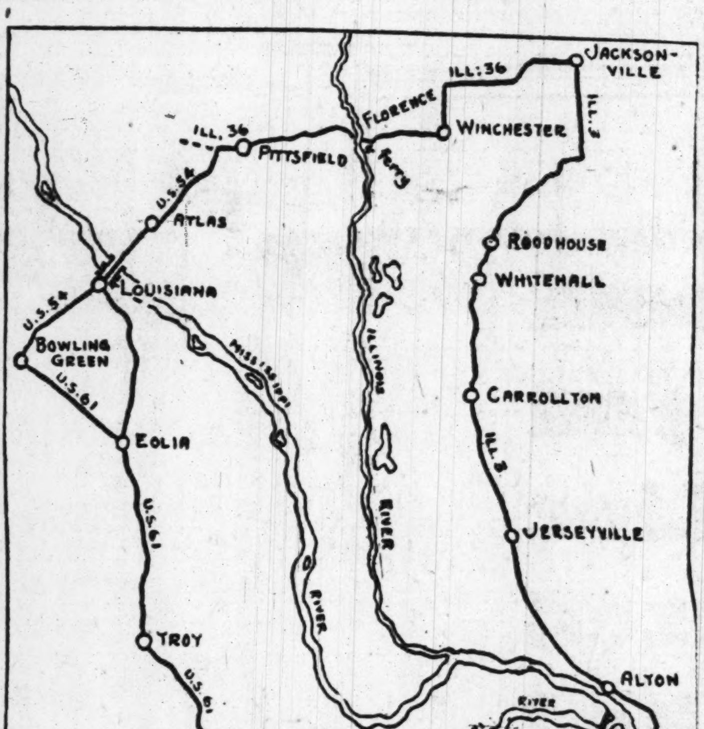
What New Missouri-Illinois Bridge Means to Motorists

By George E. Drummond,

Manager, Touring Department, Automobile Club of Missouri.

LOUISIANA, Mo., has not yet completely recovered from its celebration last Saturday, which accompanied the dedication of the Champ Clark Memorial Bridge, connecting Illinois and Missouri and, of more importance, a vital link in United States Highway No. 54. This Federal marked route is destined to assume increasing importance and will carry much of the travel from Michigan, Northern Indiana and Illinois westward toward the Pacific Coast over a shorter mileage than heretofore.

The writer, to obtain first-hand information on this new bridge and its connecting roads, made a circle tour through Missouri and Illinois, using the Champ Clark Memorial Bridge to cross the Mississippi River. An outline of the tour is given on the accompanying map, which was specially prepared for this route.



Leaving St. Louis over the McKinley bridge, the writer followed Illinois State Route 3 northward through the Tri-Cities, Alton, Jerseyville and Carrolltion to Jacksonville. This is a pleasant ride through a fertile farming country over excellent concrete roads. At Jacksonville the route sways westward, following State highway 36 and United States highway 36 through Winchester to the ferry over the Illinois River at Florence.

A substantial ferry boat is in service at Florence, giving rapid transportation over the river and operating on a 24-hour schedule. The boat docks at either landing every 15 minutes. A toll of 50 cents for small roadsters and 75 cents for other cars is charged, with the privilege of returning within 30 hours without additional payment.

The Illinois State Highway Department is building a bridge over the river which will supplant the ferry. The steel work for the bridge is on the location and work on the piers has been started.

After crossing the river, the motorist continues on route 36 through Detroit to a junction with United States Route 54, just west of Pittsfield. Making the left turn on route 54, the motorist starts over the first section of gravel that has been encountered, but is sure of a passable road to Louisiana under any weather condition. The highway from Pittsfield to Louisiana through Atlas and Pike has been sign posted with the typical markers of the Federal marked routes. In addition, Champ Clark bridge arrows have been erected to reassure the traveler that he is on tthe right road.

A right-of-way committee is meeting at this time to obtain the land for building a concrete road from Louisiana along the route of No. 54 to the present concrete at Pittsfield. It is expected that the concrete for this construction will be let soon.

The Louisiana Bridge Co., made up of representative citizens of that community, has finished graveling another road for a detour around the concrete work, in the section where the new surfaced highway will coincide with the present road. For most of the distance from Louisiana to Pittsfield the new roadway will be on a new grade, obviating the usual detours

The Louisiana authorities state that several hundred automobiles are crossing the bridge each day, and that about 40 per cent of the number carry State licenses of origin other than Missouri or Illinois. The writer noticed many licenses from other states on cars on Highway 54 while covering the circle tour. All of which indicates that the bridge will play an important part in increasing the number of tourists between the East and West through this section of the country.

Louisiana is the furthermost point of the tour, the route returning to St. Louis on the Missouri side of the Mississippi River. There are two optional routes from Louisiana south to Eolia, either direct over the gravel road or westward to Bowling Green on Route 54 and south on U. S. 61 to Eolia and St. Louis.

For sight-seeing, it is suggested that the Bowling Green route be used, as it gives an opportunity to see the gardens of the Stark Nurseries, the largest in the United States. After the death of Luther Burbank in California, all of his experimental and newly developed plants were assigned to Stark Brothers for development. Many of the Burbank creations can be seen at the Louisiana Nurseries. The nurseries are west of the town on Highway 54. An excellent concrete and gravel road connects Louisiana and Bowling Green.

U. S. Highway 61 is an all-weather road from Bowling Green to St. Louis and passes through Eolia, Troy and Moscow Mills, to coincide with U. S. Route 40 at Wentzville, the two major highways following the same road

Road and Bridge Plans For the St. Louis District

Expenditure for Benefit of Traffic in Metropolitan Area to Total $25,000,000 Eventually — Prevention of Congestion at Crossroads of Nation Chief Purpose— Review of Construction Work.

By Richard G. Baumhoff.

ROAD and bridge construction under way or contemplated in the metropolitan district of St. Louis and for a short distance beyond in Missouri and Illinois is designed to afford greatly improved access to this community—more routes for traffic to follow in entering and leaving St. Louis, East St. Louis and the suburbs of both cities, and wider pavements on existing roads, together with three great bridges being erected over the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers, and two more proposed, to augment four highway crossings now in use.

Eventually expenditure of $25,000,000 or more is involved in the district.

This work for the benefit of a huge and steadily growing motor traffic, which has progressed farther than the public generally has realized, will supply to a considerable extent the facilities demanded by the public to get through this notable crossroads of the nation. Many motorists believe that still more highways will have to be provided soon to prevent congestion.

The geographical position of St. Louis, close to the junction of the nation's two greatest rivers, requires convenience of crossing these streams, if concentration of traffic in bottle-necks is to be avoided. Over the Mississippi there are now three highway bridges, entering the city in or near the central section, and there is only one over the Missouri, at St. Charles—the key to the West and North. However, twin bridges over the two streams, to give quick and easy connection with the North, will be opened within a few weeks and one over the Mississippi at Chain of Rocks, which will be of great aid in reaching the East and Northeast, is expected to be ready by autumn.

Bridges proposed are one over the Mississippi at Carondelet, to reach Southern Illinois, and one over the Missouri at the end of Olive street road, to give a much better contact with the highway to the West. The former is backed by private capital, while the latter is sponsored by civic interests in St. Louis County but may be erected by the State Highway Department, if the $75,000,000 State road bond issue is passed in November. There has been a public discussion of the wisdom of permitting more toll bridges, but congressional franchises now carry clauses providing for eventual public acquisition of these utilities.

Plans for the additional highway facilities on the Missouri side are conditional only on passage of the bond issue at the coming general election, as far as the main arteries handled by the State are concerned. Much improvement for purely local traffic is expected if the St. Louis County $10,000,000 road bond issue carries next Saturday. In Illinois a large volume of standard concrete paving is under construction.

A glance at a map will show that seven main state highways now radiate from East St. Louis, in Illinois. A summary of the situation on additional concrete roads, as furnished by District Engineer Slaymaker, follows:

No. 158, Columbia to Belleville—paved part way and being graded for pavement the rest of the way.

No. 157, Cahokia to Sunset Hill (near Edwardsville), an important belt highway—right-of-way being obtained from Cahokia to Centerville; being paved from Centerville to end of existing slab south of Edgemont; open from Edgemont to Caseyville;

U. S. Ends Its Survey of Gas Dangers

SURGEON-GENERAL H. S. CUMMINGS of the United States public health service, has announced the results of a survey undertaken to ascertain whether or not a health hazard from carbon monoxide existed in the streets of our large cities, inside of auto busses and in repair shops.

Fourteen of the largest cities in the country were visited, having a combined population of over 19,000,000 and 250 samples of air were obtained for carbon monoxide analysis. These samples were taken in such a manner as to approach the most congested conditions that may exist at a busy traffic intersection. Hence it is felt that these results indicate the maximum hazard that may exist today in the metropolitan thoroughfares from automobile exhaust gas.

The average of 141 tests made in city streets at peak hours of traffic showed a contamination of 0.8 part of carbon monoxide per 10,000 parts of air. Only 24 per cent of all the street samples had more than one part of carbon monoxide in 10,000 of air and in only one location, a covered passageway, were there as much as 2 parts per 10,000.

Samples taken inside of auto busses yielded even lower concentrations of carbon monoxide gas.

The figures for street air, when viewed in the light of present day standards of exposure to carbon monoxide, do not reveal the existence of a health hazard from this source of our city streets. The only individual who may possibly be exposed to a health hazard from inhaling street air containing automobile exhausts gas is the traffic officer. This potential hazard may be minimized by diminishing the duration of exposure at the most congested traffic stations.

On the other hand, of the 102 tests made in twenty-seven garages in the fourteen cities visited, the average carbon monoxide content was found to be 2.1 parts in 10,000. More than half of the samples (59 per cent) contained over one part of carbon monoxide and 18 per cent of all the samples contained over four parts of this gas in 10,000 parts of air. These results for repair shops show a dangerous condition that demands serious consideration of those concerned.

This hazard in repair shops may

'PLYMOUTH' IS NAME OF NEW AUTO

Makers, Price, Size and Other Details Not Announced.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., June 16.—The trend toward naming new cars after well-known figures and occurrences in American history is accentuated by announcement here that a new car, soon to make its appearance, is to be called the Plymouth.

According to the announcement, the car has been under construction for some time, but formal decision as to its name was not determined until a few days ago.

No information as to what company is to build it, its price, size or other details could be secured. Spokesmen said the name Plymouth was chosen because the car "so accurately typifies the endurance and strength, the rugged honesty, enterprise, the determination of achievement and the freedom from old limitations of the Pilgrim band who were the first American colonists."

The Plymouth takes its name from its best-known settlement in the colonization of North America. It was the landing place of those freedom-loving Pilgrims who fled from England in 1620. Plymouth Rock, their landing place, was visited last year by more than 12,000,000 Americans.

be reduced to a minimum by not allowing the motors of automobiles to run longer than thirty seconds unless the car is in necessary motion or the exhaust is connected to the outside air by a direct, airtight outlet of ample caliber. Without such outlet no automobile engine should be allowed to run indoors, except to reach its berth or to leave, by the shortest route.

All of these samples were taken in garages of considerable size. The great danger to life is unquestionably in the small private garage containing one or two cars. Under any circumstances the discharge of an automobile exhaust into a roofed enclosure should be regarded as a hazardous act.

through St. Charles to St. Louis. The road is gravel for the first mile and a half from Bowling Green, then concrete to Eolia. The surface then changes to gravel through Troy to Moscow Mills and is concrete the remaining distance to St. Louis.

The total mileage of the tour is 246 miles, the round trip being easily made in a day. The road conditions are such that a normal mile per hour average can be maintained without discomfort or tiring.

Road and Bridge Projects For the St. Louis District right-of-way being obtained from Caseyville to Sunset Hill.

No. 159, Collinsville to Red Bud—not touched from Collinsville to Belleville; open from Belleville to Smithton; paving just started from Smithton to Hecker; paving to be started shortly from Hecker to Red Bud.

No. 156, Harrisonville to New Athens—Not touched from Harrisonville to Valmeyer; three miles graded east from Valmeyer and paving of next three miles just started, with the succeeding three miles into Waterloo open; not touched from Waterloo to New Athens, via Hecker.

No. 160, Alton to Greenville, via Hamel (an important short cut to the East, reached via Edwardsville)—paving just started from Alton to Alhambra, though some "fills" are not to be paved at once; not touched from Alhambra to Greenville.

No. 112, Edwardsville to Bunker Hill—eight miles being paved from Edwardsville to the intersection of No. 160; remainder into Bunker Hill to be paved this summer.

No. 110, Jerseyville to Benld, with a short existing spur to Bunker Hill—being paved from Benld (near Gillespie) to the Bunker Hill spur; not surveyed yet from that point to Jerseyville.

No. 161, Belleville to Carlyle, via Scott Field—not touched yet.

No. 150, an important belt highway connecting the five chief radiating highways, east of Belleville, running from Hamel on No. 4 to Tilden on No. 13—being paved from Tilden to St. Libory; open from St. Libory to Fayetteville; about to be paved from Fayetteville to Mascoutah; not touched from Mascoutah to Hamel.

New location of No. 13 from East St. Louis to Belleville, via Centerville—paving nearly completed and this notable improvement, avoiding the present State street-Main street route, will be open by autumn, utilizing Bond avenue in East St. Louis.

Nos. 3 and 4, new location from the Tri-Cities into East St. Louis—the delay arising from a dispute over right-of-way has not been settled.

No. 15 (to Southern Illinois)—a letting for paving the annoying cinder fill near Okawville was held last week.

No. 12 (to Vincennes, Ind.)—the annoying gap near Breese is being paved.

The foregoing items are not all of the work being done in the engineering district comprising a number of counties around East St. Louis, but they cover the work of greatest interest for general traffic.

Among other important projects in the district are No. 127, from Carlyle to Hillsboro and beyond, which is partly paved and partly being paved from Carlyle to Greenville; No. 170, to connect Red Bud and Sparta; No. 111, to run from Alton almost to Springfield between Nos. 3 and 4, and No. 126, to run from Litchfield to Springfield, east of No. 4.

This district has a program of 100 miles of paving and grading this year, including many small bridges. It represents expenditure of $3,000,000, mostly going in the projects listed above.

On the Missouri side, the State Highway Department announced six months ago that it would like to spend approximately $7,328,000 for the new roads and widenings in St. Louis County and in some sections of adjacent counties. The program, dependent on passage of the State road bond issue, covers 129 miles. It may be enlarged if the State takes over the Missouri River bridge project.

The concrete contemplated includes:

New connection from St. Louis to the Jefferson City-Springfield-Washington (Mo.) highways at Villa Ridge, via Big Bend boulevard, Valley Park, Antire road and Pacific.

New connection from St. Louis to the Columbia-Kansas City-Hannibal highways at Wentzville, via Olive Street road. (This involves erection of a public or private bridge.)

Route from the Baden section of St. Louis to Alton, via Bellefontaine road, utilizing the new twin bridges. (The several miles between the briges across St. Charles County have been paved by the bridge company.)

Belt highway, from Mehville on Lemay Ferry road to Pattonville on St. Charles road, via Denny road and Kirkwood, linking all the existing State highways in the county. This might be extended north to Bellefontaine road. A short stretch of grading has been done already, near Gravois road, and an adjacent stretch contracted for. This one project is not dependent on the bond issue, though the bonds would facilitate it, as it is in the nature of a refund to the county.

Widening of the first four miles of Lemay Ferry road south from St. Louis. More than a mile already has been widened to 40 feet, constituting the community's first broad artery on a State route.

Widening of Manchester road from St. Louis to Ballwin.

Widening of Gravois road from St. Louis to House Springs.

New road from House Springs to De Soto, as a short cut to a large section of Southern Missouri. (Not included in the estimated cost for the St. Louis district.)

Widening of St. Charles road from St. Louis to St. Charles. (Not dependent on the bond issue, being included in the existing plan.)

Another advantage to accrue eventually, if the State road bond issue passes, will be the construction of a series of supplementary or farm-to-market roads in St. Louis County by the State. The plans, in addition, for county road improvement if the local bond issue carries, have not been prepared.

140,700 UNITS MADE IN MAY BY CHEVROLET

All-Time Record for Month—1,000,000-Car Year Appears Certainty.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., June 16.—All production records in the 16 years of the Chevrolet Motor Co. were broken in May, when the company turned out 140,700 units.

The output for a single day also reached a new level on May 28, when 7075 finished cars and trucks rolled off the assembly lines.

These figures, given by W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager, are felt to warrant the feeling in automotive circles that Chevrolet will not only equal its 1927 volume of a million cars well before the close of 1928, but also will duplicate its 1927 performance of building and selling more cars than any other manufacturer in the world.

Production of Chevrolet models between Jan. 1 and June 1 was 651,500 units, Knudsen said. This total includes production since the first of the year, as well as 32,000 new cars built in December so that dealers in all parts of the country would have cars for immediate delivery when the new model was publicly announced on Jan. 1.

Between Jan. 1 and June 1 last year the company built 513,000 new models; in 1926, 326,000 units, and in 1925 less than one-third the volume in the corresponding period this year, according to Knudsen.

The output in the month just ended was 25,000 units in excess of the 115,000 cars and trucks built in May, 1927, which had been the company's largest production month. In May, 1926, the turnout was 74,000 units, and in May, 1925, it was 52,000 units.

The record set in May, 1927, was bettered by 2000 units in the past February. March, in turn, was 17,000 units ahead of February, and April, with 135,800 cars and trucks, exceeded March by 2000 units.

In view of the high May volume, and the schedule for June, Knudsen said that by the middle of the year the number of new cars built would be well beyond the three-quarters of a million.

All production operations of the company have been running at capacity since early in the year, Knudsen said. More than 80 per cent of the May output was absorbed in this country.

Oakland-Pontiac Sales Increase

Sales of Oakland and Pontiac sixes during the first five months of this year reached a record total of 128,305 cars. This volume of sales shows an increase of 49,019 or nearly 62 per cent over the 79,286 Oakland-Pontiac sales recorded during the first five months of 1927 when the Oakland Motor Car Co. was moving up from ninth to fifth place in the automotive industry.

Why bother about which six?... Today you can get an Eight-in-Line for $1195--a man-sized Eight-in-Line--backed by four years of concentration on this modern type of motor car.

You can get closed models in this new Series 75 as low as $1295 — with a wheelbase of 122" and a 76 h. p. motor. Prices of Series 85 and 95 range from $1695 to $2495 . . . f. o. b. factory.

At Lambert Field

The St. Louis firm of Love-Sultan., Inc., has been appointed official airport consultant for Transcontinental Air Transport, it was announced yesterday by T. Preston Sultan, member of the firm, who was a pursuit flyer overseas during the World War and had four enemy planes officially credited to him.

Sultan's partner, Philip R. Love, was in Columbus, O., last week conferring about airport arrangements with Col. Lindbergh, chairman of the Transcontinental Air Transport techiacal committee. Love was a flying partner of Lindbergh in the Army Air Corps and on the St. Louis-Chicago mail route.

Contracts for carrying pictures from the national Republican convention at Kansas City to St. Louis kept Von Hoffmann Aircrafe Co. and Robertson Aircraft Corporation pilots busy during the past week.

"Red" Jackson made a trip daily for the Von Hoffmann concern carrying pictures for the Newspaper Enterprise Association. Thursday he made a night flight, landing at Parks Airport at 11:30 p. m., with the help of the new floodlights.

"Bud" Gurney, chief pilot for Robertson Aircraft Corporation, flew to Kansas City Monday with a load of newspapers and carried a second load Tuesday. After the convention had opened Tuesday he flew from Kansas City to New York with motion picture film which was developed in the cabin of his plane en route.

Altogether his day's flight totaled almost 1500 miles. He returned to St. Louis Thursday, landing at midnight without lights. E. L. Sloniger of the Robertson staff made a round trip to Kansas City Tuesday and Thursday and Leslie Smith, also of the mail route, made the trip Wednesday and Friday.

Two Fast Trips.

The Associated Press sent pictures to New York on Gurney's machine and in addition used two planes every day in carrying pictures to St. Louis to be put on the telephone wire. The planes used were a Lockheed and a Cessna piloted by out-of-town flyers.

Piloted by W. T. Ponder of Fort Worth the Cessna made the fastest run of the week from Kansas City, one hour and 48 minutes. He was helped by a tail wind. On the same day Jackson made the run from Kansas City to Parks Airport in two hours and five minutes, making almost the same speed an hour as Ponder.

Realty Men to Use Planes.

Jackson and Milt Girton are scheduled to carry members of the Real Estate Exchanges of St. Louis and St. Louis County to the annual convention in Louisville during the coming week. About 25 are expected to make the trip. Girton returned last week after three weeks in Paterson, N. J., where the engine of one of the Von Hoffmann Ryan broughams was overhauled at the Wright factory.

Flies to Funeral.

Julius Johannpeter, of Robertson Flying Services, returned last Tuesday in a DH-4 from San Antonio, Tex. His passenger was Mrs. W. Arthur Stickney of Country Club Court, whom he carried to Texas on the preceding Saturday to attend the funeral of her father.

More Stops for Air Mail.

Another new Whirlwind Travel-Air has been purchased by the Robertson Aircraft Corporation for use on the air mail route. It was bought from the estate of Billy Burke, a pilot of Okmulgee, Ok., who was killed recently. It was brought to St. Louis by Dan Robertson.

Besides its regular 80-gallon tank the ship has another 150-gallon tank so that it can carry enough fuel for about 20 hours flight. It will be used on long trips, replacing the Robertson DH's.

At a meeting of the Robertson board of directors Thursday the purchase of four new ships for the mail route was authorized. They are to be powered with Pratt & Whitney Wasps, or engines of equivalent power and tentative plans call for accommodations for four passengers and 700 pounds of mail.

Two new planes were purchased last week by Robertson Flying Services for use in the school. They are Waco-Tens, powered with OC-5 motors and are to be used for advanced training work.

Six-Cylinder Line of Graham Brothers' Trucks

Increased Capacity, Four-Wheel Brakes and Other Improvments.

A complete line of six-cylinder trucks and commercial cars, with larger capacity, longer wheelbase, four-wheel brakes and other improvements, are announced by Graham Brothers Division of Dodge Brothers, and are being shown this week by the Tate Motor Co., supplanting the 4-cylinder trucks. The new line ranges in size from a package express to a 2½-tonner. The new designations are merchants express, commercial truck, one and one-quarter-ton, one and three-quarter-ton, and two and a half-ton.

Graceful lines of engine hood and cabs, with bodies lacquered in attractive colors, have been combined with sturdiness and dependability.

Four-wheel brakes on all models, radiator shutters operated from the dash, and temperature indicators on the instrument board on all models, except the merchants express, are features. Adoption of an internal gear, four-speed transmission in the one and one-quarter ton and heavier capacities, insures two quiet high speeds, longer engine life and greater fuel economy. Lockheed hydraulic internal expanding brakes are standard equipment on the commercial truck and heavier capacities, while Midland steeldraulic mechanical internal expanding brakes are provided on the merchants express. All brakes are enclosed.

Increased loading space and carrying capacity are insured by longer wheelbase and roomy construction of bodies.

Safety and ease of operation are made possible by the roominess and full-vision of the cabs on all models. Seat backs are of the sedan construction with wider and deeper cushions. Maximum vision is afforded by steel corner posts, and the windshield is one piece, easily adjusted for ventilation. Thottle, spark and lighting control levers are on top of the steering wheel.

The engine used in all capacities, except the two and one-half ton, has a bore and stroke of 3⅜ by 3⅞ inches with displacement of 207.99 cubic inches. Combustion chambers are machined to secure equal compression and smooth performance. A seven-bearing crankshaft, statically and dynamically balance, has a total projected bearing area of 24.15 square inches.

The engine in the two and one-half ton model has a bore and a stroke of 3⅝ by 4½ inches.

Engine accessories on all models include oil filter, air cleaner, crankshaft ventilator and thermostat, making certain control of the engine temperature.

Chassis prices, at factory, are $775 for the commercial truck, $995 for the short wheelbase of the one and one-quarter ton capacity and $1065 for the longer wheelbase. On the one and three-quarter ton capacity for the short and long wheelbase, the prices are respectively $1345 and 1415, and for the two and one-half ton capacity, the prices are $1595 for the short and $1665 for the long wheelbase. The merchants express model completely equipped with panel body is priced at $845. The chassis price is $665.

Shatter-Proof Glass on Stutz

Seven out of every 10 injuries to motorists are caused by flying glass.

The solution to this situation is obvious, according to the Stutz Motor Co., and is to be found in the use of glass which is proof against shattering.

"In eliminating the danger of flying and shattering glass to the driver and occupants, Stutz engineers were in the vanguard," he says. "After much experimenting and testing they chose Protex glass for the windows and windshields of Stutz cars."

Big Part in Car Buying Played by Lines and Colors

Growing Influence of Feminine Taste Shown by Trend in Auto Design.

Attractive lines and colors play a most important part in the public's choice of motor cars this spring, according to authorities in the industry. Women are believed to be the most important factor in bringing this about. "Hudson-Essex sales, which have broken records all this year, have centered largely on style and beauty," declares R. C. Frampton, Hudson-Essex distributer.

"Bright, sparkling colors still feature motor car fashions, and the prospect is that the vogue will continue indefinitely," said Frampton. "Our latest Hudson-Essex feature is a special line of cars with all fenders and related parts lacquered to match the upper part of the body. This is instead of the usual black enamel which continues on the standard cars. Color in the fenders gives a wonderfully attractive effect and yet these specially finished cars sell at only a small advance.

"The growing importance of color is an interesting recent phase of manufacturing. Especially it reflects feminine influence. We offer colorful cars because feminine taste largely guides the selection of new automobiles just as it shapes the great majority of expenditures by modern families, and it has evidently decreed a permanent vogue for light and attractive tones.

"The public has acquired an assured consciousness of quality and has definitely left behind the timid conservatism of former times. People know the beauty of color and confidently trust their own judgment.

"All Hudson-Essex cars this year are offered in modern style and appealing colors. The variety is wide. All the colors used are practical and of the type that wears well, and yet they have a sparkling and stimulating effect which adds greatly to the enjoyment of owning them."

Speed Record Said To Create Demand

Falcon-Knight dealers throughout the country report an unprecedented demand for the 1928 Falcon-Knight sixes. Many of the dealers said this demand was due to the unusual performance of the Falcon-Knight six since its introduction coupled with the recent record-breaking run of a Falcon-Knight coach when Cannon Ball Baker covered 3195 miles from Washington, D. C., to Los Angeles in 73 hours and 46 minutes. The Baker record clipped six hours and eight minutes off the former transcontinental record. The Falcon-Knight transcontinental record was established under the official time check of the Western Union at the start and finishing points.

HUDSON Gasoline Mileage for yourself
✓ a visible test that shows the gas you use and the miles you get

RESULTS reported from all over the country, with this visible test device illustrated above, show from 15 to 18 miles per gallon for Hudson and 18 to 25 miles per gallon for the Essex Super-Six. The tests not only demonstrate gasoline mileage never before obtained by cars of such brilliant performance, but also graphically illustrate how different drivers obtain varying results, operating the same cars over the same routes under exactly the same conditions. It makes absurd many advertising claims of gasoline mileage (based on maximum results) when practically applied by the average driver.

While visible test meters are not available to all Hudson-Essex dealers, equally decisive tests are provided to show what mileage you can obtain with a Hudson or Essex car.

You need only make the test to know the gasoline efficiency of the Super-Six high-compression motor excels anything ever known for cars of comparable performance and compares favorably with cars of little or no performance distinction.

MORE TALK OF MERGER IN DETROIT

Studebaker and Pierce-Arrow Presidents Admit Negotiations.

DETROIT, Mich June 17—New Nash models and the prospect of another merger stirred up things a bit in the automobile industry this week. The companies in the latest merger negotiations are Studebaker and Pierce-Arrow, two of the oldest and best known manufacturers.

Officials of both companies admit they have been talking things over M. E. Forbes, president of Pierce-Arrow, said negotiations have been going on looking to a combination of the companies, but he declined to state what state the proposition had reached A. R. Erskine, president of the Studebaker corporation, admitted he and Forbes had been in conference on combining the two companies.

"I have had informal conversations with Forbes, but nothing definitely has developed" he said.

Daily production of the new Model A cars by the Ford Motor Company is now between 2800 and 3000. The highest single day's output of the new cars was on Monday this week when slightly more than 3000 were built. Local Ford plants added 376 employes last week bringing the total to 117,200, a new high compared with a peak employment during production of the Model T of 110,000 in 1926 and the low point last summer of 52,000.

A new six cylinder car called the Plymouth will soon be introduced, it is reported.

Durant Export Record in April

The export division of Durant Motors, Inc., broke all sales records in April and shipments for the first four months of 1928 show an increase of 30 per cent over the four-month period of any previous year, according to T. S. Johnston, assistant to W. C. Durant.

Indications are that export shipments for May from the Elizabeth plant alone will be 300 per cent greater than May of last year, thus establishing a new record for foreign sales.

The increase at this time demonstrates particularly the development of European sales, as ordinarily export volume reaches its highest peak during the later months of the year. The best previous record was made in September, 1927.

Through the repeal of the automobile war tax the delivery price of all automobiles manufactured or distributed in the United States has been reduced from $7 on the lowest priced cars to $183 for the highest priced cars.

CONTEST WINNER

C. C. MICHAEL.

Winner of the Dodge contest which brought 340,000 answers from all over the world.

'Making a Good Name Better' Selected as Victory Six Slogan

C. C. Michael of Colorado Springs Wins $1000 in Dodge Contest.

"Making a Good Name Better."

That's the prize winning slogan in Dodge Brothers $20,000 contest to find the best one describing the Victory Six car.

Of the 340,000 slogans sent in from every state in the Union and many foreign countries, C. C. Michael of Colorado Springs, Colo., submitted the winning one by unanimous decision of the judges. Michael has been awarded $1000 first prize, and checks have been mailed to the entire list of 354 prize winners scattered over 44 states and Canada.

The thousands of answers sent in became a staggering task for the officials of Dodge Brothers who have worked constantly since the closing of the contest, March 31, to obtain a slogan that most appropriately described the Victory Six performance.

Contestants had to ride in the car before they could submit slogans and thousands of reactions to the Victory's phenomenal performance made the task of selecting the best one difficult.

It required official notification from Dodge Brothers to convince Michael that he has been awarded the $1000 prize on the contest.

"The money will help me own my home much sooner than I expected to," said Michael. "A man with a wife and two children certainly can use this money to good advantage."

Michael is 26 years of age and is employed as a distributer for a bakery company.

Two St. Louisans were winners of a seventh prize award in the contest. They were Miss Mary Harper, 506 Olive street, and Ola E. Jones, 4654 Evans avenue.

Mrs. Herbert A. Sloan of Kansas City, Mo., was adjudged winner of the contest for women in 109 cities to write the best answer to the question "Why is the Dodge Senior Six the car for the active young woman of today?" She had her friends write letters from which she gathered ideas for her reply. These letters she assembled in a book which she decorated.

J. F. Page Made Service Manager For Packard

Head of Chicago Branch Succeeds H. N. Davock, Who Resigned.

After having gained recognition through his work as service manager of the Packard branch in Chicago, J. F. Page has been appointed general service manager of the Packard Motor Car Co. He succeeds H. N. Davock, who resigned because of ill health.

Page became service manager for Packard in Chicago in 1919. He had served during the war in the operations division of the general staff at Washington until commissioned a Major and assigned to the Adjutant-General's staff. He assumed his post with Packard at the close of the war.

The big service station of the Packard Chicago branch was designed and built under Page's supervision. It was rather revolutionary in design as studies Page made of service work all over the country led to the new idea that service work could be done best in buildings of large floor area and the minimum number of stories possible. The station has but two stories. It has been much used as a model for service buildings by Packard and others all over the country.

In making the announcement of Page's promotion, H. H. Hills, vice president of distribution, said T. A. Stalker will be manager of the technical department, B. R. Horsley will be manager of the parts department, J. D. Wilson will continue as manager of the accessory department and H. C. Taylor will continue to handle time studies for the Packard standardized service systems.

Old Autos as Levees.

Pierre, S. D., is one town of the United States, which is free of old worked-out automobiles piled in alleys and on dumping grounds. Old cars provide bank protection from the erosion which changes the banks of the Missouri at practically every high water stage.

Fisher Body Plants

Take 50,000 men and women representing 125 trades employed in 46 mammoth factories with a combined floor area of more than 326 acres of land—add to this 25,000,000 feet of lumber in yards or kilns all the time; a yearly consumption of 30,000,000 bolts, 1,500,000 pounds of tacks and 1,000,000,000 screws; 25,000,000 square feet of plate glass, 2,500,000 yards of carpet—then, one may have a slight idea of the tremendous economic importance of the Fisher Body Corporation of Detroit.

There are complete Fisher body manufacturing plants in Detroit, Flint, Mich., Pontiac, Mich., St. Louis, Cleveland, Fleetwood Pa., and Walkerville, Ont.

SIX CYLINDER PERFORMANCE at $1065
that's Chrysler "62" Value

CHRYSLER "62"—at new lower prices, $1065 and upwards—constantly keeps on increasing its lead over all competition by embodying new and finer features hitherto available in the "72" and Imperial "80."

In the Chrysler "62," for instance, chassis spring ends are now mounted in rubber shock insulators instead of metal shackles. It is the only car of its price with this equipment.

Among other inimitable advantages of Chrysler Standardized Quality are the 7-bearing crankshaft in perfect balance, hydraulic 4-wheel brakes always perfectly equalized for safety, ventilated crankcase, pivotal steering.

Come and see this Chrysler "62"—the stylish lines, the roomy bodies, the unusual fineness of fittings and upholstery. Then drive it. See what these Chrysler "62" features really mean in greater performance and comfort.

PASSENGER CAR OUTPUT HOLDS OWN

Slight Seasonal Declines—Sales Fairly Strong, Outlook Favorable.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., June 16.—Passenger car production holds at steady levels, showing only the expected slight seasonal declines, according to B. H. Cram, president of Cram's Automotive Reports, Inc. Output the latter part of the month is expected to increase as various companies get under way on new models. Sales continue fairly strong and the outlook generally is favorable.

Truck output does not vary as compared with this time last month, with schedules about 14 per cent below this time last year. Retail sales are steady, with a firm demand for light units and continued improvement in the heavy duty market.

Parts and accessories output continues to show seasonal declines, although it is expected that the drop in June as compared with May will be very slight. Sales are generally firm with the retail market providing a substantial amount of business.

AUTO SALON DATES SET FOR 1928-29

First Session at New York Scheduled to Open on Dec. 2.

Preliminary announcement of the plans for the twenty-fourth annual Automobile Salon schedule four sessions of this famous exhibition of fine chassis and custom coachwork, to be held in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

The dates for the 1928-1929 season are as follows: New York, Hotel Commodore, Dec. 2 to 8, 1928; Chicago, Hotel Drake, Jan. 26 to Feb. 2, 1929; Los Angeles, Hotel Biltmore, Feb. 9 to 16, 1929, and San Francisco, Palace Hotel, Feb. 23 to March 2.

Requests for space already received on behalf of eligible chassis and real custom built coachwork considerably exceed the exhibition space available in the four prominent hotels. At the Commodore in New York, the overflow exhibits in the main lobby will rival the main salon on the ballroom floor.

In Chicago additional space has been arranged at the Drake, so that this salon also will be larger than ever before. The new ballroom at the Biltmore in Los Angeles will accommodate about twice as many exhibits as have been displayed there in the past two seasons, while the famous main dining room of the Palace will be utilized in San Francisco.

Rigidly restricted to high priced chassis and real custom built coachwork the Automobile Salon has grown steadily in size and in prestige. New records were established last season, especially from the standpoint of sales. There is every indication that the 1928-1929 salons will surpass even last season's marked success. An interesting development will be the participation of a number of European carrossiers.

Aluminum License Tags.

Tests are now being made in the United States of license tags made of aluminum instead of steel. Aluminum weighs just one-third as much as steel, and the material is strong, as is attested by its use for automobile crank cases, pistons and bodies. It is also rust proof, and on the new type of license plates the background could be left in its natural state, with only the figures and letters colored. This does away with a background of enamel, effecting still greater economies.

Graham-Paige Ships 30,000 In 5 Months

New Line of Cars Already Exceeds Total for Last Year.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, June 16.—Graham-Paige shipped its 30,000th car June 1, less than five months after the new line of cars was presented, says an announcement by the Graham-Paige Motors Corporation. Last month brought the total 1928 production of the Graham-Paige to 29,916 cars, which is 2.8 times the total for the first five months of last year. The total for this year up to June 1 is 8035 cars in excess of the entire 12 months' production of 1927.

Many established new records in production and shipping, exceeding all previous months in the 18 years' history of the factory. The production for May totaled 8511, as compared with 8275 in April; shipping totaled 8560, as against 8357 in April.

New daily records were made both in production and in shipping. On the last day of May, 609 cars were shipped, 108 more than the record, made in the previous month. The new production record for a single day was established May 28, when 413 cars were built, exceeding by 10 a record that had stood since May 29, 1925.

Reports received by the factory from distributors all over the country show striking gains in the position occupied by Graham-Paige.

Registrations in Wayne County, Mich., which includes Detroit, have long been regarded as a close index of trends in motor car buying. In this territory, Graham-Paige stood in seventh place in May registrations. In January, Graham-Paige was in seventeenth place, and in successive months was thirteenth, tenth, eighth and now seventh.

In Victoria, B. C., Graham-Paige climbed to third place in registrations, having been surpassed only by Chevrolet and Ford. At Indianapolis, Graham-Paige ranked fifth in car sales in May; at Dallas, ninth in the total registrations. Cook County, Ill., including Chicago, found Graham-Paige in tenth position; in Los Angeles, Graham-Paige stood tenth; in Minneapolis, eighth; Philadelphia, tenth, a gain of two places since April. In San Francisco, Graham-Paige occupied eleventh position up to May 23 (later figures being not yet available), indicating a gain of four places in one month.

Improvements In Combustion On Oldsmobile

Just what occurs when gasoline vapor is introduced into a cylinder combustion chamber, compressed and fired is a problem that has baffled automotive engineers. However, they have made progress in its solution with the resultant increase in power and smoothness of operation found in the better cars of today.

Study of the problem is comparable to the youthful researcher who, on July Fourth, holds a lighted fire cracker in his hand "to see what will happen." Both the boy and the automotive engineers are dealing with something that operates practically instantaneously and with terrific force.

The principles of an internal combustion engine are well known. Vaporized gasoline is mixed with air, heated, and then drawn into the cylinder by the downward stroke of the piston. The upward piston stroke compresses the vapor and an electric spark explodes the mixture, the resulting explosion transmitting energy to the engine by means of the power stroke of the piston.

Engineers also know that increasing compression increases power, up to a certain point and then power is lost and "detonation," or what is commonly known as a carbon knock, results. Also they know that different curves in the combustion chamber influence the useful force of the explosion.

During the two years that the new Oldsmobile was being designed months of efforts was expended to obtain best results in combustion. This effort resulted in a new design of combustion chamber which gives high compression performance without the use of special fuel. The compression ratio is 5 to 1 or approximately 98 pounds. The design further controls the explosion so that the rise of pressure within the chambers and cylinders is progressive and the pressure peak is more nearly continuous.

4000-Mile Scenic Motor Tour of Texas

By the Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Tex., June 16.—The Highway Club of Texas, sponsor of the Scenic Motor Tour, is endeavoring to have maps of the main route ready for the Democratic national convention in Houston in June.

By that time it is expected to have ready a large illuminated map for display. It will show the points of historic interest and the natural beauty spots, together with the highways and the most feasible routes to any particular point.

At the Scenic Motor Tour meeting in Kerrville a few weeks ago the committee designated about 4000 miles of highway, together with 16 state parks and numerous points of historic interest as the main route or backbone of the tour.

Dealers to Meet As New Nash "400" Line Is Announced

Notable Body Designs and Mechanical Innovations Reported Despite Secrecy.

A meeting of Nash dealers and their service managers in the territory for which the Southwest Nash Co. is distributer will be held Tuesday at the company's headquarters, 3000 Locust boulevard, in connection with announcement of a new Nash "Series 400" line of automobiles There will be a general discussion of dealers' problems.

Reports from the Nash plants at Kenosha, Wis., are that the company's organizations in Kenosha, Racine and Milwaukee have been stepped up to maximum speed for a month or more, turning out the new models, and that whole trainloads of the cars have been sent to distributers. Greater secrecy than ever before has been maintained as to features of the new cars.

It is said, however, that a feature will be a greatly advanced use of new engineering principles, especially in relation to numerous mechanical innovations to improve riding comfort and operating control. Exceptional performance and beauty of line that will set new standards in their field are promised.

The new models are described as perfectly co-ordinating body and chassis design, as a result of more than a year's co-operative work by Nash engineers and Seaman coach builders.

Large numbers of orders are reported from buyers who insist on immediate delivery, for all that they have not seen the cars.

Is It the Car or Man?

A race between the world's greatest automobile drivers, but all with exactly the same cars is being organized by one of the leading automobile builders of France. The proposal is made to see what different men will do with the same automobile and to determine whether it is the car or the man that wins a race.

Women Drive Car 500 Miles at Speed Of 77.21 M. P. H.

Studebaker Commander Used in Feat Had Gone 51,000 Miles Before Test.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—The Contest Board of the American Automobile Association has just announced completion of a test of automobile speed and endurance unique in motor car history. Driven entirely by women pilots, fully equipped stock Studebaker Commander roadster traveled 500 miles on the Atlantic City speedway in 388 consecutive minutes, at an average speed of 77.21 miles per hour. None of the women who drove the cars had had more than the average driving experience, and none had before piloted a car on a

The speed made closely approaches the highest 500-mile record for fully equipped stock cars which is 79.61 miles per hour and is also held by the Commander, driven by men.

The Commander's performance in the hands of women drivers surpasses all other previous records made by fully equipped stock cars. The Commander completed the 500 miles without repairs or mechanical adjustments of any kind. The car used had been driven more than 51,000 miles. At the completion of the run the car made five additional laps at an average speed of 80.1 miles per hour.

The entire run was made under the sanction and observation of the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association.

83 Per Cent of 1927 Cars Closed.

Nearly 83 per cent of the automobiles manufactured in the United States in 1927 were closed models. The trend toward the closed car has been a steady one since 1919, when only 10.3 per cent of the cars were closed.

BODY BY FISHER

See for Yourself why Experienced Owners Demand Bodies by Fisher

In Oakland-Pontiac showrooms throughout the United States a special Fisher Body Demonstration opens Saturday, June 16. Co-operating with the Fisher Body Corporation, Oakland has arranged to demonstrate to automobile owners everywhere the reasons for the superiority and popularity of Fisher bodies.

You have heard the Fisher emblem on automobiles compared to the "sterling" mark on silver. You have read that Fisher construction, combining selected hardwood and steel, is stauncher and more enduring. You have heard Fisher body craftsmen referred to as the foremost builders of automobile bodies in the world.

Come to our showroom during the Fisher Body Demonstration and find out why all these statements are true. Learn how Fisher builds bodies and what high quality of materials is used. See for yourself why experienced owners demand bodies by Fisher. Don't miss this opportunity to gain a sound understanding of such an important part of your automobile.

Oakland All-American Six, $1045 to $1265. New Series Pontiac Six, $745 to $875. All prices at factory. Check Oakland-Pontiac delivered prices—they include lowest handling charges. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

MACAULEY HEADS U. S. AUTO MEN

Packard President Elected to Head Motor C. of C.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 17.—Alvan Macauley was elected president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce at its annual meeting. The retiring president is Roy D. Chapin, chairman of the Hudson Motor Car Co. Macauley, who is president of Packard Motor Car Co., for many years has been a director of the Chamber.

Many progressive steps have been taken under Chapin's administration, the Board of Directors stated in paying tribute to his services. There has been strong co-operation with motor associations abroad, worldwise use of motor transport has reached a new high level as indicated by registration figures, and the passing on of the excise tax repeal to the customers of the industry has added new impetus to the motor markets.

The other oficers elected were: Alfrd H. Swayne (General Motors), first vice president; A. R. Erskine (Studebaker), vice president, passenger car division; A. J. Brosseau (Mack), vice president, commercial car division; H. H. Rice (Chevrolet), treasurer; John N. Willys (Willys-Overland), secretary, and Alfred Reeves, general manager.

In addition to the officers, the Board includes: Walter P. Chrysler (Chrysler), Robert C. Graham (Graham-Paige), Charles D. Hastings (Hupmobile), Fred J. Haynes (Dodge Brothers), C. W. Nash (Nash), William E. Metzger (Federal), R. E. Olds (Reo), Walter C. White (White), Roy D. Chapin (Hudson). Charles Clifton is honorary president.

Car Rental Agencies Use Gardners

A growing demand for rental cars on the drive-yourself basis is evidenced by the Tuthill-Gardner Motor Corporation, distributor of Gardner eights, having established fleets of Gardner "eights" with three of the largest concerns operating this type of service in St. Louis.

E. M. Tooley, president-manager of the National Drive-It-Yourself System, 3328 Washington boulevard, introduced the Gardner in St. Louis on the rental basis. He has been adding to his fleet at the rate of two cars a month.

The past week Gardner fleets were placed in service with the Black and White Rent a Car, 3623 Washington boulevard, through an order placed by C. J. Haines, president, and by the Driverless Co., Inc., which operates several branches, through A. Bick, president.

Campbell Heads Accessory Men

The new president of the Automotive Accessory Association of St. Louis, Stuart Campbell of the Campbell Iron Co., has outlined a policy of activity of that association for the coming year which should bring all of its members into close and profitable touch with each other.

Campbell plans with the aid of his board of directors to hold a number of additional meetings during the year both for members of the association and for the automotive industry in general.

The new officers of the Automotive Accessory Association are: Stuart Campbell, Campbell Iron Co., president; Claude Merry, H. C. Merry, Inc., vice president; Robert E. Lee, secretary and treasurer; directors: Frank Quan, Fred Campbell Auto Supply Co.; H. H. Fleer, Fleer-Petty Auto Supply Co.; W. T. Mills, Auto Parts Co., and J. T. Hughes, Berger Manufacturing Co.

Quota Exceeded By Durant Dealers

Durant dealers gathered in St. Louis recently to do honor to W. C. Durant, president of the Durant Motor Co.

At a noonday luncheon at the Coronado Hotel, W. S. Cook, general manager of the factory branch, Durant Motor Co. of St. Louis, stated that each month production records had been broken at the Elizabeth (N. J.) plant of Durant Motors, and, while final production records for May were not yet available, the St. Louis territory had exceeded its quota almost 100 per cent.

After the luncheon the dealers showed their appreciation of the entire Durant organization by each driving one or more Durant cars from the local branch to their places of business, and formed a parade of 45 new cars four blocks long.

Hatfield Urges Favorable Vote On Road Bonds

Says Passage of County Highway Issue Will Increase Property Values.

A favorable vote on the proposed $10,000,000 St. Louis County road bond issue is advocated by A. E. Hatfield, president of the Mississippi Valley Motor Co., who is a member of the Highway Committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

"There is, and should be, great interest in the $10,000,000 county bond issue, which will be voted on Saturday, June 23," said Hatfield yesterday.

"Expansion of hard roads in the county will increase the value of property, for building of new homes always follows completion cf paved highways, which permit driving the year around.

"Automobile owners, of course, long have been sold on the value of good roads. But the farmer and truck gardener in the county should be as deeply interested in roads which will enable them to reach the market any time of the year, regardless of weather.

"The cost of carrying and gradually retiring the bonds is negligible compared with the increase in values and the increase in convenience for every resident that will result from the road improvements for which the bond money will be spent."

The Highway Committee of the Chamber of Commerce at a meeting Thursday indorsed the St. Louis County road bond issue proposal, with the understanding that an advisory committee would be appointed.

"There is no county in the State which needs road development as much as St. Louis County needs it," says a statement for the committee. It is so situated that it is called upon to bear a tremendous traffic. Nearly 50,000 cars are owned by residents of the county and it adjoins the city of St Louis, with over 150,000 automobiles, many of which constantly use hte highways of the county. Three transcontinental highways pass through St. Louis County—No. 40 over St. Charles road and Nos. 50 and 61 over the Manchester road.

"The highways are inadequate in width and in number, properly to take care of this traffic. On account of the great use to which they are subject, the cost of maintenance is high. Thirteen years ago St. Louis County voted a bond issue of $3,000,000. Since that time traffic needs of the county have increased many fold. If $3,000,000 was justified in 1915, as it was, certainly $10,000,000 is justified now.

During that period the assessed valuation and the population of the county has almost doubled. The cost of the bond issue to the taxpayers is relatively small and the construction oft he roads with this money will make the taxes an investment rather than an imposition.

There is no conflict whatever between the proposed $75,000,000 bond issue for State purposes and the $10,000,000 issue for the county. If the State issue carries, there will be available for the construction of St. Louis County nearly $10,000,000 and with the local issue, which will be spent entirely for local purposes, St. Louis County will have roads in number and character in keeping with its size, population and importance."

Correct Type of Plug Is Essential

It is of importance to the motorist that the proper spark plug be used, partciularly in view of the trend towards higher compression engines. Higher compression and engine speeds mean more heat in the cylinders and higher operating temperature for the spark plug. Electrodes and insulators must be designed to carry away this additional heat. At the same time, the spark plug must function satisfactorily under "cool" operating conditions when the engine is operating at slow speed or idling.

There are the problems that spark plugs face—preignition due to excessive heat of the insulator and electrodes at high speeds, fouling due to their running too cool at low speeds.

"Naturally," says H. Rabessana, research engineer of the AC Spark Plug Co., "it was necessary to develop to the highest point facilities for testing and developing spark plugs. The motorist should be sure to use the correct type of spark plug as recommended by the manufacturer's specifications in order to obtain the best possible operating efficiency from his car.

$1000 Prize Offer By Graham-Paige

A prize of $1000 is offered to the undergraduate of any American college or university who produces the best dramatization of the spirit of the Graham-Paige Legion, a world-wide honorary group within the organization of the Graham-Paige Motors Corporation, with headquarters at Detroit. Ten additional awards of $100 each will be given. Any form of dramatic expression will be considered.

The judges of the contest, which closes Sept. 1, will be Zoe Akins, author of "Footlocse" and other plays; Norman-Bel Geddes, author and pageant director, and a third to be chosen by these two.

Ford Motor Co. Observes Its Twenty-fifth Birthday

Tremendous Growth of Concern Began June 16, 1903, When It Was Organized With Only $28,000 Paid-in Capital.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., June 16.—Today is the silver anniversary—the twenty-fifth birthday—of the Ford Motor Co.

It was on June 16, 1903, that the company was organized with a capital of $100,000, of which $28,000 was paid in. A wooden one-story building on Mack avenue, Detroit, was rented for $1000 a year and work was started on a car designed by Henry Ford. The car sold at the remarkably low price for that period of $850 or $100 additional with tonneau. It was called the Model A and had a two-cylinder engine.

Today the company is building another Model A. Its capitalization has increased to $100,000,000. From a quarter of an acre of space, it has expanded till it covers more than 1500 acres. From 311 employes it has grown to employing more than 200,000. Its branches have increased from one to 36 in the United States. In South America, Cuba, Mexico, Europe, Egypt, China and Japan, offices or associate companies are located. The Ford Co. of Canada, Ltd., supplies the trade in Canada and the British Empire, except the British Isles.

Its Rapid Growth.

From an annual production of 1708 cars, the company has enlarged its facilities until it has produced as high as 9000 cars in a singe day, and more than 2,000,000 in one year.

Shortly after the company was launched, the one-story structure on Mack avenue had to be enlarged, and when the owner refused to build on a second story, the company took one-half its paid-up capital and added the story. Within two years more it was necessary to move to an entirely new plant at Piquette avenue and Beaubien street; and within another two years to move once more, this time to Highland Park. The latter site was purchased in 1907 and the original building was occupied during 1909.

Oct. 1, 1908, the company introduced its Model T to the world. From that time production swept ahead, from 10,660 cars in 1909 to 20,000 in 1910 and 35,000 in 1911. The Highland Park plant was doubled and redoubled, and still did not provide enough room. Henry Ford then planned an even larger plant, to be probably the largest industrial plant in the world, and in 1916 initiated the first steps toward the building of such an enterprise on the River Rouge, west of Detroit.

Tremendous Plants.

Other plants were added, aside from what is now called the Fordson plant. At Highland Park is the world's largest radiator plant; the Ford textile and rubber reclaim departments; the wire plant; the great machine shops; the Henry Ford Trade School; the artificial leather plant; the largest forging shop in the world, and many other activities.

Most of the production operations, however, are now centered at Fordson, where the company has its own blast furnaces, power plant, the largest foundry in the world, machine shop, motor assembly plant, body plant, coke ovens, open-hearth furnaces, steel plant, and rolling mill, paper mill, cement plant, glass factory and other activities. Here are storage bins for ore, coal and limestone capable of holding 2,000,000 tons. Here are the docks where lake steamers can unload direct from hold to bin. Here various byproducts are made, and here is the Fordson terminus of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railroad.

Some of the other plants added to the Ford group near Detroit include the Engineering Laboratory at Dearborn; the Ford Airport and airplane manufacturing plant at Dearborn; the Lincoln plant in Detroit; plants at Flat Rock, Waterford, Phoenix, Plymouth, and Nankin Mills. Other plants are at Hamilton, O.; Glassmere, Pa.; Iron Mountain, L'Anse and Pequaming, Mich.

In coal, iron ore and timber resources, the Ford interests have expanded almost as extensively as in factory facilities. Lake freighters have been bought to ply back and forth between the mines or forests and the Fordson plant. A Ford-owned railroad also moves company products. Other Ford vessels operate at sea carrying automobile parts to Ford plants on the Pa and Atlantic coasts and to fo ports.

SOCIALISTS TO FIGHT TO KEEP THEIR STATION

Will Raise Issue of Free Speech for WEVD Against the Commission.

The Socialist station in New York, WEVD, is among the 162 ordered by the Radio Commission to show cause why they should not be denied a license after Aug. 1. A fight to keep this station on the air is planned by the Debs Radio Fund, on the ground that free speech, and radio representation of the Socialist party and liberal thought, are at stake.

WEVD has broadcast addresses by Clarence Darrow, Norman Thomas, Morris Hillquit, Carl D. Thompson, Senator Lynn Frazier and other leaders of progressive thought," says an official statement for the Debs Fund. "It has given time to the Socialist Party, the Society of Friends, the Fellowship of Reconciliation, the Women's Peace Society, the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, the National Consumer's League and organizations of similar type.

"WEVD is not one of the small and comparatively weak commercial stations that cumber the air. It is the only station of its kind in the East and has been the mouthpiece not only, or chiefly, for the Socialist Party, but, in general, for labor, liberal and pacifist organizations which without it can neither pay the price nor find the time to broadcast from other stations.

"What sort of public policy is it on the part of the Radio Commission which at this juncture proposes to shut down the one station in the East which is the mouthpiece of those groups most opposed to the dominance of the Power Trust and the social theory of which it is at the moment the most conspicuous exponent. So strong is our case that we find it impossible to believe that the Radio Commission will care to go on record as denying even a semblance of free speech on the air by refusing us a license."

Special N. B. C. Station for Coolidge

President Coolidge will be able to listen in on nationally famous radio programs during his vacation at Brule Lake, Wis. Arrangements have been made for WEBC, at Superior, Wis., to become associated with the National Broadcasting Co. system until Sept. 1.

WEBC recently was granted an increase in power because of the summer White House at Brule Lake.

The Wisconsin station will participate in the NBC's broadcast of the conventions and, on a weekly basis, will broadcast approximately 12 hours of "sustaining programs," as the type sponsored by the NBC and associated stations are called.

Possibility that WEBC also will broadcast programs of the "sponsored" type was expressed by NBC officials.

Grand Opera Again Today Over WIL

Another grand opera bill is being prepared for this afternoon by the WIL Grand Opera Company, directed by Mme. Thoms, who at one time was cloratura soprano at the Imperial Opera in Vienna and a concert pianist in Germany. Members of the company are Agnes Vogeler, soprano; Jack Coleman, tenor; Nortis Allen, baritone, and Roland Pahl.

Norma Bridges, blues singer, is to be heard regularly over WIL.

The Missouri Pacific quartet of colored singers are singing regularly over WIL.

Maxwell Summer Series on KSD

The first of a series of Maxwell House coffee concerts for summer will be broadcast at 7 o'clock Thursday night over KSD. Lewis James, the American tenor, has the role of soloist and the Maxwell House coffee concert orchestra, under the direction of Nathaniel Shilkret will provide the orchestral background.

For the Notebook.

Have the set free from dust and dirt at all times.

For the best results the "B" battery lead in each radio frequency stage should be by-passed.

No set should cause interference excepting if it is defective. Any electrical device may cause interference if defective.

New Finnish Station Powerful.

The Lahtis broadcasting station has just been opened in Finland. It operates on 1525 meters with 35,000 watts, and the power is to be increased to 40,000 watts. American listeners might get the station under favorable conditions.

RADIO GUIDE FOR FLYERS TO AUSTRALIA

Met Supreme Test in Keeping Craft Constantly on Gourse.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 16.—Radio has performed its greatest service to aviation in guiding four daring airmen safely 7800 miles from San Francisco to Australia, most of the way over the Pacific Ocean.

Never failing to give the flyers needed directions all the time they were in the air, the radio also kept the world informed of what was taking place in the small cabin of the plane, the Southern Cross, as it winged its way southwestward.

To James Warner, radio operator of the crew, fell the lot of clicking out in dots and dashes the dramatic story of their progress. He also kept a weather ear free for radio beacon signals and messages from ship and shore stations that are of such value to the aviator surrounded by dense fog, with nothing below but mile-deep water.

Reception aboard the plane was perfect, making possible a continuous check of its position. Likewise land and ship stations could hear Warner easily, and reports came from many sections of the plane's progress.

Service During Storm.

Even when the plane encountered storms on the last over-water leg of the flight, the radio continued with its story.

Much of the radio success was attributed to the careful plans followed in selecting the equipment, which was especially designed for airplane use. It was built sturdy enough to withstand the terrific vibration of the air machine and to provide great transmitting power in small space.

The three transmitters and receivers carried weighed less than 100 pounds after being installed. They were encased in aluminum and were designed to operate on 33.5 meters and on 600 to 740 meters, with an emergency set for use in case the plane was forced down.

The short wave outfit was practically "fool proof," no adjustments being necessary after its final test before installation. Short waves were used to reach land listeners, while the longer waves were called upon to communicate with ocean liners and commercial land stations.

Emergency Set Waterproof.

The emergency set was waterproof and was capable of operating eight hours after being plunged under water. It carried a special antenna, to the end of which was attached a tube of hydrogen capable of raising the wire nearly 200 feet straight into the air and keeping it there.

In the flight to Hawaii one receiver was kept tuned to radio beacon signals which were being transmitted by army stations at San Francisco and Hilo. This invisible guide warned the flyers the minute they strayed from the course.

The pickup and radiating systems were two special reel antennas. The reel was so designed that the wire would not move out more than an eighth of an inch at a time unless controlled by the operator. This scheme prevented the aerial from snapping off during flight. An antenna 26 feet long was used on short waves, with one of 200 feet for the longer waves.

NEW ANNOUNCER

DONALD CLARK,
Who has just joined the NBC announcing staff in New York.

Will Attempt World Rebroadcast

The Columbia Phonograph Hour, featuring Paul Whiteman and his orchestra, to be broadcast through KSD and a coast-to-coast chain of stations associated with the NBC on Tuesday evening, from 8 to 9 o'clock will be heard around the world, according to plans under way.

Powerful foreign broadcasters will endeavor to "pick up" and rebroadcast the shortwave signals of 2 XAF on 31.4 meters. Two XAF will be connected with WGY, at Schenectady, N. Y.

There is every possibility of the short-wave transmission being "picked up" and rebroadcast in England, France, Germany, South Africa, Australia and South America.

'Radio Will Elect Next President,' Says NBC Head

Declares That Day of the Fire Eating Spellbinder Is Past.

"Radio will elect the next President," M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Co., predicts.

"In the forthcoming campaign, the influence of radio is going to be felt," Aylesworth says. "Indeed, the day of the fire-eating spellbinder has drawn to a close. This year's campaign orator will be appealing to an audience which, seated in the comfort of the home and far from the red fire and synthetic enthusiasm of the public gathering, will be able carefully to weigh and maturely to judge his every statement.

"This is a condition devoutly to be wished, for loose words, high-sounding phrases and mere claptrap have dominated our political life too long. Radio is certain to introduce a sanity in our judgments which can but redound to the national welfare. Radio, in short, will elect our next President."

Radio Exhibition Reveals Advance In Tone Quality

ceiving television broadcasting. Excellent results in receiving short wave programs are claimed for this receiver.

An experimental television device, which was shown in a separate exhibit, attracted a steady streams of visitors. There is no doubting the wide spread interest in the possibilities of television, but opinion of experts seems to be that television in the home on a practical basis is still far distant, though amateur experimenters can have lot of fun playing with it.

Interesting also to short wave experts, as well as to the growing army of listeners who are becoming interested in the possibilities of short wave broadcasts by stations such as WGY and KDKA, was a short wave adapter that plugged into the first radio frequency stage instead of into the detector socket. This adapter is designed to make the whole regular broadcast receiver a short wave set. Rights to make it have been bought by one of the manufacturers of broadcast receivers.

Amplifiers Improved.

An amplifier which actually did make good the claims for resistance coupled amplification was heard working into a new dynamic speaker. The combination was one of the finest heard during the show. The amplifier was built more to show the possibilities of resistance coupled amplification than with the idea of marketing a new receiver. It consisted of three resistance stages using AC tubes feeding into a 250 tube.

Push pull amplification also came into its own at the show, as had been expected. It was found with two 112A tubes, again with two 171A tubes, even with two 210 tubes and, in one case, with two of the 250 power tubes. One model has two 250 tubes in parallel in the final audio stage. Another set, which uses a tuned band pass filter circuit ahead of the R. F. tubes, has only one audio stage and that uses a single 250 tube.

An interesting radio furniture trend is the increase in number of metallic cabinets Ducoed in brilliant colors.

Use of low stands, generally of highly decorated metal, as bases for cabinet type receivers is increasing.

At least two manufacturers exhibited condenser devices with which any 2-ampere charger may be used to furnish a humless A supply in place of batteries. It was reported that one manufacturer expected soon to offer a condenser device that could be used in this way to furnish a 3-ampere A supply.

There were also interesting exhibits by a number of the parts makers. Among these were audio transformers for set builders and power amplifiers to be attached to any receiver after the detector socket.

Exhibits of tubes included at least two showings of AC shielded grid tubes as well as a tube for use with experimental television receivers.

GOING to the Democratic Convention by radio? There's still time for a trial trip—at home—with an Atwater Kent A. C. set.

Telephone the nearest Atwater Kent dealer and say "Home demonstration." If you don't know who he is, your name and address on the coupon will have the same effect.

A brand-new set—regular model—just like the sets chosen by more than 200,000 families in the last few months—will be brought to your home and plugged into a lamp socket. Try it yourself—see how it looks and acts in home surroundings.

Gather the family around. Invite the neighbors in. Let everybody have the fun of turning the FULL-VISION Dial—of bringing in one broadcasting station after another—of sampling varied programs and hearing each one clearly—while power that can't "run down" flows from the house lighting circuit at a cost of only a fraction of a cent an hour.

The Atwater Kent A. C. set gives you everything radio has to offer—complete enjoyment of tonight's programs, sturdy construction that means permanent enjoyment, beauty in design and finish, ease of operation. Large demand, large production, give you all this at a price you want to pay. The experience of more than 200,000 satisfied owners counsels, "Why pay more?"

And remember, for a home demonstration you pay nothing. It's "Thank you" if you want the set and "Thank you" if you don't. Only act promptly. Telephone, or here's the coupon.

Dr. William H. Foulkes Speaks on KSD Today

Noted Minister to Preach in Summer Radio Church Service—William Simmons, Baritone, to Be Atwater Kent Soloist—Hans Barth in Another Recital—Genia Zelinska Sings Again This Afternoon.

ANOTHER session of the Summer Radio Church; a Sixty Musical Minutes concert; a recital by Genia Zielinska, soprano, and Winifred Cornish, pianist; a harpischord and piano recital by Hans Barth; William Simmons in an Atwater Kent concert, and the usual Biblical drama, will make up KSD's broadcasting schedule for today.

This afternoon's speaker in the Summer Radio Church broadcast at 12 o'clock noon will be the Rev. Dr. William H. Foulkes, acting chairman of the Religious Work Committee of the National Council, Y. M. C. A.

There will be the customary musical program by a mixed quartet, under direction of George Vause. Among the music to be sung will be Schubert's "O, Be Joyful in the Lord" and Sir Joseph Barnby's "When Morning Gilds the Skies." The program for the service wil lbring the following numbers:

Schubert's "O, Be Joyful in the Lord" and Sir Joseph Barnby's "When Morning Gilds the Skies." The program for the service will bring the following numbers:

Introduction.
Spirit Divine, Attend our Prayers .... Schulthes
Invocation.
O Be Joyful in the Lord, All Ye Lands .... Schubert
Scripture reading.
Response—"Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God of Hosts!"
When Morning Gilds the Skies .... Branby
Prayer.
Response—Chorale from "Elijah" .... Mendelssohn
The Eternal God Is Thy Refuge .... West
Hymn—"My Faith Looks Up to Thee' Mason
Sermon—
Rev. William H. Foulkes, D.D., LL.D.
From Every Stormy Wind That Blows .... Hastings
Above All Praise and All Majesty, Lord, Thou Reignest Evermore .... Mendelssohn-Bartholdy
Benediction.
Doxology by Ensemble.
Announcements.

Mendelssohn's "On Wings of Song" and Schubert's "Who Is Sylvia?" will be heard in "Sixty Musical Minutes" at 1 p. m., today's second feature over KSD.

Today's group of four old favorties, featured in the weekly broadcasts, contains Dvorak's "Humoresque," Drdla's "Souvenir" and Barnby's "Sweet and Low."

The program:

On Wings of Song ... Mendelssohn
Orchestra.
In the Time of Roses ... Reichardt
Male Quartet.
To be selected—
Flute Solo—With Orchestra.
Who Is Sylvia? .... Schubert
Baritone Solo.
Scenes .... Coleridge-Taylor
Orchestra.
Shepherd's Sunday Song. Kreuzter
Male Quartet.
Air Gai .... Gluck
Orchestra.
(a) Sweet and Low ...... Barnby
Tenor and Baritone.
(b) Souvenir .... Drlda

(d) Humoresque .... Dvorak
Orchestra.
If With All Your Hearts .... Mendelssohn
Tenor Solo.
Sunset .... Vanderwater
Quartet.
Air .... Massenet
Orchestra.
Agnus Dei .... Bizet
Ensemble.

A joint recital by Genia Zielinska, coloratura soprano, and Winifred Young Cornish, pianist, will be presented at 2 p. m..

Opening with a piano "Prelude in G Minor" by Rachmaninoff, there will follow two songs, "A Cry at Dawn," by Cadman, and "I Would Weave a Song for You," by O'Hara.

Among other numbers, Miss Cornish will play the Schubert "Valse Caprice" and Miss Zielinska will sing Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Hymn to the Sun."

The program:

Prelude in G Minor.. Rachmaninoff
Piano solo.
(a) A Cry at Dawn...... Cadman
(b) I Would Weave a Song for You .... O'Hara
Soprano solos.
Valse Caprice—
No. 6 Soriees de Vienne—
Schubert (Liszt arr.)
Piano solo.
(a) The Old Refrain (Viennese arrangement) ...... Kreisler
(b) Hymn to the Sun—
Rimsky-Korsakoff
Soprano solos.
Dance of the Gnomes
Piano solo.

Another program by Hans Barth, pianist and master of the harpsichord, will be heard at 5 o'clock.

In addition to the contrast provided by Barth in playing a Nicode "Menuett" upon both instruments, the program derives additional color by the mimicry of a guitar in one piano composition by Maszkowski. The soloist will repeat his own composition, "Music Box."

The detailed program follows:

Guitarre .... Moszkowski
Piano solo
March .... Bach
Harpsichord
Golliwogg's Cakewalk .... Debussy
Piano solo
Gavotte .... Martini
Harpsichord
Music Box .... Barth
Piano solo
Menuett .... Nicode
Harpsichord
Menuett (repeated on piano) .... Nicode
Piano
Valse Caprice .... Rubinstein
Piano solo

Following the baseball scores at 5:15, the usual Sunday evening program will be given by Maj. Edward Bowes and the Capitol Family. Dr. "Billy" Axt will play for the first time an unnamed work of his own composition.

A half-hour recital by William Simmons, baritone — postponed from last week—is again scheduled as the attraction in the Atwater Kent radio concert at 7:15.

This is a program of old favorites, containing such time-honored melodies as Sullivan's "Lost Chord," a Quilter arrangement of the Tennyson poem "Now Sleeps the Crimson Petal," and the Negro spiritual, "By an' By," arranged by Harry T. Burleigh. Simmons will be assisted at the piano by Ellmer Zoller. The program:

The Lost Chord.......... Sullivan
The Pretty Creature.. (arr.) Wilson
Now Sleeps the Crimson Petal— Quilter
A Khaki Lad .... Aylward
I'll Follow You .... Maley
B' an' By......... (arr.) Burleigh
I'm Wearin' Awa' .... Foote
The Open Road.......... Stickles

The story of "The Ten Commandments," presented once before in the Biblical drama series, will be offered again at 7:45 p. m., closing today's program on KSD.

Considered one of the most important contributions of the series, this production depicts the dramatic events in the camp of the Israelites as they pitch their tents in the shadows of Mount Sinai after their flight from Egypt and beseech Moses to dispense justice.

It gives a further picture of the licentious orgies which began with Moses' disappearance up the Mountain to commune with the Lord, and shows the terrific wrath which that just man felt when he returns to his people with the tablets of stone to find them sunk in sin. He shatters the tablets upon a nearby rock, but later takes pity upon his people and begins his prayers to the Lord for another set of laws for them.

The Size of Condensers.

Large and small condensers have some advantages and disadvantages compared to the other. The larger condenser will usually hold its adjustment better, will have a lower radio frequency resistance and will stay clean better. The smaller condenser will save space and will have a smaller electro-static field, but will be more easily affected by dust between the plates.

How to Get the Most Radio Pleasure in Summer

Don't Try for Too Much Distance or Volume and Select "Body" Programs, Says N. B. C. Engineer.

"Radio, unlike canned goods, has no winter or summer season," says Dr. Alfred N. Goldsmith, chief broadcasting engineer of the Radio Corporation of America.

"There are fresh vegetables the year round in the radio garden, so that it is hardly necessary to harvest and can our radio enjoyment during a few months for use in what might be a less fortunate season.

"If we mentioned wintertime or summertime phonographic music, we might be laughed at, and by the same token, when radio programs and radio services are maintained from one end of the year to the other at the same high levels of excellence, it becomes decidedly out of order to speak of seasonable radio.

"Whatever errors of judgment may have been committed in the early days of radio broadcasting, particularly with regard to the power required by a transmitter for a given service range the year round, they have long since stood corrected. Today the signal strength of any first-class broadcasting station within its service range is more than ample to ride high above the normal summertime static level. Indeed, it is only when the radio enthusiast insists on going in search of DX or long distance signals that the static level becomes troublesome, since he has plunged below it. Yet is it any more reasonable to expect ideal DX radio results in summer than it is to expect to enjoy outdoor picnics in mid-winter? Seasons are seasons.

A Few Pointers.

"Of course the elements of good reception should perhaps be more closely observed in summer than in winter. Among the more important considerations are:

"1. Selecting the signals from a station of adequate power, located not too far distant. It is well that the station have a reputation for careful maintenance, and be quite free from the criticisms of poor transmitter operation, haphazard monitoring, varying power, serious fading, wave length wobble, and other signs of poor broadcasting or at least poor broadcasting so far as the listener is concerned. Fading, it goes without saying, is usually a condition beyond the control of the broadcaster, and may just as well be charged up to the location of the listener, for that matter.

"2. Selecting high quality programs, and especially features with sufficient 'body' to cover up such static background as may exist even with high signal level. It is well to note that signal level is one thing, and sound level is another. Thus a dance orchestra or concert band is a better feature in combating static interference than a soft, mellow string trio or a soothing violin solo.

Reasonable Volume.

"3. It is well to be content with reasonable volume. While it is true that the volume control of the radio set increases or decreases everything issuing from the loudspeaker—static as well as signal —proportionately, it is a mater of how much background noise may be present before the listener becomes fully conscious and even irritated by its presence. Just as we are told by automobile repair men, over and over again, that the performance of our car is largely a question of our liver rather than the car itself, so may we say that static, and for that matter the radio rendition at large, is mainly an indication of our digestion. By being satisfied with reasonable volume during the days of high static, we may reduce the background noise to a minimum.

"Radio may truly be enjoyed to better advantage amid the outdoor settings made possible in warm weather. The acoustics are frequently better when windows can be thrown open. Radio is at its best outdoors, on the porch or even on the lawn.

Trade Notes

Harry W. Menges has been appointed factory representative for the Signal Electric Manufacturing Co., Wilcox receivers, moulded wood speakers, and the St. John Table Co.

Colin B. Kennedy, Inc., has moved its factory and offices to Highland, Ill. A temporary St. Louis office is being maintained at 600 Security Building, which will be replaced as soon as a suitable location is available, by a permanent office and factory sales branch here. The Kennedy Co. states that it has taken over the radio division of the Briggs & Stratton Co. of Milwaukee and will continue to manufacture the well-known "Basco" radio power equipment as a supplementary item to its own exclusive line of radio receivers.

General Motors Hour

Anglo-Chinese compositions will dominate the program in tomorrow evening's concert sponsored by General Motors, over KSD. Oliv Kline will be the featured artist. Her voice is a lyric-coloratura particularly adapted to Chinese song where the high notes predominate.

The program will be designed with a view to producing the oriental atmosphere of China, as the concert last week presented a musical picture of India.

The concert will be broadcast at 7:30.

Another Big Station in Europe.

Four new broadcasting stations are planned in Czecho-Slovakia. One will have power of at least 20,000 watts.

'Roxy' to Direct New Fox Theater Radio

"Roxy," of radio fame, will be director of all radio and stage presentations in the new Fox theater being built at Grand and Washington boulevards.

The well-known theater manager will inaugurate the radio station which will be built in the theater and will conduct the gala program on its opening night.

The new Fox theater here will be the first amusement house in the city to have a radio broadcasting station constructed in its building. Stage presentations will be broadcast direct from the footlights during performances. Music from the three organs to be installed also will be broadcast special hours

PHONOGRAPH records "come to life" through your Stromberg-Carlson Receiver.
The living voice of speech and music breathes once more, as originally recorded, through the audio system of your Stromberg-Carlson, bringing the wealth of tone due to today's radio-perfected transmission of sound waves.
To play records interchangeably with radio reception through a Stromberg-Carlson, you merely add to your standard phonograph the new Stromberg-Carlson magnetic pick-up outfit—then push the pick-up plug into a jack provided in the Receiver. The operating power is from the house-lighting circuit just the same as for radio—the tone of the record reproduction has all of radio's living beauty.

So Amazing the World is Talking About It

Everywhere you go, you will find people talking about Majestic Electric Radio, which has set a new world standard for quality and performance at a price within the reach of every home.

If you have been led to believe that you can not afford to own the very finest radio obtainable, then truly you have a great thrill coming to you. When you see the Majestic, when you hear it, when you note its ease of operation, its remarkable selectivity, its distance-getting qualities, its wonderfully clear reproduction, through the Majestic dynamic power speaker—but most of all, when you consider the price of this wonder receiver—you will know that Majestic is the set you have waited for.

Already thousands are enjoying and marveling over their new Majestic receivers. And still, though Majestic is producing 2,000 complete radio receivers a day in six great plants equipped with machinery that is almost human, the demand grows and grows, and seemingly is endless.

The whole secret of Majestic's wonderful quality and amazing prices rests in the fact that everything about Majestic is Majestic—cabinets, chassis, electric power, and the marvelous Majestic Dynamic Power Speaker, all are built from raw materials in the Majestic plants. This fact, plus the demand for Majestic radios from every city, village, town and hamlet in America and from many foreign countries, enables Majestic to produce the radio set you want at the price you want to pay.

PART SIX. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, JUNE 17, 1928. PAGES 1—6A

Hail "The Vagabond King"

Friml's Magnificent Light Opera With Its Stirring Chorus Numbers to Be Municipal Opera Offering in Forest Park for the Coming Week, Starting Tomorrow Night—Garden to Present "Good Morning, Dearie."

FOR its third week the Municipal Opera company, tomorrow night, launches a most pretentious production of "The Vagabond King," a light opera which is especially suited to the great outdoor stage in Forest Park and which provides a splendid opportunity for the large chorus to show to better advantage than ever before. The Garden Theater also starts its third week tomorrow night with the bright musical comedy, "Good Morning, Dearie."

The production of "The Vagabond King" is of more than passing interest for many reasons. First of all, tomorrow night's performance will be the first time that the piece has been offered on a stage large enough to bring out its full grandeur and beauty. Secondly, the local performances of "The Vagabond King" will be the first given under auspices other than Russell Janney, the original producer.

It is known that Janney was influenced in granting the Municipal Theater Association rights to produce "The Vagabond King" because most of the book and lyrics were written in St. Louis. He and W. H. Post, one of the authors, put the finishing touches on the piece while Post was playing a two weeks' engagement in "Seventh Heaven" at the American Theater in 1925. Incidentally, at that time Janney offered Paul Beisman, the local theater manager, a quarter interest in the piece for the insignificant sum of $2500, but the offer was turned down. The opera in two years earned nearly $1,000,000.

BASED upon Justin Huntley McCarthy's play, "If I Were King," dealing with the adventures of France's poet vagabond, Francois Villon, "The Vagabond King" was first produced in New York in September, 1925, and proved such a sensation that it remained at the Casino Theater on Broadway for nearly two seasons. Six road companies at one time or another were presenting the Friml opus throughout the country. It was a marked success locally, drawing capacity houses for two full weeks at the Shubert Rialto Theater in February, 1927, and returning the following January for another highly prosperous week. Immediately following the local production Janney will withdraw "The Vagabond King" from repertory release and will send it on tour next fall under his own management.

In "The Vagabond King," Rudolf Friml, who has taken Victor Herbert's place as the foremost American light opera composer with such compositions as "Rose Marie," "Katinka," "The Firefly" and "The White Eagle," has created a score that is studded with such musical gems as "Only a Rose," "Love Me Tonight," "A Flagon of Wine," "Tomorrow," and above all, the stirring "Song of the Vagabonds."

IN casting "The Vagabond King," all of the principals of the Municipal Opera company, save Dorothy Seegar, are employed. In addition, a number of the choristers who have shown an aptitude for speaking roles in the first two productions of the season, will have name parts. The complete list of characters and players follows:

Rene De Montigny	Calvert Wellpot
Casin Cholet	Joseph Burke
Margot	Sarah Andrada
Hugette Du Hamel	Bernice Mershon
Jehanneton	Patricia O'Connell
Guy Taberie	Florenz Ames
Tristan L'Hermite	Arthur Sager
Louis XIth	William McCarthy
Francis Villon	Sam Ash
Katherine De Vaucelles	Leonora Allen
Thibaut D'Aussigny	Joseph Royer
Captain of Scotch Archers	Charles Galagher
An Astrologer	Jan Sadlo
Lady Mary	Alice Mackenzie
Noel Le Jolys	Robert Betts
Oliver Le Dain	Lee Daly
The Queen	Alice Weaver
The Dancers	Lola Aquado, Anita Paul

"GOOD MORNING, DEARIE," the Garden Theater's third offering of the season, is by Jerome Kern, who wrote the "Sally" score, and the book and lyrics are by Anne Caldwell. The piece is in two acts.

Jack Squire has been engaged to play the leading role of Billy Van Cortland. Squire played this part in the original production opposite Louise Groody. He has starred in some of Broadway's best-known musical productions, including "Yours Truly," "Very Good Eddie," Monte Cristo Jr," "The Florida Girl," "Artists and Models" and "The Matinee Girl." Vera Myers as Rose Marie, and John Cherry as Steve Simmons are said to have the best roles allotted to them so far this season. Sarah Edwards, Dorothy Humphreys, Lillian Crosman and the balance of the cast will also have excellent parts.

"Good Morning, Dearie," tells the story of an orphan girl who is employed in the smart shop of Mme. Bompard. A crook, Chesty, is in love with the orphan, Rose Marie, and after his release from prison starts in search of her. He visits "Hell's Kitchen," a notorious dive, where his sweetheart has gone with a slumming party. While Chesty was serving his prison term, Rose Marie met, and fell in love with Billy Van Cortland, the son of wealthy and influential parents. While at the dive, Rose Marie hears Chesty and some of his accomplices plan a robbery. She calls in Steve Simmons, a detective, who acts the part of a boob. Steve with the aid of Rose, thwart the robbery and everything ends happily for all but the crooks.

The cast for "Good Morning, Dearie," is as follows:

Billy Van Cortland	Jack Squire
Rose Marie	Vera Myers
Steve Simmons	John Cherry
Georgie	Joseph McCallion
Margie	Dorothy Humphreys
Gimpy	John Park
Ruby Manners	Lillian Crosman
Madam Bompard	Sarah Edwards
Chesty Costello	Allen McKenzie

The attraction at the Garden beginning June 24, will be "Up She Goes."

THOUGH "The Vagabond King," the third production of the Municipal Opera repertory, is now listed along Broadway as having been one of the biggest musical hits of the twentieth century, its beginning was shrouded with the misfortunes that beset many a theatrical venture.

In fact, before it reached the Casino Theater, in 1925, it appeared for a time as if "The Vaga-

Second Thoughts on First Nights

By Allison Smith

NEW YORK, June 16.

WITH the arrival of mid-June, the theatrical season here has become utterly and motionlessly becalmed.

A play has just appeared in Chicago on its way to a fall opening here which really does give something of the agreeably authentic horrors of the film circular. It is "The Portrait of the Man With Red Hair," which, if you can believe the reviews after its opening in England, attempts a study of those eccentricities identified with the otherwise undistinguished Marquis de Sade.

How successful it is as a clinical study and a Grande Guignol melodrama will be unrecorded until the autumn reports are filed; there can be no possible doubt, however, that Hugh Walpole, who wrote the novel on which the play was based, combined a treatment of morbid psychology with one of the most breath-taking adventure tales that ever came out of his erstwhile contemplative style.

IT WAS A. H. Woods who pounced on the play in London, hastened over here with the script in his grasp and promptly cast Cane Wilbur as its sinister central figure. We know Mr. Wilbur only in the mildest and most mannerly of roles and his evolution into the fat, suave, incredibly grewsome monster of Mr. Walpole's imagination, will demand an uncommonly difficult transformation. Here, in the opening pages of the book, is the Man With Red Hair as Mr. Walpole saw him:

He (the hero) had never before seen such red hair nor so white a face, nor so large a stone as the green one that shone in a ring on the finger of his raised hand. The man's hair was en brosse, standing straight on end as Loge's used to do in the old pre-war Bayreuth "Ring." It was, like Loge's, a flaming red, short, harsh, instantly arresting. Evening dress. One small black pearl in his shirt. Very small feet in shining shoes.

There had stuck in Harkness' mind a phrase that he had encountered once in George Moore's description of Verlain—"I shall not forget the glare of the bald, prominent forehead (une tete glabre)—" That was the phrase the forehead glaring like a challenge, the red hair springing from it like something alive of its own independence. For the rest this interesting figure had a body guard, short and fat like a ball. Over his protruding stomach stretched a white waistcoat with three little plain buttons. The color of his face had an unnatural pallor something theatrical like the clown in "Pagliacci" or again like one of Benda's masks. Yes, this was the truer comparison because, through the mask, the eyes were alive and beautiful. The mouth in the white of the face was a thin, hard, red scratch. The eyes stared into the garden.

AN OLD lady—not from Dubuque but from one of the way-stations of that thriving neighborhood, saw "Strange Interlude" the other day and spent what was left of the night in a desperate if ecstatic struggle with its stimulating complexities. We met her when she was still under its spell and quite unprepared for the next matinee which her son-in-law had thoughtfully arranged for her.

"I don't," she confided earnestly, "see how the reviewers stand it. This one play alone would give you thoughts enough for an entire season. But here almost every night, my nephew tells me you have to go on to the next one. And before you have thought that one out, there's another coming the night after."

Such divine enthusiasm is so rare and so adorable that no one would have the heart to tell her that 75 per cent of the plays opening "almost every night" deserve (and get) about the degree of emotional concentration you would spend on last year's hurdy-gurdy tune.

THERE is, as she so astutely pointed out, a merciful dispensation in this situation. If every plot in a given season had the poignant intensity and dramatic force of the O'Neill play, the reviewer would probably go mad in a quiet way long before the year was over. No longer would his mind be asphyxiated pleasantly by the familiar vapid romances or lulled by the same old musical beats.

Instead, he would be kept awake half the night wrestling with the problem of the play and would be haunted through the next day by its insistent undertones. And the next night, he would face another masterpiece with an equal strain on his mind and emotions. The average critic would be reduced to a pulp and only the more hardy of those who fill the first night seats would survive. These in themselves might prove the greater menace. They would think too much and such dramatic critics are dangerous.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 16.

ALL of us have been glutted with literature detailing every little intimate detail about lives of other people—the great and some not so much so. It seems every other book is an autobiography and Henry Mencken is considered so important they even publish sarcastic things the meanies say about him.

We learn a Hollywood movie star is fond of catsup for breakfast; that a retired actor has always suffered from hang nails; that a great novelist is afraid of grasshoppers, and so on. This is the day when everybody tells all without the third degree. Now no other person is as important to the average human being as himself. Nor is anyone else as easy to write about. So I am going to dust off my ego and give it a great big parade. If you don't care for it—there is always the radio.

I began life as a reporter and hope to end my days as a reporter. No other kind of work has interested me.

I quit going to movie palaces, not because of such insufferable titles as "He went to West Point to review the cadets because he thought he was General Electric," but because I seemed to be always in the way of the military ushers.

Favorite dishes are country sausages, hamburger steak, cold fried chicken, soupy hash, corn bread, Mexican chili, floating island and vanilla ice cream with hot chocolate sauce.

I dislike every sort of game, indoor and outdoor, and my only exercise is walking. I loathe talking over the telephone, and with a half dozen exceptions have not used it to call up anyone in a year.

I work in a corner of my bedroom, usually in pajamas, until 5 in the evening, and eat two whopping meals a day—breakfast and dinner.

The theatrical performance that stands out most vividly in my memory is that of William Faversham and Julie Opp in "The Squaw Man." The most indelible impression left by any book I ever read is Mark Twain's "Huckleberry Finn." Of modern novels I like Sinclair Lewis' "Arrowsmith" best.

I live in New York chiefly because it is the only city where I have been able successfuly to make a good living. By birth and inclination I am a small towner. Yet I suppose it is most imagining, for I doubt I would be happy in a smaller community. The only two cities that never interested me were Key West, Fla., and Laredo, Tex.

In the art of catching the attention of a crowd, holding it and whipping it into a fervor, I have seen no one the equal of Al Jolson.

I was Florenz Ziegfeld's press agent for four years and never met a chorus girl.

Nobody in the world can get as many shaves out of a razor blade and a stick of shaving soap as myself.

I have atrocious table manners and am otherwise not very polite, but, like so many others, mean well.

The most unhappy days of my boyhood were those spent in a schoolroom. Even today the tolling of a school bell brings a fit of depression. The only thing I can remember of school learning is some story about Ned in the First Reader

I love flaming colors and have the wildest shirts and scarves in captivity. Most of them would probably never find another wearer.

Same to You, and Many of 'Em

Jack Squire in "Good Morning, Dearie," at the Garden Theater.

Look What Mr. Ash Started

How the Present Style of Movie Stage Shows Got Going and What the Talking Movies May or May Not Do to That End of the Show Business—Success of "The Lion and the Mouse" and Its Accompanying Film-Vaudeville Causing a Flurry Among Theater Managers.

By NIE.

ABOUT six years ago a native of Milwaukee who had worked as piano player in almost all of the Chicago Honky-Tonks, found himself orchestra leader of a small theater in Oakland, Cal. One day he turned around in the pit and announced the selection to be played and thus started the "Bandshow," a trade name given to the present vogue in picture theater entertainment. It is also called the Paul Ash policy in honor of the above-mentioned orchestra leader.

The novelty of having an orchestra leader talk to his audiences soon leaked out and Ash was moved to Granada Theater in San Francisco. It was here the orchestra was taken out of the pit and placed on the stage as an added feature of the show. This was purely an economic move. The musicians in those days would play the picture in the pit and then do a specialty on the stage with no increase in salary. Eventually acts were used to augment the straight orchestral program and Ash became a master of ceremonies as well as conductor. Since that time every master of ceremonies is expected to lead the orchestra even though he cannot read a note of music. Why he can't be like the first man to ever do this vaudeville announcing, Loney Haskell at Hammerstein's Victoria Roof in New York about 25 years ago, no one seems to know. Because Paul Ash conducted his orchestra and announced the acts all others must do it.

ASH was moved into Chicago to McVickers Theater about three years ago and was an overnight hit. He stayed in Chicago until a few weeks ago when he was moved to the Paramount Theater in New York. Ash's success prompted all the big theater chains to try the same policy and "Bandshows" sprung up all over the country. The musicians' union saw the trend of theater operation and decided that they would get something out of this new move. The answer is that musicians who play both in the pit and on the stage get extra pay, in some instances half as much again as the union scale calls for. The poor downtrodden clarinet player is now making from $130 to $150 per week.

Ash first presented in Chicago a few night club entertainers and high school amateurs with his band but as competition became keener big acts were secured and that which started out as an economic move in theater operation has evolved into the highest-priced form of amusement the theater has ever known. Where Ash spent about $400 on his shows for outside talent theaters like the Ambassador, Loew's State and the Missouri are now spending sometimes as high as $5000. Scenic productions are built and used one week. In the old days a scenic production played a season of vaudeville before it was sold to a smaller actor for a smaller circuit, thereby working two seasons or more.

As the Bandshow idea spread there was a hectic scramble for Masters of Ceremonies. Every type of actor was used. In some instances musicians out of orchestras were tried and found wanting, others filled the bill. High salaried vaudevillians were also handed a baton and told to go out, conduct the orchestra and be funny. Some of them made good, others didn't. In St. Louis at the present time we have three actors acting as Bandshow leaders, Ed Lowry, Nat Nazarro and Frank Fay. Lowry has been the most successful. As a vaudevillian he was never a knockout but there is no denying his ability as a master of ceremonies. Frank Fay has been tremendously successful in vaudeville and has been known to stay several weeks at the Palace Theater in New York, almost an unheard of record. He is a high type of humorist and his subtleties are often missed.

Down at Loew's State the situation is different. Nat Nazarro is a musician and actually directs his musicians. Nazarro doesn't claim to be a great comedian. When comedy is needed on his program he calls in comedians to get the laughs, but he puts on the show and handles the musical direction and stage technic as well as announcing.

THE future of the expensive stage shows cannot be foretold at this time. The Skouras boys—who, incidentally, are branching out again and taking in 26 theaters in Indiana to add to the two in Indianapolis which they control—show no signs of letting up on the style of productions they are offering at the Missouri and Ambassador. Nat Nazarro is planning more extensive presentations each week at Loew's and when Fox opens up his new cinema palace here he will go in for stage shows on a big scale without a doubt. Although work is progressing on the Fox Theater it hardly seems likely that it can be opened much before Christmas.

The talking movies and their accompanying film-vaudeville shows, however, may change the entire complexion of the movie stage entertainments. The great success of "The Lion and the Mouse" at the Grand Central and the scene acts which are on the same program are making the theater managers sit up and take notice. Word comes from Hollywood, too, that the talkies are furnishing most of the topics for conversation out there and turmoil is a mild enough word for the excitement on finds among the film extras of the Coast these days.

All of a sudden the organized motion picture industry wants to know if Betty, the blonde extra, can sing soprano and whether the bearded men of this movie Bagdad play banjos or ukuleles.

Eleven thousand questionnaires have been distributed among the men and women who play "atmosphere" in pictures, and what the Central Casting Corporation, owned by the studios, asks of each extra is: "What can you do with your voice? Can you speak stage lines? Can you sing? And what musical instrument do you play, if any'"

To many it looks like a big shake-up in the extra ranks. Blondes and brunettes who lack pleasant speaking voices and never tried to sing or to play a musical instrument are mildly panic-stricken, and the handsome boys who have been playing fashionably dressed aristocrats without anyone ever questioning their grammar are beginning to worry, too.

OTHER hundreds of extras hail the expected shakeup as a gift from Heaven and make no effort to conceal their joyful excite-

A New One

Arthur Lake in "Harold Teen," at the Ambassador.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

HOLLYWOOD, June 16.

SHARK'S-FIN soup as a screen colony delicacy is being popularized hereabout by Tom Gubbins, for years a motion picture specialist in things Chinese and now, in addition, the host of a Chinese night club catering to film folk. At a dinner given there the other night by the actress Ethel Jackson, the movie people seemed willing enough to broaden their menu. Jack Dempsey was on hand, wielding chopsticks with the famous fist that fought Tunney; Estelle Taylor watching from the other side of the table. Also in the crowd were Arthur Lake, Sally Eilers, Matty Kemp, Martha Sleeper and others of the younger film set.

This village, where so many gorgeous court scenes are filmed, may yet have a sure-enough diplomatic set to mingle with the princesses and marquises of the movies. Jesse L. Lasky, producer, predicts it won't be long before every foreign country anxious to have its customs and national characteristics accurately pictured in American films will appoint an official emissary to Hollywood whose function it will be to confer with producers on all details of pictures affecting his country.

In anticipation of the formation of such a cinematic corps diplomatique, Lasky already has appointed for his own company a foreign adviser, George Kates, who through years of travel and education abroad is deemed well equipped to confer with directors on foreign details and to engage other experts where advisable.

There is something dismal about the make-believe railroad stations of the movies. A street set, a residential interior or even a hotel lobby can look realistic after the actors have fled and the picture is finished. But a deserted railroad station set always looks utterly desolated, possibly because of the empty, engine-less coaches standing there as if nailed down (as they frequently are), but no doubt chiefly because there is no railroad smell to the place, no distant toot of a whistle, no clicking telegraph key.

Regardless of what they may decide, one way or the other, about the artistic merits of the film, it is not going to be hard for picture-goers who saw the American debut of Emil Jannings in "Passion" eight years ago to be interested in his latest starring vehicle, "The Patriot."

In this recently completed picture, as in the one which introduced him to American audiences, Jannings plays a royal tyrant; this time the mad Czar Paul of Russia. And, for the first time since "Passion," his director is Ernst Dubitsch.

The film is full of what Hollywood calls "Lubitsch touches." Seldom does the German director lose an opportunity to call the audience's attention to a humorous detail in a dramatic sequence. While his courtiers are plotting his destruction, for instance, the Czar of all the Russias is engaged in a one-sided altercation with the pet dog of his mistress. There is no comedian in the cast, the jester's function being performed by the camera, which seems to see out of the corner of its eye, as it were, the comic trivialities always clinging to the skirts of tragedy.

Of particular interest to many will be the work of Lewis Stone, a veteran of the American screen, in a role which permits his technique and talents to be contrasted with those of the European star in almost every scene of the film.

It is Stone who portrays the patriot. He is the confidant and adviser of the mad Czar who aids in his assassination for love of country, yet feels that his personal disloyalty to the tyrant who trusted him can be expiated only by death. It is a part intrinsically more sympathetic than that of the Czar.

Florence Vidor's portrayal of the countess who is used as a pawn in the assassination plot is another feature of the film which doubtless will hold much interest for those who recall Pola Negri opposite Jannings in "Passion." Neil Hamilton plays the Crown Prince who refuses to usurp the throne, and Vera Voronina, one of the few Russians in the cast of this Russian picture, is seen as the Czar's mistress.

It seems to be about time to bury the old wheeze about the movies being in their infancy.

Actually they are so old now that they raise their own patriarchs, breaking them in as mere boys.

The venerable, gray-bearded actor who portrays Noah in Warner Brothers' film epic of the Flood needs no make-up to help him appear patriarchal, but some of his very earliest acting experience was in a motion picture.

He is Paul McAllister, who in 1903 was playing in a New York stage production entitled "Hearts Are Trumps." Strange novelties called moving pictures were attracting attention in vaudeville then, subjects a few feet long entitled "Dentist Pulling a Tooth," "Dog Chasing a Tramp," etc. So the producer of the play thought it would be a welcome innovation to have part of the action on the screen. Young McAllister and a still more youthful ingenue accordingly were sent to a roof-top studio and photographed doing a dance.

The experiment amused the young actor, but it was 11 years later that he finally took the movies seriously enough to play in a regular film drama.

The average human being doesn't like to do his laughing to music. He prefers to let his hearty guffaw ring out unaccompanied by the bellowing of a pipe organ. This is the deduction of Hal Roach, film comedy producer, after many years of watching the public react to his screen product.

"Most theater organists and orchestras," he explains, "yield to the temptation to play louder and funnier as the comedy hits its high points. But if they are clever they pipe down in the funny places and give the customers a chance to hear themselves laugh."

The comedy itself, according to Roach, should be "like a ride on a roller coaster—fast while it lasts, but not too long."

Director overheard admonishing his assistant: "Always remember this: Right or wrong, on the set I am always right."

ment over the prospect of a registered extra list made over according to the needs of talking pictures. They are the former stage and vaudeville people who have found it hard to get even "atmosphere" work in the movies; the former opera and musical comedy singers who heretofore have found their voices worse than useless in the struggle for film opportunities.

Now that someone wants to know if they can make themselves heard in public they think the movie millennium is here.

However, Dave Allen, casting manager at Central, points out that the questionnaire which extras are being asked to fill out now does not mean there will be an immediate and radical change in the demand for extras.

He particularly warns girls who are thinking of hurrying to Hollywood because they have good voices that he expects to find more good voices among the extras already here than producers will need for some time.

"What we are trying to do," he explains, "is to reclassify our people according to their possible usefulness in sound pictures.

"THOSE who think they have good speaking voices will be tested by an examiner of long stage experience. Those who say they can sing will be given a chance to convince a man who knows voices just how well they can sing, and those who list themselves as saxophonists, violinists or oboe players will have to demonstrate before another examiner.

"When we have our reclassification complete we will be in a position to serve the makers of sound pictures as efficiently as we have learned to serve makers of silent pictures.

"I don't think we'll have to go outside the present extra list for our sound picture talent, at least at first. We have so many former vaudeville, stock company, musical comedy and opera people with us."

The real upheaval will be noticed, Allen predicts, in the kind of people producers henceforth will lift out of the extra ranks as possible star material. He thinks most of them will be young men and women who heretofore have been having a rather tough time of it because only a small part of their intelligence and talent and personal magnetism is the kind that can register on a silent screen.

"Incidentally," says Allen, "the sound pictures are going to make us think faster around Hollywood. Can you imagine the number of things we'll have to learn about various people to be able to send to a studio on short notice a butler with a bass voice who can play the saxophone or a French gendarme who really can speak French and incidentally can play the ukulele?"

bond King" would be merely an idea and that its producer, Russell Janney, would again meet with the reverses that marked his earlier attempts as a producer.

A graduate of Yale, Janney entered the theatrical business early in life, and after contact with the theater concluded that the field was open for a light opera production that would embody stirring music with a story that was cohesive and interesting.

Accordingly, he first staged "June Love," with Rudolf Friml as the composer he felt that he had an opera possessing more than clowning, pretty girls and catchy music. The public, however, deemed otherwise, and almost before it was presented Janney was carting the remains of this piece to the storehouse.

Undaunted, however, he once more gathered together the means to essay the role of producer. This time he sought out Hugo Felix as composer, and obtaining the rights to "Pomander Walk," the stage hit, brought forth a musical version under the title of "Marjolaine." Once more his efforts were overlooked, and Janney necessarily gave up the role of producer for that of theatrical producer and press agent.

JANNEY did not give up his dream of an ideal musical play. And so, once more, he set forth to become a producer, and this time lit upon Justin Huntley McCarthy's "If I Were King" as the fabric for the opera he would sponsor. It was not so difficult to get the permission of McCarthy for the adaptation, but it was another story when it came to producing it.

Once more he selected Rudolf Friml to do the music. And he picked W. H. Post and Brian Hooker to do the libretto. While harboring this ambition to produce "The Vagabond King," he was making both ends meet by managing Otis Skinner on a road tour. And W. H. Post, while laboring upon the libretto, was acting the priest in "Seventh Heaven."

Finally his book neared completion. And elated at his shape, Post wired Janney to join him in St. Louis, for he was here playing at the American Theater, to put the finishing touches on the opera. Here it was that "The Vagabond King" libretto was made ready for production, Janney and Post working together in the latter's dressing room and in the manager's office of the American Theater.

But while Janney now possessed a book, he was by this time running short of cash. "The Vagabond King," which he estimated to cost $25,000 was running far higher. And in quest of cash, he offered St. Louisans an interest in the production for the necessary money to tide him over.

NONE of the St. Louisans would take it. And Janney had exhausted every possible resource. Finally he reached the point where he inserted an anonymous want ad in the New York Times requesting support, and through this medium he obtained the funds to carry "The Vagabond King" into a tryout period in New Haven.

Even then Janney's troubles continued. Just when it seemed as if he had a hit ready to present to New York, the musicians struck in New Haven. For three nights he offered "The Vagabond King" with only a piano as accompaniment. It was under these circumstances that Lee Shubert, dropped up to New Haven and perceived the possibilities of the production.

He immediately came to Janney's rescue, and offered him the Casino theater in New York. On its opening night it was a sensation, and after years of effort Janney found himself with a New York hit so outstanding that several companies were organized for the road. Where once Janney was beset with financial worries he was now being amply rewarded.

HE next tried "The White Eagle," a production whose losses wiped out much of the profits on "The Vagabond King." Meanwhile the latter opera had proved so popular that a London presentation was called for, and he went to London to supervise it.

Following the failure of "The White Eagle," Janney's resources were none too great, and it was at this time he granted permission to the Municipal Theater Association to present "The Vagabond King."

But in London he took another flyer. Still convinced that "Marjolaine" was inherently fine, he offered it to London, preferring a previous failure in which he had faith to a new and untried work such as "White Eagle."

And, much to the amazement of the show world, "Marjolaine" was received by Londoners where it was scorned in New York. It's still the reigning hit of London, and Janney, who tried so hard to bring forth an opera of quality, is now scoring on a production that this country refused to accept.

Miss Gordan at Loew's.

Edith Wright Gordon, well-known St. Louis pianist and a student at Washington University has been engaged for a week at Loew's Theater as a feature in the musical part of this week's program. Miss Gordon has developed a following in the city and her numerous concerts at the Chase and Coronado Hotels have brought her to the attention of music lovers. At the State she is featured in a Russian episode in which she plays Rachmaninoff's Prelude in C sharp minor.

Peel Your Face Back to Youth
An aged or wrinkled outer skin may only be a mask on a youthful face. It is so simple to remove this mask by regularly using pure mercolized wax. The wax absorbs all worn-out skin in minute particles until the entire face has been peeled and every blemish has been magically discarded. The pores are purged of impurities. The complexion becomes girl-like and entire face looks years younger. Procure an ounce of the wax with directions at any drug store. Mercolized wax brings out the hidden beauty. To quickly remove wrinkles and age lines, use as an astringent 1 ounce powdered saxolite and 1 half pint witch hazel.

MILLIONS OF DUCKS KILLED ANNUALLY

Report on Danger to Bird Life Made at Geneva Conference.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, June 16.—From 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 ducks were killed in the United States last year, said Dr. T. Gilbert Pearson of New York, president of the American Audobon societies, at the international conference on bird protection.

Dr. Pearson said that one American sportsman had killed more than 50,000 ducks. Dr. Uchida, the Japanese delegate, reported that more than 500,000 ducks had been killed in Japan in six months.

The conference decided that commercialization of food and plumage birds, with disregard for the lives of other species of the feathered tribes, is the greatest menace to wild bird life.

Reports submitted declared that the netting and trapping of ducks on Lake Erie, in the United States, and along the coasts of Denmark, Holland, England and the Scandinavian countries is rapidly depleting the supply and that the slaughter of aigrette and paradise birds at the mating season, when the plumage is most brilliant, is leading to extinction.

Dr. Pearson said that although the killing of golden plovers is forbidden in the United States, they are served regularly on ocean liners. Netters in Holland take about 30,000 golden plovers every year, according to Dr. Einar Lonnberg of Sweden.

Remarking that the plover lays only four eggs, Dr. Lonnberg said that the time is not distant when the golden plover will be as scarce in Europe as in the United States.

ASCRIBES SKIN ERUPTION TO LARVAE OF HOOKWORM

Texas Doctor Gives Results of Research Before American Medical Association.

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 16.—Experiments which proved that creeping eruption, a skin disease prevalent in the Atlantic and Gulf states, is caused by the hook worm larva that infests dogs and cats were described to the skin disease section of the American Medical Association.

The speaker was Dr. Bedford Shelmire of Dallas, Tex., who says that the infection results from contact with moist sand and earth contaminated by these pests. Physicians of the southern coast region see many cases of this disease, Dr. Shelmire reminded the section, but the cause was not determined until recently. His own experiments were undertaken to check results obtained by other investigators, notably Dr. J. L. Kirby-Smith of Jacksonville, Fla., who isolated the parasite in 1926. Dr. G. F. White of Washington and W. E. Dove, a Government entomologist, have identified it as the hookworm larva.

Parasites were obtained by Dr. Shelmire from cats known to frequent a sand pile owned by a family in which four cases of the eruption had occurred. The larvae were applied to the arms of volunteer medical students in the Baylor University department of medicine, and the eruptions that resulted were analogous in every respect to those acquired accidentally.

FRANCE PLANS ELABORATE FRONTIER DEFENSE SYSTEM

Seven of Fortified Zones, Each Costing $2,000,000, Will Be Established.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 16.—The problem of security is an ever present preoccupation of France's military chiefs, and a system of frontier defenses entailing vast expenditure, elaborated by army engineers, has received the approval of a committee of experts presided by Gen. Guillaumat. Work will be begun on it without delay, not later than July.

The plan provides for a series of defensive zones organized "in depth" and making use, wherever possible, of existing works. But much land will have to be expropriated, and roads, railroads and other means of communication established.

To facilitate the work, each fortified zone will be divided into sections, each of which will call for an expenditure of $2,000,000. A first appropriation of $8,000,000 has been set aside for the purpose in the current budget.

A beginning will be made in the Metz-Thionville region of Lorraine, to be followed by zones in Lower Alsace, and one of the more important parts of the Alpine frontier.

DETECTIVE'S DISGUISE TOO GOOD

Sympathizer Gave Him Old Iron to Sell.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 16.—The disguise of the London "bobby" when on plain clothes duty is sometimes too effective.

A policeman in the district of Edmonton donned tattered garments and posed as a street hawker trundling along a costermonger's barrow to complete his makeup. A dealer in old iron noticing his appearance took him to be a "down and out," and, despite his protests, loaded his barrow with old iron and other junk which he told him to sell and make some money for himself. The policeman, unable to dispose of the gift, had for the sake of appearances to push the load around the streets for several hours.

Prince a Bookkeeper.

By the Associated Press.

TURIN, Italy, June 17.—His Royal Highness Humbert of Savoy, Prince of Piedmont and heir to the Italian throne, has blossomed out as a full-fledged certified public accountant. Although busy enough with his military duties as a Colonel in the army and with opening fairs and charity fetes and doing what other things a Crown Prince has to do, he made time to go in for serious bookkeeping studies under Prof. Viali of Rome.

PRIZES AWARDED IN TRAFFIC CONTEST

Two Divide $2500 Offered for Uniform Ordinance for Handling Vehicles in Streets.

The winners of seven prizes in the $6750 National Traffic Contest conducted by Nation's Traffic, a monthly magazine published in St. Louis, were announced in the current number of the magazine issued yesterday. The $2500 first prize, for a uniform traffic ordinance suitable for any city, was divided between Robert H. Nau, secretary of the Street Traffic Commitee of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and Walter W. Kennedy, assistant to the vice president of the Birmingham (Ala.) Electric Co.

The contest was conducted to obtain practical suggestions on traffic control, regulation, safety and city planning. Several hundred manuscripts were entered.

Other prize winners are: $1000, Leon R. Brown, safety engineer, New York State aRilways, Rochester, N. Y., for a plan for the solution of municipal parking problems; $1000 to Gardner S. Rogers, consulting city planning engineer, Washington, for a typical city plan to better traffic conditions; $1000, Prof. George T. Ragsdale, director civics department, Male High School, Louisville, Ky., for a curriculum for adult safety education; $750, Lieut. Benjamin Hamburg, in charge of the Police Traffic Violation Bureau, Kansas City, Mo., for a plan for handling traffic violators; $500, Mrs. Frances H. Miner, Director of Safety and Health, Board of Education, Louisville, Ky., for a curriculum for juvenile safety education.

A special prize of $100 was awarded Henry B. Kane, traffic specialist of the Edison Electric Illuminating Co., Boston, for the neatest and most carefully prepared paper.

The contest judges, consisting of 12 nationally known traffic experts, met in St. Louis, may 22 and 23 with Arthur H. Blanchard of Toledo, O., president of the National Highway Traffic Association, as chairman. Harland Bartholomew, engineer of the St. Louis City Plan Commission, was a member of the committee.

FRANCE FOR FIRST TIME MINES ALL HER OWN COAL

No Longer Needs to Import but Actually Has a Surplus of 60,000,000 Tons a Year.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 16.—France, desperately short of coal for 10 years, and always an importer, now has too much of it. For the first time French production equals consumption and imported coal is threatening to break the market.

When the Germans flooded French coal mines in the north during the war, France lost half of her fuel and it has been a long struggle to get back to normal. Not only was the pre-war figure of 40,000,000 tons annually reached but last year it went up to 60,000,000 and the Saar Valley has added another 13,000,000.

All European coal mines have been working hard since the war because British strikes, the occupation of the Ruhr and the trouble in Upper Silesia created big shortages. Now that all are at work, Europe, according to French figures given to the League of Nations recently, has a surplus of 60,000,000 or 70,000,000 tons a year. As all countries for generations have considered France as an importer of coal, they all still try to capture the market here, ignoring the fact that France now mines all she burns. Therefore, the French coal operators are puzzling how to reduce costs, curtail production and restrict imports so coal won't become too cheap.

Some imports are certain to come in because in Brittany it is cheaper to get coal by sea from England than by rail from the other side of France. Similarly, there are points in France where the Belgians and Germans have a shorter haul than the French.

ECKARDT'S DAUGHTER WEDS

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 17.—The marriage of Miss Alice von Eckardt, daughter of the former German Minister in Mexico, to Walrath von und zur Muehlen, a member of a prominent Westphalian family, has been an important society function here.

It was the bride's father, Heinrich von Eckardt, who in January, 1917, acting on instructions from Arthur Zimmerman, German Foreign Secretary, invited Mexico to enter into an alliance with Germany, at the price of the American states of New Mexico, Texas and Arizona, a proposal which influenced the entrance of the United States into the World War. The bride has a sister, Milena, named after her godmother, the former Queen of Montenegro, where her father was Minister before being transferred to Mexico.

PARIS ACTORS IN GERMANY

PARIS, June 16.—The arts are following sports in promoting friendship between the French and the Germans.

This year the Paris stage and opera have received German singers, actors and musicians. Parisian stars have begun to invade Germany. Mistinguett, the music hall queen, took a whole troupe to Berlin a few months ago. The government has decided to encourage what individual initiative began, by sending the Comedie Francaise to Germany in the autumn.

MRS. MARGARET TOLLE,
Winchester, Ohio

Rapidly Improved

MRS. Margaret Tolle, who lives in Winchester, Ohio, says:

"I suffered from spells of weakness. My back and sides ached almost all the time. I had a 'dragged-down' feeling, and I looked 'washed-out' and pale. I was very nervous. At times these nervous spells became much worse.

"My housework went undone, because I had no strength with which to do it. I worried along, trying first one thing and then another. I seemed to get no better. In fact, I was slowly losing ground.

"One day I read the statement of a woman who had taken Cardui. It sounded convincing to me, so I made up my mind to try Cardui. After I had taken it a short while I noticed I was better. This encouraged me to keep on with the medicine.

"My health rapidly improved, and I was soon able to do things. My housework was no longer dreaded; I could do it easily. I rested well at night and felt strong. The pain in my back and sides no longer troubled me. I gained in weight and looked well."

Troop Notes

West District.

Open house for the parents of roop 2 of the Pilgrim Congregaional Church was held by the couts last Friday night, more than 00 persons attending the closing eremonies incidental to adjournent for the summer. The Hawk Patrol, winners in the West District at the Camperall in Forest Park, was invited by A. Krause, and the Owls, who won fifth place in the West District, were invited by Scoutmaster T. B. Langenberg to a dinner at the Roosevelt Hotel last Friday night. The troop committee was also present. The Stag Patrol won the spring contest and will be taken on a two-day camp soon.

A hike to De Soto was taken by Troop 154 of St. Mark's School June 3. The scouts left at 7:30 o'clock and arrived at 11. Each patrol picked individual camp sites while the roop committee pitched their tent, which was also used as headquarters. Scouts Paul Halloran and Victor Ploch won first prize for building and maintaining the best fire. The troop was divided into tow groups, one watching camp while the other went exploring. The afternoon was devoted to test passing. The following scouts passed trackin: Scouts P. Halloran, William Vishy, John Siesle and Charles Summerson. There are now 31 members in the troop.

North District.

A hike to Bolden, Ill., was taken by Troop 40 of the Third United Presbyterian Church last week-end. Tests were passed, games played and the scouts went fishing. Saturday night they went on a ghost hike and had several experiences. Scout Terry Poe passed his first-class tests in cooking and ax and Scout Phillip Burnet passed his second-class test in ax.

A talk on the scout laws was given by Dr. Witt at the meeting of Troop 83 of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church last week. The talk particularly concerned the sixth and seventh scout laws: "A scout is kind," and "A scout is cheerful." A patrol leaders' meeting was held Monday night at the scoutmaster's home to plan a field day.

PICNIC FOR EIGHT WINNERS

South End Scouts to Go on Trip East Get Toilet Kits.

A picnic and outing for the eight scouts of Troop 38 of the Bryan Mullanphy School, who were victors over all South District troops in the camparall intertroop contest June 1, was given by the Fathers and Mothers' Clubs of the troop at the Troop 38 cabin near Spanish Lake last Sunday. Seventy persons attended the outing and participated in the game and ceremonies commemorating the victory.

Each of the eight scouts were presented with toilet kits for use on the bus trip to Washington, D. C., which will be given them as the camparall prize by the local Scout Council. The troop as a whole was also presented an American flag by the Thirty-ninth Street Business Men's Association, the presentation being made by J. S. Wolf and C. E. Goodenough, secretary and treasurer of the organization. The new banner was used in a formal flag-raising ceremony. Swimming and hiking trips also were taken in the afternoon.

Ice cream and soda water, donated by the City Dairies and the Falstaff company, were served at the picnic.

DEBATE ON MODE OF EXECUTION

Cubans Discuss Doctor's Request to Inoculate Condemned Men.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Cuba, June 16.—Whether it's going to be formal, official execution for the condemned convicts of Cuba or death in the name of science, is being discussed in the newspapers as a consequence of a request made to the Government by Dr. Matias Dugue, member of the National Sanitization Board and leading Cuban physician.

He asked to be allowed to experiment with cancer cure through the medium of condemned convicts whom he would inoculate with the virus of that disease. The issue is being roundly debated. Convicts condemned to death now are executed by the "garrote," which chokes them.

CATCHES THIEF BY CAMERA

Frenchman Rigged Up Machine so Robber Snapped Own Picture.

PARIS, June 17.—Raoul Lefour has invented a system for catching burglars. Like most Frenchmen of modest means, he hid his savings at home, but every now and then he observed that someone had relieved him of a few bank notes.

He rigged up an arrangement with his camera, a string and the door, so that a photograph would be made of anyone entering the house. The camera worked, and the developed plate revealed the countenance of a neighbor, a woman. She was arrested and sent to prison.

ANCIENT SKELETON IN IRELAND

Estimated to Be 3000 Years Old: High Cranial Index.

ATHENRY, Ireland, June 16.—A human skeleton believed to be 3000 years old has just been taken from a grave near here, and the skull has been deposited in the National Museum in Dublin. The body in the grave was buried in a curved position, the knees being drawn up towards the head.

Experts say that the skull pointed to a high racial index and intellectual capacity of a high standard. An urn beautifully shaped and ornamented with chevron designs was found at the foot of the grave.

Millers' Club Golf Tournament.

The St. Louis Millers' Club will hold a golf tournament at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the St. Clair Country Club, on the Belleville road, one mile and a half east of Edgemont, Ill. Dinner will be served at 7 p. m. The tournament was postponed from June 5 on account of bad weather.

2000 EXPECTED AT CHARITIES MEETING

Plans Being Made to Receive Delegates to Catholic Conference.

Plans for the reception of 2000 delegates expected to attend the fourteenth annual meeting of the National Conference of Catholic Charities, to be held at Hotel Chase Sept. 16 to 20, are being perfected by a local committee, which has opened offices at 111 North Sixteenth street. The meeting will be held in connection with the national onvention of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, which is to be held here the same dates.

William L. Igoe, president of the St. Vincent de Paul Society in St. Louis, is vice president of the conference, and the Rev. John J. Butler, president of the Central Bureau of Catholic Societies in St. Louis, is a member of the executive board. The reception committee is headed by John E. Riley.

The meeting will open with the delegates attending mass in the New Cathedral. A night session will be held in the Municipal Theater in Forest Park. Golf and attendance at a baseball game between the St. Louis Browns and New York Yankees have been arranged as part of the recreational features.

PUBLIC SCHOOL PLAYGROUNDS WILL BE OPENED TOMORROW

62 Supervised Recreation Centers to Be in Use 11 Weeks.

Sixty-two public school playgrounds will be opened tomorrow to provide supervised recreation for 11 weeks to school children of the city. The 26 playgrounds in congested districts will be open from 9 o'clock in the morning until 8 in the evening. In residential districts the grounds will be open for shorter periods.

The municipal playgrounds, 29 in number, now are open and three vacant lot recreation centers have been established through the efforts of the Park and Playground Association. These are at Eighteenth street and Gravois avenue, Angelica and Blair avenues and one for Negro children at Market street and Grand boulevard.

The playground season will close Aug. 25 with a festival to be held at the high school stadium in which all playgrounds will participate.

DUTCH STORKS DIE IN AFRICA

Homeowners Regret Failure of Birds to Return to Nests.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, June 16.—Great is the sorrow in the Netherlands because of the failure of many a stork to regain his nest in the chimney top.

Information placed before the international conference for bird protection here shows that thousands of storks which had their summer refuge in Holland have failed to return home because they died far away in the Transvaal, South Africa, from eating poisonous grasshoppers. Storks are rigorously protected in Holland from the hunter. For generations they have occupied Dutch chimney-tops. But recent far southerly flights proved disastrous.

CONDUCTS ORCHESTRA WHEN HUNDREDS OF MILES AWAY

Berlin Leader Devises Piano Which Conveys His Directions by Wireless.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 16.—Conducting an orchestra hundreds of miles away has become possible with a special type of piano which conveys his directions by wireless for which the inventor, Dr. Erich Fischer, has taken out patents in all countries.

Skeptics were in the majority when the papers announced that Dr. Fischer would proceed to Goettingen with several soloists and from there conduct the orchestra of the High School of Music playing in Berlin. To everyone's surprise, however, the experiment turned out a complete success, the orchestra in Berlin playing and the soloists in Gottingen singing with the same precision and accuracy as though all were assembled in a common hall with eyes glued to the conductor's baton.

Expert engineers estimated that the time that elapsed between the conductor's cues at Goettingen and the return of the full orchestra reproduction from Berlin was less than the interval between a conductor's signals and his orchestra's response in the same hall.

VARICOSE VEINS REDUCED
Leg Troubles Healed by New Methods
A famous varicose vein specialist has given to the world a new therapy especially for the care and treatment of varicose veins of the leg. You stop the suffering from varicose veins, avoid the aches, pains, cramps, itching and numbness and increase the blood circulation with Viscose Method.
The just reason for providing yourself with this care is to avoid the ultimate ulceration of the leg. Ulceration begins when the diminished blood circulation fails to nourish the leg.
You can heal and prevent these ulcerations of the leg without being laid up.
Bulged or varicose veins of the leg, with or without any of these symptoms, can be reduced quickly and permanently by ambulatory absorption treatment. This is accomplished without hospital surgery. The treatments are ambulant. You continue the hardest work while getting well.
The first Ambulatorium in America, for ambulant treatments, was established five years ago in Los Angeles. The demand of friends or relatives of patients who traveled from this district for attention has resulted in the opening of the St. Louis Ambulatorium.
If you have leg trouble, call or write for information. Office hours, 9 to 5, Tuesday and Friday till 8 p. m. Phone CHestnut 9417.

NEW SKYSCRAPERS FOR CHESTNUT AND MARKET STREETS

Revival of Speculative Interest Indicated by Deals in Bell-Western Union-Courthouse Area.

12-STORY GARAGE ONE OF PROJECTS

Office Building and Two Towering Hotel Structures, Ranging From 16 to 20 Stories Planned.

By BERRY MOORE

Negotiations concluded for property on Chestnut street east of Twelfth boulevard within the last week are indicative of a revival of speculative interest in that section of the street which has been comparatively listless, as contrasted with the buoyancy displayed following execution of the Bell Telephone and Civil Court House projects.

Sale of 21 feet four inches at 1105 Chestnut, occupied by an antiquated three-story building, for approximately $2000 a front foot —a new price record for inside ground on that thoroughfare west of Eleventh street—to Jules Drucker, was announced yesterday by Eugene J. Altheimer of the real estate firm of Altheimer, Williams & Calmer.

The property was owned by the Bush-Burns Real Estate Co., which realizes a snug profit on the price at which the members of the concern purchased it four years ago. The purchase was made on a basis of the value of the ground, exclusive of the building. The property is situated only 42 feet west of and adjoining the northwest corner of Eleventh and Chestnut, which is regarded as enhancing its value.

Opposite Civil Courthouse.

Opposite the new Civil Courthouse which embraces the entire block from Chestnut to Market and from Eleventh to Twelfth, and adjacent to the recently completed Bell Telephone Building, which occupies an entire block from Chestnut to Pine and Tenth to Eleventh, the parcel has a noteworthy speculative value.

A skyscraper designed for lawyers, and with subway connection with the new courthouse, according to Robert Burns, president of the Bush-Burns Realty Co., recently was proposed for the quarter of the block embracing the northwest corner of Eleventh and Chestnut street. The corner is regarded as constituting an alluring site for a large building of this type.

The ground floor of the building just sold is occupied by the Bush-Burns Real Estate Co., which will continue to occupy it under a two-year lease, executed by the new owner, it was announced by the Altheimer, Williams & Calmer concern, which will have charge of it.

Seeing the trend of events in this section, Albert Wenzlick, president of the Albert Wenzlick Real Estate Co., when the Bell Telephone and Civil Courthouse projects were still in the promotion stage, purchased the southeast corner of Eleventh and Chestnut, adjoining property on Chestnut already owned by him. Opposite the Bell Telephone Building and Civil Courthouse, this corner also is regarded as essentially one for a building project on a large scale.

Ninth and Chestnut Garage.

A 12-story garage with stores on the ground floor, it is understood, is projected for the northwest corner of Ninth and Chestnut streets. As was told in Wednesday's Post-Dispatch, contracts have been signed by the Singer-Klein Real Estate Co. on behalf of Cincinnati interests for this site, which has 108 feet on Ninth extending to the north and south alley of the block and 130 feet on Chestnut street.

The purchase embraces three different ownerships, 22 by 90 feet nine inches on the corner, 43 feet six inches adjoining on Ninth, with an L of 30 feet on Chestnut owned by M. Howard, and 43 feet 10 inches at the corner of alley on Ninth owned by the Lawmill Realty Co.

The price to be paid for the three holdings under the contract, has not been disclosed. Negotiations for the corner parcel were handled in connection with the Jost-Miller Real Estate Co., and those for the alley holding through the W. B. Shelp Real Estate Co.

Plans for the big garage project call for a large outlay, it is understood, the structure to rival the most complete building of this type in the country.

The corner is regarded as one of the most valuable on Chestnut street east of Twelfth. It is opposite the new Western Union building at the southwest corner of Ninth and Chestnut.

The four-story building at the northeast corner of Ninth and Chestnut street recently was purchased by Nathaniel Glick, president of the Glick Real Estate Co., as a speculative investment. Many offers have been submitted for this site, embracing nearly a quarter of a block and which is regarded as

The corner is regarded as one of the most valuable on Chestnut street east of Twelfth. It is opposite the new Western Union building at the southwest corner of Ninth and Chestnut.

The four-story building at the northeast corner of Ninth and Chestnut street recently was purchased by Nathaniel Glick, president of the Glick Real Estate Co., as a speculative investment. Ma y offers have been submitted for this site, embracing nearly a quarter of a block and which is regarded as well situated for an office building or for a large hotel.

Negotiations are fast taking tangible form for the erection of a hotel at the northeast corner of Eighth and Market streets. The site, which is occupied by a one-story garage, is held by the hotel promoters under a 99-year lease.

Plans contemplate a 16-story structure, which would establish a new skyline for Market street, the American Hotel and Theater building at the northeast corner of Seventh and Market streets, 12 stories in height, now being the tallest structure on this thoroughfare, excluding the new Civil Courthouse.

The site has a frontage of 70 feet on Market and on Eighth of 109 feet to an alley, and is one of the largest corner lots available in one piece on this street east of Twelfth boulevard.

As president of the Southern Realty Co., a holding corporation, Charles Cella, recently purchased the northwest corner of Sixth and Market streets for an addition to the American Hotel, at the corner of Seventh. This gives him ownership of the entire half block on the north side of Market from Sixth street to Seventh street.

The addition, it is understood, is to be built as soon as the street has been widened. It will conform in exterior design with the present American Hotel, but may be 18 or 20 stories in height. A theater for stage performances or moving pictures may be incorporated. Nothing official, however, has been forthcoming from Cella other than that the corner has been acquired for the ultimate enlargement of the American.

The widening of Market street provided for in the $87,000,000 bond issue is expected to rejuvenate the street in no small degree. Speculators, keen to its possibilities as a result of the transformation which the widening project promises to work, are on the alert for purchases on this thoroughfare available at advantageous prices. The new Civil Courthouse, which will have a Market street frontage extending from Eleventh to Twelfth, is also expected to have a wholesome effect on this thoroughfare.

15 TO FLY TO LOUISVILLE FOR REAL ESTATE CONVENTION

Four Ships of Type of Lindbergh's to Carry Delegation—50 Others Leave Tomorrow by Special Train.

Three Ryan monoplanes of the Von Hoffmann Aircraft Co. and a plane owned by Phil deC. Ball, president of the St. Louis Browns, all of the type of Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis, will carry a delegation of 15 realty dealers to the twenty-first annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, in Louisville, Ky., June 19—22. The fleet will take off from Lambert Field tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock and arrive Louisville about 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. In the flying delegation will be Maj. James L. Barngrove, William R. Cady and Clarence C. Lang, president, treasurer and executive secretary, respectively, of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange; Milton B. Bellis, William L. Heckmann, Joseph M. Ebeling, Charles J. Flynn, William J. Meckel, Charles J. Hanneken, Harry Cornet, George E. Bradley, G. B. O'Reilly and Walter Kiburz.

The four planes will carry 150,000 leaflets which will be dropped when the fleet flies over Louisville. The leaflets read: "Greetings, Louisville! We are a delegation of realtors of the annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards from St. Louis, the air capitol of the United States and the home of 'WE.'"

A special train over the Louisville & Nashville will depart from St. Louis Union Station tomorrow evening, June 18, at 10:30 o'clock carrying 50 St. Louis realty men, arriving in Louisville Tuesday morning at 7:15 o'clock. Louis F. Yeckel, second vice president of the exchange, will be in charge of the train. Among those who have reservations on the train are Mrs. L. F. Yeckel, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Hauer, Mrs. Milton B. Bellis, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Federer, Wynn Rafferty, Ray W. Heyde, Mr. and Mrs. Leo J. Rickhoff, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond M. Henley, Harold E. Willson, Herbert F. Willson, E. L. Wehmeyer, Clarence M. Turley, Philip H. Zepp, Howard E. Kelsey, E. A. Macmahon, W. M. Stringer, R. Vernon Clark, Ralph C. Becker, Oreon E. Scott, Adolph Feinberg, J. P. O'Connor, W. L. Thomas and Elmer J. A. Schneider.

A group of 18 delegates will drive to Louisville by automobile, arriving Tuesday. In this party will be Harry R. Weisels, Arthur Hoehn, J. D. Healy, Miss Helen Healy, Miss Pauline Weinsberg, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jones and their daughter, Louis Bosso, J. H. Eberle, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Hartwig, Miss Myrtle Placke, Miss Helen Werning and H. O. Byrd and his family.

Joseph W. Hannauer of St. Louis flew to Louisville yesterday afternoon in a Von Hoffmann Aircraft Co. plane piloted by Milt Girton, who returned to St. Louis during the afternoon. The others passengers were Harry H. Culver of Culver City, Cal.; J. H. Albright of Albright City, Cal., and H. R. Ennis of Kansas City. The party had luncheon in the plane on the way.

Oreon E. Scott will address the property management division on "Creative Property Managing for Apartment House Property."

CORPORATION FORMED TO FINANCE BUILDING

Will Push Erection of New Structure for City College of Law and Finance.

Organization of a new corporation to be known as the City College Development Corporation, which plans to finance the construction of a new $1,500,000 building for the City College of Law and Finance, was announced yesterday by A. E. Ebersole, president of the college.

The projected new building will be located at the southwest corner of Fourteenth and Olive streets, overlooking the Municipal Plaza. It will be 14 stories high, several floors of which will be used to house the offices and class rooms of the City College, while the remainder will be devoted to commercial purposes and office space.

The corporation, organized under the laws of Missouri, contemplates the issuance of $1,500,000 income profit sharing certificates which will bear a 20-year endowment life insurance policy. Two trust funds will be established, one for five years and the other for 20 years, in each of which the investor will participate at their respective distribution periods. Investments in the proposed plan will be sold in denominations ranging from $100 to $100,000.

The proposed building would supplant the City College's present quarters at Grand and Olive. The institution was organized in 1908, opening small quarters in the Metropolitan Building at Grand and Olive. At the end of its third year, it was compelled to seek additional facilities and it moved to its present location in the Mid-City Building. The college is devoted exclusively to higher commercial courses, including a full law course.

OPTICAL COMPANY LEASES STORE IN MARYLAND HOTEL

W. H. Kindy, Inc., operating under the trade name of the Kindy Optical Co., has leased through the Mercantile Trust Co. the storeroom in the Maryland Hotel, 209 North Ninth street.

This company is a chain store optical company and will open an up-to-date laboratory and salesroom. The St. Louis office will be in charge of George R. Metzinger.

NEW CHOUTEAU MARKET CONSTRUCTION BEGINS

Plans for Entire Plant of Produce Center Announced; Office Building and Auction House Proposed.

Construction of the first team-track unit of the new commission and produce center at Chouteau and Compton avenue has begun, and plans for the whole plant were announced yesterday. The Board of Aldermen Friday passed an ordinance for vacating a group of "paper" streets in the site, which is bounded by Chouteau, Compton, Ranken avenue and the Missouri-Pacific Railroad tracks.

The first team-track unit will have a capacity of 150 cars. Later more team and "hold" tracks would be provided for prompt handling of vegetables and fruits for the local market or passing through, it was announced by the Market Development Corporation, which is promoting this new "commission row."

There will be a unit of 75 stores for commission merchants, each 24 feet wide and 60 feet deep, in a one-story concrete building. On each side will be a truck loading platform sheltered by a canopy. Full basements will be built. Among the services designed for a sanitary and vermin-proof plant will be refrigeration, modern plumbing and elevators.

Office Building Proposed.

Facing Chouteau avenue, an office building is proposed for brokers, express companies and others having business contact with the market. The Missouri-Pacific Railroad, the market company announced, proposed to erect on a corner of the site a fruit auction house, 100x500 feet, designed to permit future additions. Still another unit contemplated is a cold storage house.

Parking space for produce men's trucks will be provided near the commission stores.

Arguing the advantages of the site, the market company says it is centrally located for distribution of foodstuffs, on major thoroughfares to the four points of the compass and away from public streets which would create traffic congestion. Similar facilities have been provided in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and Los Angeles and are planned in Cleveland, the company says.

YECKEL FIRMS OCCUPY NEW BUILDING ON GRAVOIS

The new Yeckel Building at 3542 Gravois avenue, which house Yeckel, Earickson & Co., Inc., and the American Home Building & Loan Association, was opened last week.

The acquisition of this building marks an epoch in the growth of the two companies. Yeckel, Earickson & Co., Inc., was established in 1908 and the American Home Building & Loan Association in 1909. Both companies, until recently, were housed in the old South Side office at 2925 South Broadway.

Louis F. Yeckel is president of both institutions.

DOWNTOWN CORNER
WITH FUTURE
Southeast corner Eleventh and Morgan; 84 feet on Morgan, 105 feet on Eleventh St. (reduced to 75 feet after widening Morgan st. to an 80-foot boulevard).
Present improvements, while of little consequence, can be made to net purchaser 6 to 8%, holding this property until the street widening and the proposed Illinois Traction Co. improvements which, together with other factors, will make sure the betterment of values on this corner.
Morgan street, when widened, will merge into Delmar Boulevard, just west of Grand avenue, and will provide a rapid outlet to west and central St. Louis from North St. Louis. Today's price on this corner will seem cheap 5 years from now. A little study on the corner and its future now will be profitable. When everyone knows a thing is valuable it is hard to buy that item cheap.

YOUNG PEOPLE
Here Is Your Golden Opportunity to Make a Real START IN LIFE!!

Why pay rent for the rest of your lives and be under the thumb of a landlord who howls because he's afraid your children will disturb the neighbors, or that they will scratch the woodwork and the wall paper.

Come to beautiful "Ridgeview," where there is space for expansion, where the howl of the landlord is forever hushed, where you are boss, and where no one will complain of the children.

Pay $100 cash and $35.00 per month, including interest, get your deed to a 60-foot lot (twice the size of an ordinary city lot), and a dandy 3-room cottage; have all the conveniences of the city and none of the disadvantages.

Instead of paying rent, pay off your home.

If you are ambitious, come out any day, any time, and see the 40 happy families who have taken advantage of this amazing opportunity. Manchester Road, just west of Denny. Bus from loop at Manchester and City Limit car line to Denny Road, walk west, or call KIrkwood 819 Sunday or MAin 0878 during week, and salesman will call for you. No obligation.

UTILITY PUBLICITY MAN FOR MISSOURI CALLED IN INQUIRY

J. B. Sheridan of St. Louis Subpenaed as Witness by the Federal Trade Commission.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Activities of public utilities information agencies in two more states, Missouri and Tennessee, will come under the scrutiny next week of the Federal Trade Commission in its utility financing investigation.

Resuming its hearings Tuesday, the commission has subpenaed as a witness J. B. Sheridan of St. Louis, secretary of the Missouri Committee on Public Utility Information, a former St. Louis newspaperman, who has figured prominently in previous testimony.

Guy P. Newbern of Nashville, director of the Tennessee Public Service Information Bureau, is scheduled to take the stand Thursday, it being anticipated that Sheridan's testimony will require two days.

Commissioner Edgar A. McCulloch, who is presiding at the hearings, also announced that the hearings would be suspended between July 7 and Sept. 1, because of hot weather, but that investigation into holding companies and publicity organizations would be continued by examiners in the field.

The remaining witnesses to be heard before the sessions are to be suspended include Earl Hodges of New York, formerly director of the Arkansas Public Service Information Bureau, and Rex. I. Brown of Little Rock, Ark., secretary and treasurer of the bureau, and secretary and treasurer of the Arkansas Public Utilities Association. They, together with H. Lee Jones of Topeka, director of the information bureau of the Kansas Public Service Co. and secretary of the Kansas section of the Middle West division of the National Electric Light Association, have been summoned to testify June 26 and 27.

John C. Mellett of Indianapolis, former executive secretary of the Indiana Committee on Public Utility Information and now secretary-treasurer of the Indiana Electric Light Association, has been summoned to testify June 28. Witnesses to follow him include William Stokes of Indianapolis, secretary of the Indiana Public Utilities Association; Frank O. Cuppey of Lafayette, Ind., general manager of the Lafayette Telephone Co., and Arthur E. Scott of Indianapolis, director of public relations of the Interstate Public Service Co.

In addition to announcing its plans for future hearings, the commission submitted its monthly interim report to the Senate, in which it was stated that 5480 answers had been received from privately owned utility companies to the Commission's first general questionnaire, concerning production, purchases, sales, inter-state business, inter-company relationships, earnings, investments and plant capacity.

The report said that representatives of the commission were in offices of large holding companies in New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Chicago, obtaining information on the financing of the organizations, which will be disclosed in later hearings.

There remain six of 28 organizations covering 38 states, and four geographical divisions of the National Electric Light Association to be inquired into, before the publicity phases of the inquiry are completed.

When love fades ... whose fault?

Strange, what little things so often kill romance. Careless little things! Unconscious slips that creep in to mar treasured illusions. So unsuspected, the guilty one rarely guesses the truth ... until it is too late.

He won her ... but not until he learned to overcome "B. O."
(BODY ODOR)

AT FIRST, he alone was in love—she was coldly indifferent. He made all the advances—she merely tolerated him. If he invited her out, she always found some excuse for not going. At every party, she avoided him, and devoted all her winsome charms to other men.

Naturally, he was bewildered. It hurt to think that the one girl he adored, didn't care for him.

A queer suspicion

Then one night a queer suspicion flashed across his mind. Body Odor—could that be the trouble? She was so dainty and exquisite herself, she certainly wouldn't be apt to excuse a thing like body odor. He'd have to be more careful—and make sure of himself.

He found out later that he guessed right about B. O. They're engaged now. Of course, it took time to win her—B. O. isn't easily forgiven.

Body odor always offends ... why risk it?

Perhaps you're saying "But I'm safe." Wait! Body odor is too treacherous a fault to take chances with. Without warning, it kills love and friendship—plays havoc with success and happiness itself.

We all have to perspire. Health demands it. Even on a cool day, our pores give off as much as a quart of odor-causing waste. We can't detect this unpleasantness ourselves. Our sense of smell becomes deadened to it. But others always notice it.

Millions keep safe —by purifying pores

Yet it's easy now to avoid embarrassment—just wash and bathe regularly with this delightful toilet soap that purifies—Lifebuoy. With its gloriously refreshing and mild antiseptic lather, Lifebuoy deodorizes pores. Doesn't hide odor—but removes its cause, giving bath-to-bath freshness and freedom from body odor.

Lifebuoy's antiseptic lather guards health, too—by removing germs. So beneficial to delicate skin. You'll learn to love its pleasant clean scent which tells you Lifebuoy purifies, and which vanishes as you rinse.

CRYSTAL LAKE RESORT UNDER CLUB OPTION

Syndicate Plans to Add Cottages, Swimming Pool, Pavilion and Lake on Site.

Crystal Lake Resort, comprising 110 acres on the Bopp road about one-half mile south of the Clayton Road, has been taken under option by a syndicate, which will operate it as a club.

Part of the tract will be subdivided for summer cottages, which will be sold on attractive terms. Contracts have been let for an 18-hole golf course. Present improvements include club house, swimming pool, dancing pavilion and a lake stocked with fish.

The option is held in escrow by the First National Bank of Clayton. Contemplated improvements will involve about $75,000, according to C. D. McQuoid of the Joseph Darst Real Estate Co.

Negotiations also are pending, it is understood, for 70 acres just east of the tract and extending through to the Geyer road and owned by Carol Berkley, real estate operator. This, if acquired, will be incorporated in the new club enterprise, the present grounds of which lie on both sides of the Bopp road. The club now has a membership of 227.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

DEPENDABLE.—There could be nothing improper in sending a gift since you are invted to the wedding. One is as correct as the other. But a business or other connection with the bride's father in no way obligates you t osend a present.

MRS. G. H.—William Henry Harrison (1773-1841) ninth President of the United States, was born at Berkeley, Charles City County, Virginia. He was a son of Benjamin Harrison, (1740-91) a signer of the Declaration of Independence. Harrison was elected President in 1840, but died in Washington only a month after his inauguration.

C. B.—"Dues" is the plural of a singular noun, "due." It is not a collective noun. You should say "The membership due is ten dollars," if you mean this is the only due, but if this sum includes several items, as assessment per capita, or some other form of due, you could rightly say, "The membership dues are ten dollars." Naturally, if speaking of the dues as paid by several, you would say, "The membership dues are paid."

J. R.—For the control of wood borers in trees it is hardly possible to make a general recommendation, since some treatments safe on one tree, are injurious to others. Write the Department of Entomology, College of Agriculture, University of Missouri, at Columbia, naming the kind of tree you have. One recommendation of this department is to work carefully with a pocket knife, or a slightly flexible wire thrust into the tunnels, or to drop a few drops of carbon bisulphide into the tunnels where they are exposed on the surface. Borers are most injurious to trees which for any reason are not growing vigorously, which may include transplanted fruit or shade trees, and the methods of protecting them are worth a good deal more than the cure.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

G. M.—Common law marriages are recognized in Nebraska at this time

M. F. L.—You cannot purchase a permit for a boy of 15 to drive a car. No one under 16 can lawfully drive one.

INTERESTED.—A stepmother is not legally required to take care of and support a stepchild, unless she has taken the child into her home and agreed to do so.

N. F. R.—You might inquire about unclaimed estates at the office of the Clerk of the Probate Court, in the Courthouse, Fourth and Pine streets.

EDDIE JAY.—You can take a change of venue from the Justice in whose Court the case is now pending: You are advised to employ a lawyer at once.

MRS. L. C.—If the branches overhang your property all the time, you can cut them back to the boundary line. There is nothing else that you can do.

I. X. L. — Unless the man in question had agreed to let you take the car and repair it in full settlement, he could sue for damages.

A READER.—The woman mentioned as your landlord can sue you for the rent, even though she has failed to keep her promise to fix the screen doors.

MRS. MICHEAU. — There is no longer any period of grace under the circumstances. They can begin foreclosing at once, but it will take at least 20 days before they can sell the property.

A FISHERMAN.—Joachim Creek, at Herculaneum, in the section mentioned, is not a navigable stream. Farmers who own the land can keep you off their land if they wish.

ANN. — Ordinarily the will of your relative in Los Angeles would have been fied for probate by this time. Write to the Clerk of the Superior Court, Los Angeles, and ask whether it has been filed or not.

THANK YOU.—The wife cannot claim furniture which the husband paid for. If she obtained the divorce the court could award her alimony, even though there were no children, but not if the husband obtained the divorce. Consult a lawyer.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

DAILY READER.—Glyco-thymoline, pure or diluted, as may be best adapted to the case you mention, is a good spray for the nose.

SUBSCRIBER.—The careful, intelligent, and systematic training of a child is such a valuable adjunct in correcting enuresis that you are advised to sen dstamped, addressed envelope for full text of your reply. Refer to subscriber.

MRS. H. H. S.—Diet lists are never printed in this department. A list giving a high calory diet may be obtained at different places. One will be mailed you if you wish and will send stamped, addressed envelope, saying that you want to put on weight.

SINCERELY.—If the spots you mention are moles they can only be removed by operative methods, and if you wish some one recommended for such service, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Some spots of this kind are known as liver spots, and if of this nature may be removed by the following: Hyposulphite of soda, 2 drachms; glycerine, ½ ounce; distilled water, 3 ounces. Mix, shake and apply night and morning.

CURIOUS.—The disease in question is communicable all through the primary and secondary stage, by the methods you mention, but is not communicable in the last, third, or tertiary stage. "Home brew" might affect the treatment you are taking, in the same way that it may prove harmful in general, which it usually does, so that for prudential reasons it would be advisable to abstain from all such beverages while under treatment.

IN MEMORIAM

BECK—In loving memory of our dear mother, Minnie Beck, who died June 14, 1926:

We do not forget you, nor do we intend;
We think of you always and will to the end;
Gone and forgotten by some you may be,
But dear to our memory you ever will be.
Sadly missed by HER CHILDREN.

CHIBNALL—In memory of our dear brother and uncle, Philip H. Chibnall, who departed this life three years ago, June 18, 1925.

We will not forget you, nor do we intend,
We think of you always and will to the end.
Gone and forgotten by some, we can see,
But dear to our memory you always will be.
Sadly missed by his sisters and brother, JESSIE, CLARA, JACK, NIECE AND NEPHEW, CLARA TURNER AND VINCENT TRIMBERGER.

DIXEN—In loving memory of our dear daughter Vivian Mary, who departed this life one year ago, June 15, 1927.

What would we give her hand to clasp,
Her patient face to see.
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
As in the days that used to be.
But some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more,
In heaven, that happy life.
Sadly missed by
FATHER, MOTHER AND ALL WHO LOVED HER.

KINZEL—In loving remembrance of my dear wife, Elizabeth Kinzel, who departed this life one year ago June 16, 1927.

You suffered hours, yes, hours of pain
To wait for cure but all in vain
'Till God alone knew what was best.
He called you home to give you rest.
Days of sadness still comes o'er us,
Secret tears often flow,
But memory keeps you ever near us,
Though you died one year ago.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

MORGAN—In loving memory of my dear husband, James A. Morgan, whom God called home two years ago today:

I can see our Savior's footprints
On the path which thou hast trod.
Through the shadow, onward, upward,
To the promised home of God.
I know, darling, you are free from sorrow,
Free from toil and pain and care.
With your loved ones and our Savior, darling,
I will meet you there.
LUCILLE MORGAN.

MILNE—In loving memory of Augusta Milne who died June 18, 1927.

Dear wife you are not forgotten:
Still in memory you are with us as you always were before.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, SISTER AND RELATIVES.

OLLIGES—In loving memory of our darling daughter Florence, who passed away one year ago June 10, 1927:

We mourn for her in silence;
No eyes can see us weep;
But many a silent tear is shed
While others are asleep.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER AND DADDY AND ALL WHO LOVED HER. (c)

PETERS—In loving memory of Walter H. Peters, who passed away one year ago, June 16, 1927:

One year has passed since that sad day
The one we loved was called away;
God took him home, it was His will,
But in our hearts he liveth still.
Sadly missed by mother, wife, son, brother and sisters and all who loved him.

PETERKORT—In memory of our dear husband and father Bernard Peterkort, who died June 17, 1927.

Of the treasures God has given,
That bring to us peace and rest,
He has called thee unto heaven,
The one that our hearts loved best.
MRS PETERKORT AND CHILDREN.

RANFT—In loving memory of my dear mother Lena Ranft nee Studt), who departed this life 5 years ago, June 19, 1923.

Always remembered by her daughter and all who loved her.
MRS. EDNA RANSOM.

SHOWMAN—In loving memory of our dear son, Gilbert Showman, who fell asleep in Jesus June 18, 1927.

Not dead to us who loves him,
Not lost but gone before,
He lives with us in memory
And will forever more.
Sadly missed by
FATHER AND MOTHER.

STRATMANN—In loving memory of our son, Arthur Stratmann, who departed this life two years ago, June 20, 1926:

There is someone who misses you sadly
And finds time long since you went.
There is someone thinks of you always
And tries to be brave and content.
Sadly missed by
PARENTS, SISTERS AND BROTHERS AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM.

WHELAN—In memory of our darling, Thomas A. Whelan.

On June 9th, 1924, a loving voice said "Come."
And with farewells unspoken he gently entered home.
Sadly missed by his MOTHER, SISTERS AND BROTHER.
Anniversary mass June 10.

WILBORN—In loving memory of my dear daughter, Molly Wilborn, who passed away one year ago, June 18, 1927:

No one knows how much we miss you,
No one knows the bitter pain
We have suffered since we lost you:
Life has never been the same.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly, tender, kind and true.
There is not a day, dear Molly,
That we do not think of you.
Sadly missed by daughter, parents, sister, brother, sister-in-law, brother-in-law, nieces and all who loved her. (c)

WOOLMERSHAUSER—In loving memory of our darling daughter, Fern, who passed away five years ago, June 15, 1923.

We mourn for her in silence,
No eye can see so sweet,
But many a silent tear is shed,
While others are asleep.
Sadly missed by mother, dad and sister and all who loved her. (c)

In loving memory of our dear wife, mother, mother-in-law and grandmother, who passed away June 15, 1927:

Gone but not forgotten.
Sadly missed by the Hoppe and Allen families and all who loved her.

SALESMEN

We are getting ready to open a Seven Million Dollar Subdivision and can use the services of a few additional men who have had merchandise experience and can furnish good references.

This is a real opening for an ambitious man.

The modern subdivision business involves millions of dollars and is growing bigger each year. It is the one big business that is not overcrowded. Here you can really make big money legitimately and can, in a few years, be independent.

Our upper five men are making $1200 to $2000 a month and will make more from now on.

If you feel you should change businesses, or, if you are in a rut, come in and talk to Mr. Davis.

No matter what line of work you are in, this may be your opportunity.

AFTER THE BALL

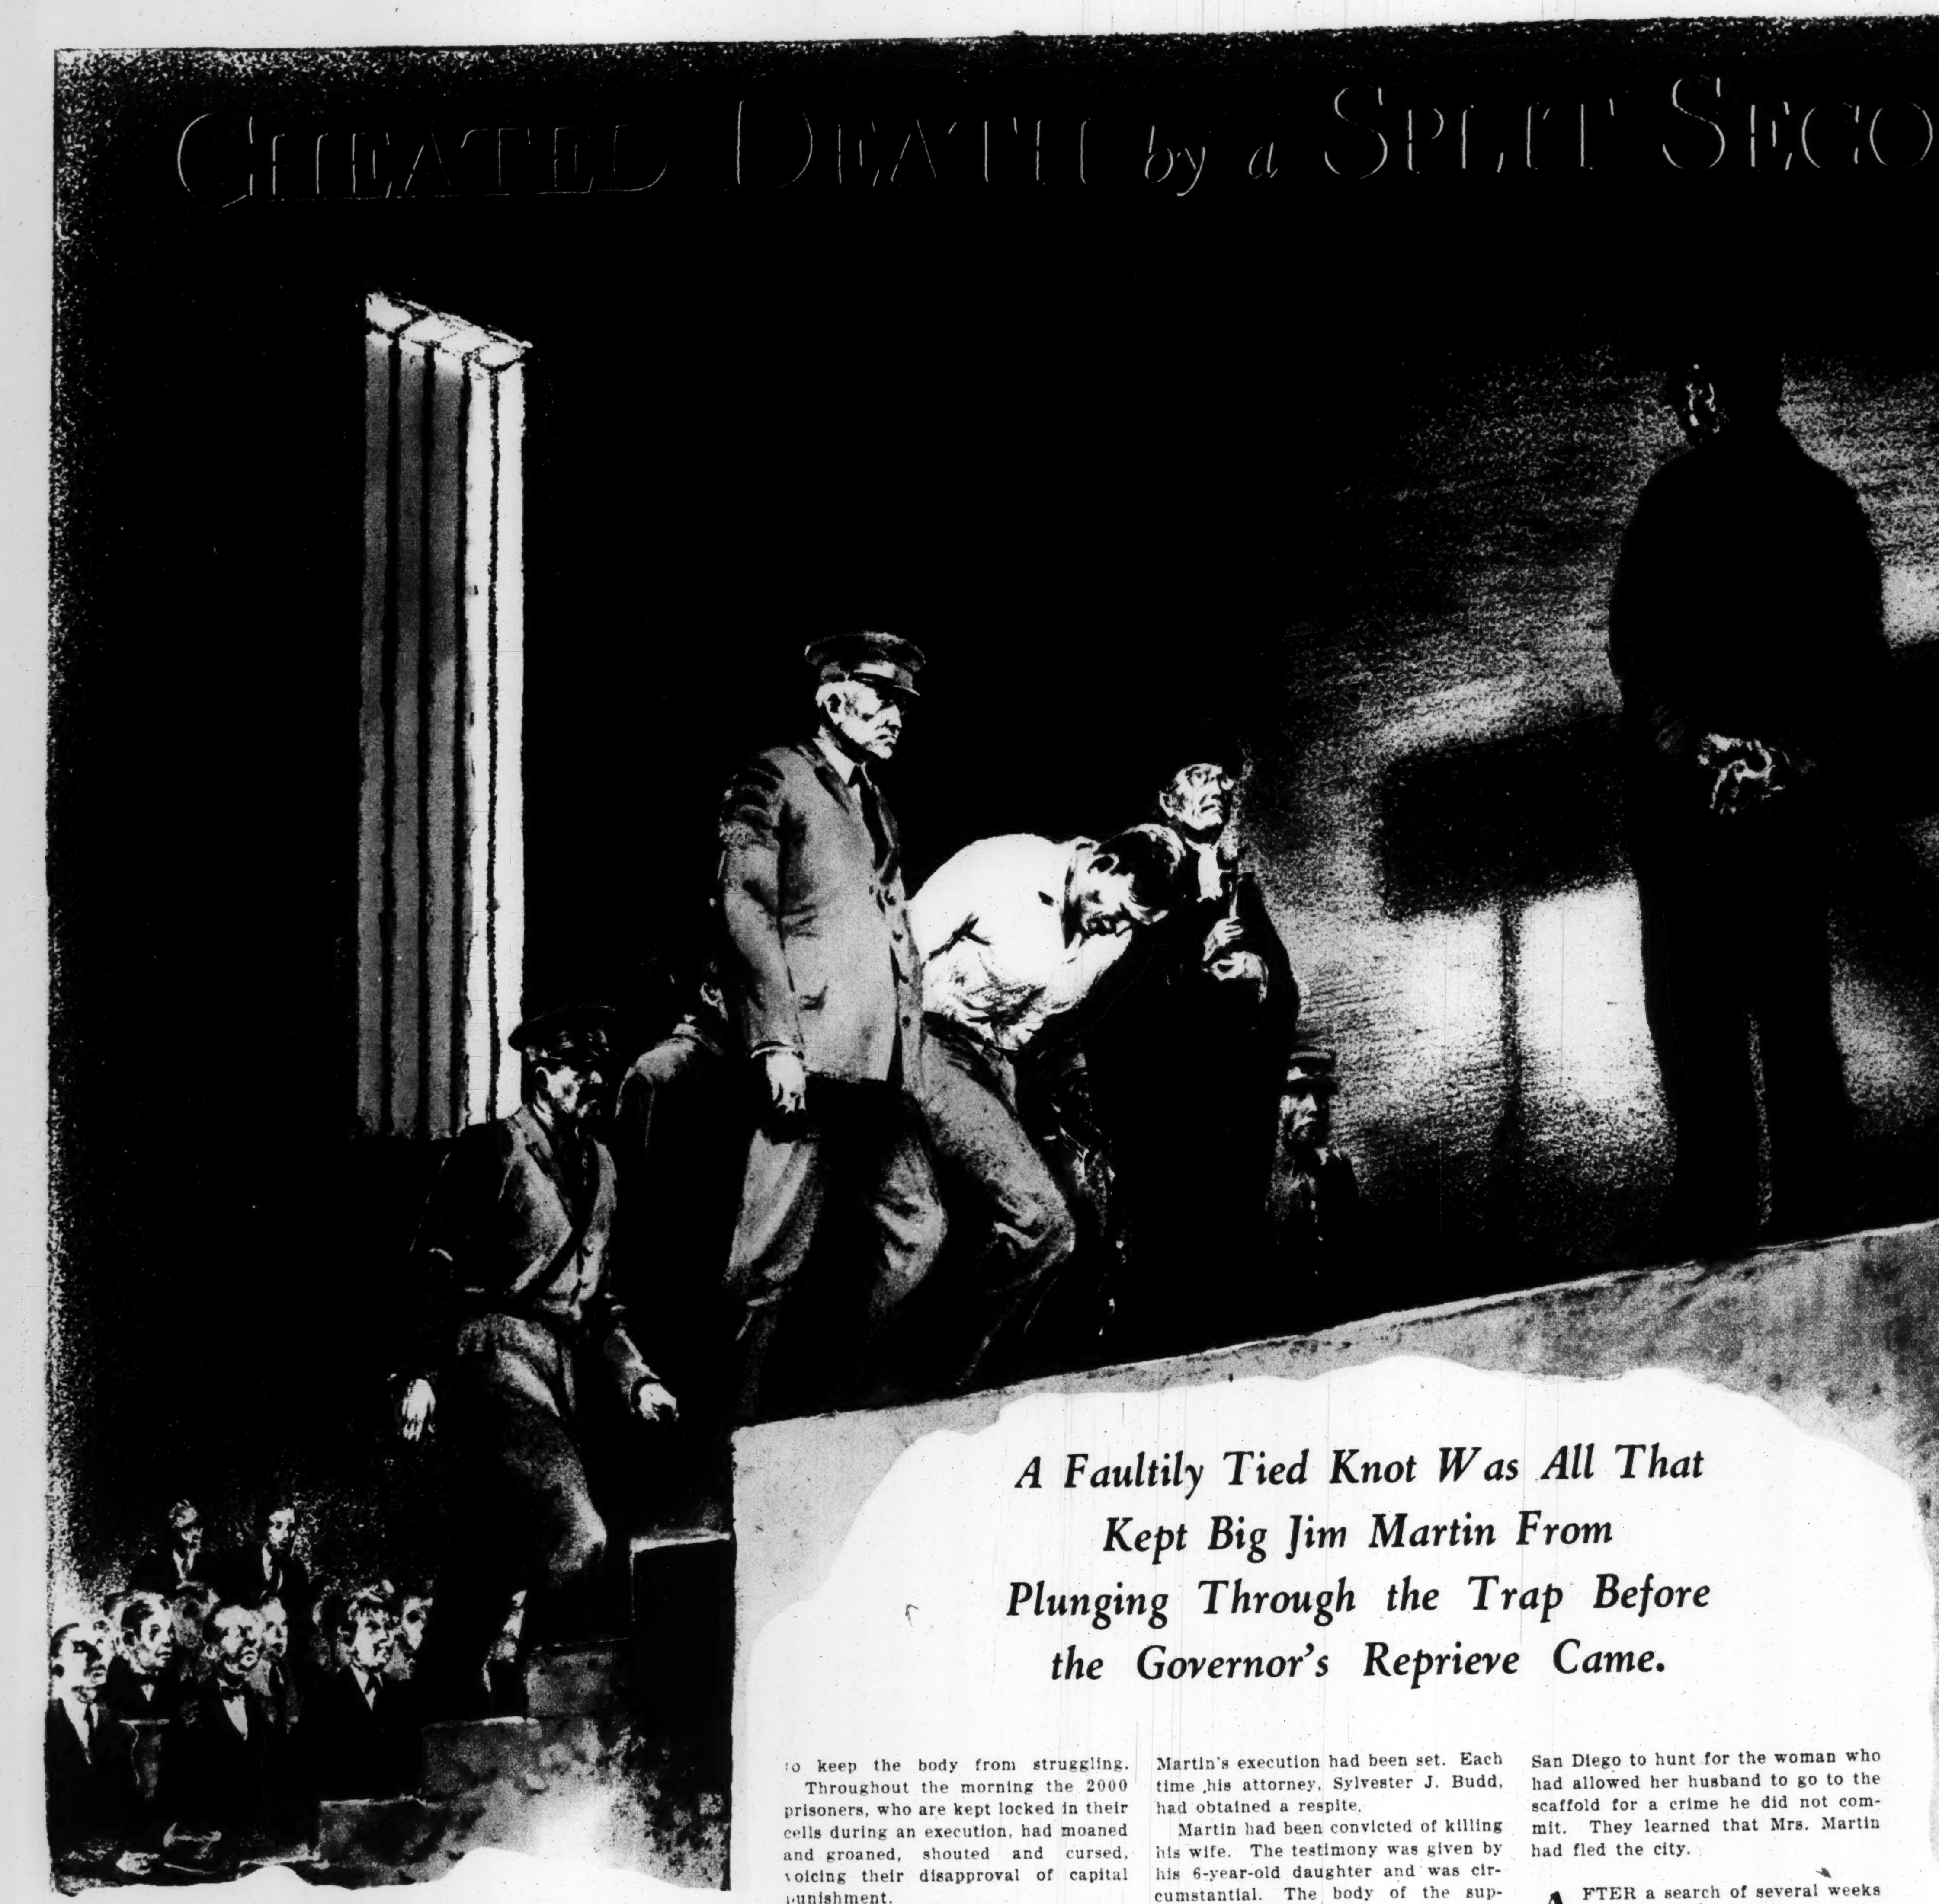
CHEATED DEATH by a SPLIT SECOND



A Faultily Tied Knot Was All That Kept Big Jim Martin From Plunging Through the Trap Before the Governor's Reprieve Came.

Big Jim Martin, accompanied by guards and a priest, mounted the fatal thirteen steps to the gallows platform.

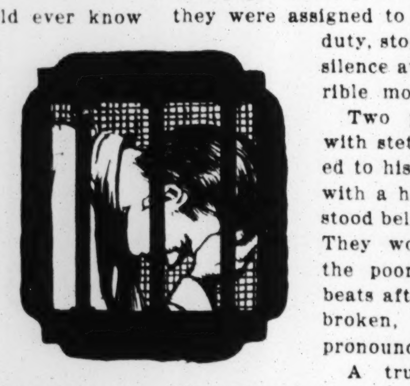
LOS ANGELES.

THREE uniformed guards at San Quentin Penitentiary sat in the tiny room on the gallows platform. Each held in his right hand a razor-sharp knife, poised just one inch over a stout cord which ran along a two-foot-wide shelf for 18 inches, then disappeared through a small hole in the board.

Each guard was watching the top of a partition at the left of the unroofed room. Within a few seconds a hand would be seen, raised just above the partition outside. That would be the signal at which the three would simultaneously draw their knives over the three cords in front of them.

One of these severed cords released a 50-pound iron ball held suspended in a perpendicular trough. The ball, hurtling downward, would yank the catch from the gallows trap, and another life would be hurled into eternity.

No human being would ever know which guard had cut the fatal trap cord. They were placed in position an hour before the scheduled hanging. The official who placed them, being in the little room with the loose ends of the cords for adjustment, did not know which cord meant death. The official who attached the cord to the iron ball and handed the loose end up through the hole did not know where it would be placed.



The three guards did not know, and each would have the satisfaction of believing that he had cut one of the blank strings.

Big Jim Martin, accompanied by guards and a priest, mounted the fatal 13 steps to the gallows platform. His arms were strapped to his sides. He was quickly placed on the trap. A guard flung a strap around his ankles. The hangman, who would receive $25 for the job, dropped the noose over Martin's head, then drew it up tightly around the throat, almost choking the life out of the man before he was hanged. A third guard pulled the great black hood down over the head and face to shut out the view of distorted features from the crowd of spectators.

IT NOW remained only for the hangman to raise his hand so that it could be seen above the partition by the three men in the tiny room. Then they would sever the three cords and spring the trap.

It was a matter of seconds only until Jim Martin, burly, hard-working blacksmith, who had never before been in trouble, would pay the death penalty for the crime of killing his wife.

One hundred and fifty spectators, gathered in morbid curiosity, and 15 newspaper men, present only because they were assigned to the unpleasant duty, stood in breathless silence awaiting the terrible moment.

Two physicians, one with stethoscope adjusted to his ears, the other with a heart-beat chart, stood below the scaffold. They would count out the poor devil's heartbeats after his neck was broken, and officially pronounce him dead.

A trusty inmate of the prison was close by. His duty was to rush forward the instant the body dropped through the trap, quickly tear open the shirt at the front so the doctor might place his instrument against the left breast, and then throw his arms around the executed man to keep the body from struggling.

Throughout the morning the 2000 prisoners, who are kept locked in their cells during an execution, had moaned and groaned, shouted and cursed, voicing their disapproval of capital punishment.

Warden Frank McArdle and his secretary stood apart from the spectators and close to a telephone connected directly into Gov. Henry Gage's office in Sacramento.

THE executioner started to raise his hand for the signal. Then he noted that the great knot in the noose, which is the neck breaker, was not just right. He stepped quickly over to the condemned man and adjusted it, then back to position. It was a matter now of only a split second when Martin would drop.

The hangman's hand again left his side for the signal. At that instant, spectators and guards were electrified by the shrill ringing of the telephone bell.

A shriller whistle, blown by the Warden, blasted the nerve-wracking silence. Spectators jumped. Many exhaled their breath in guttural and unnatural noises. Several fainted under the terrible tension.

The hangman ran to the condemned man, released the choking noose and yanked the black hood from Martin's face. He was limp. Two guards held him up.

"No, no, it's not too late, Governor!" the Warden spoke into the telephone. "All right, goodby."

The Warden waved to his guards. Pandemonium reigned. The 15 newspaper men galloped down three flights of stairs from the execution chamber and rushed to the telephones to spread the news that a condemned man had missed death by a fraction of a second.

Martin was carried into the death chamber. He was revived after great effort. At first he believed he was dead. Then gradually it dawned upon him that he was still in the land of the living. He had been at death's door, then jerked back from the brink of the grave.

It was more than a week before he was able to leave the prison hospital and be returned to a barred cell.

On five different occasions within the period of two years a date for Martin's execution had been set. Each time his attorney, Sylvester J. Budd, had obtained a respite.

Martin had been convicted of killing his wife. The testimony was given by his 6-year-old daughter and was circumstantial. The body of the supposedly murdered woman had not been found.

On this date, however, it had seemed that nothing but divine intercession could prevent the execution.

One week before the date set for the legal killing of Martin, Attorney Budd had been told by a friend of his that he, the friend, was positive he had seen Mrs. Martin in San Diego.

The lawyer hastened south, and for several days he lay in wait near a rooming house. Finally he was rewarded by meeting the suspected woman face to face as she was about to enter her boarding house late in the evening. This was the night before Martin was to be executed.

The attorney spoke to the woman. She recognized him. Then with a scream she fled down the street and disappeared into the night. Budd attempted to catch up with her, but she was too fast for him.

The lawyer rushed to the telephone. Gov. Gage was not in Sacramento. He was expected in his office from San Francisco the following morning at 9 o'clock, just one hour before the trap would be sprung under Martin.

Budd made a dash for Sacramento, driving his automobile all night, and arrived at the Governor's office 15 minutes before 10 o'clock, the hour set for the execution.

BREATHLESSLY he poured out his story to the Governor—just enough so that the executive was convinced Martin should be given another respite from death. Bad telephone connections almost caused the sending of an innocent man to his death on the gallows. But the Governor's mandate arrived barely in time, due to that slight readjustment which the hangman had made in the knot of the noose.

By special messenger from the Governor's office that afternoon, Warden McArdle received an indefinite stay of execution for Martin.

Attorney Budd, accompanied by a private detective, left immediately for San Diego to hunt for the woman who had allowed her husband to go to the scaffold for a crime he did not commit. They learned that Mrs. Martin had fled the city.

AFTER a search of several weeks she was located in a notorious Tijuana dance hall, of which she had become an inmate.

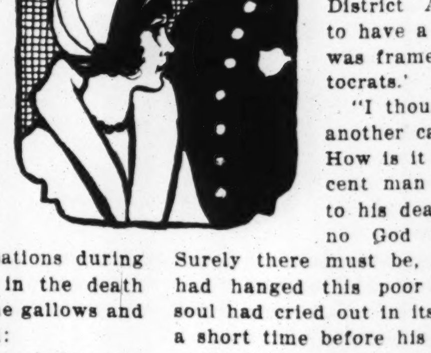
Budd and his companion bided their time. One evening the detective, having become more or less chummy with the woman, invited her for an automobile ride. She accepted, little thinking that Budd lay in the tonneau of the car, concealed by blankets.

Speeding along into the night, with the detective keeping up an interesting conversation, Mrs. Martin had not the slightest suspicion that she was being kidnaped and rushed over the Mexican border into the United States, until the car was halted by the border patrol.

Here Budd came out of his hiding place and the woman, recognizing him, screamed and attempted to flee from the car. A pair of handcuffs, however, subdued her. On the trip north to Sacramento she broke down and confessed.

In the presence of Gov. Gage next morning Mrs. Martin repeated her confession and signed a typewritten copy of it.

Jealousy because Martin was associated with a number of women in a church choir where he sang was the only motive the woman gave for her willingness to see her husband legally killed.



In due course of time the red tape accompanying the case was all trimmed away. Mrs. Martin was given a 15-year sentence in San Quentin Prison for what she had done, and Martin received an unconditional pardon, with restoration of citizenship.

He described his sensations during the 40 hours he spent in the death chamber, his march to the gallows and what occurred afterward:

"On Wednesday evening before the Friday morning I was to be hanged, six guards accompanied me from my cell in 'condemned row.' We walked through the prison yard. All other inmates had been locked in, and the count verified.

"I was told that the death chamber was on the top floor of the building which we were approaching, three flights up. For lack of anything else to concentrate on, I counted those steps. There were 75.

"THE two death chambers adjoin the gallows room, and we entered from the rear so that I would not see the gallows. I was placed in one of the death chambers. There were a chair, a small table and a mattress. Outside was quite a wide corridor, where two guards kept the death watch.

"Not until I had been locked in the death chamber did I actually realize that I would leave it only to walk to my doom, just beyond that heavy, solid iron door.

"I sat down in the chair. My brain was in a whirl. I got up. I walked up and down the room. I noted some writings on the wooden stanchions. I went close and read: 'O my God! My God! Why hast Thou forsaken me? Here am I, Lord, to ignominiously die on the scaffold two hours from now. I am innocent of the crime for which I was convicted. The police and District Attorney had to have a victim, and I was framed by the plutocrats.'

"I thought, here was another case like mine. How is it that an innocent man may be sent to his death? Is there no God to interfere? Surely there must be, and yet they had hanged this poor devil, whose soul had cried out in its anguish just a short time before his execution.

"In days gone by I had sung in the church choir in Sacramento.

GREENVILLE, South Carolina.

POSSIBLY there were other ways in which she might have achieved her purpose of being "different," but Sue Isabel Boggs picked a sure one. When she set out to show her originality eight or nine years ago, she hit upon the inspiration of showing it by depriving all male admirers of her companionship. She is 25 now and so assiduously has she clung to her resolution that she hasn't had a beau yet. They say she weakened a little last summer when that New York playwright came down here, but she rallied and defended her record so valorously that he retreated beaten after getting just one church "date."

She is known far and wide now as Greenville's "beauless" girl and, for some reason, takes a great deal of pride in her distinction. She regards it as a sort of world's championship, and it may be one at that. It is hardly probable there are many young women who have reached 25 without having a beau and who have done it deliberately. It isn't from force of circumstances or for lack of what Elinor Glyn calls "It" that Sue Isabel has remained without a boy friend. Not at all. Circumstances are favorable for a long string of them and a well-filled date book. She is a good-looking brunette, with very brown eyes and an olive complexion. Moreover, those best qualified to speak with authority testify that she has "It." Sue Isabel is beauless by deliberate choice: She has been that way ever since she was old enough to have a "puppy love" affair. And, besides going beauless to make herself different from other girls, she has gone to work and learned the New Testament by heart. She didn't have to do that, either.

LEARNING the New Testament was really the first project in her program of being different. It seems she has had a sort of world-record complex from an early age. Had she heard of channel swimming and marathon dancing first, she might have tried for laurels in one of those fields. But Bible reading was more in line with her heredity and environment and it seemed to her that memorizing the New Testament would be a signal accomplishment which would set her apart from others. So she set to her task and had memorized the whole Book of Matthew and 10 chapters of the Book of Mark before she learned with dismay that somebody else had done the same thing. She was only 16 then, and the disappointment was keen because world records are dear to the heart of the 16-year-old. But Sue Isabel was determined she still would do something nobody else had done.

Her next scheme was to set a record for speed in finishing the grades and high school in South Carolina. It might have been more profitable to see how much she could learn instead

Miss Sue Isabel Boggs.

The GIRL who NEVER HAD a BEAU

Sue Isabel Boggs Was a Small-Town Lass Who Wanted to Hang Up a Record—Now She's Done It.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

GREENVILLE, South Carolina.

POSSIBLY there were other ways in which she might have achieved her purpose of being "different," but Sue Isabel Boggs picked a sure one. When she set out to show her originality eight or nine years ago, she hit upon the inspiration of showing it by depriving all male admirers of her companionship. She is 25 now and so assiduously has she clung to her resolution that she hasn't had a beau yet. They say she weakened a little last summer when that New York playwright came down here, but she rallied and defended her record so valorously that he retreated beaten after getting just one church "date."

She is known far and wide now as Greenville's "beauless" girl and, for some reason, takes a great deal of pride in her distinction. She regards it as a sort of world's championship, and it may be one at that. It is hardly probable there are many young women who have reached 25 without having a beau and who have done it deliberately. It isn't from force of circumstances or for lack of what Elinor Glyn calls "It" that Sue Isabel has remained without a boy friend. Not at all. Circumstances are favorable for a long string of them and a well-filled date book. She is a good-looking brunette, with very brown eyes and an olive complexion. Moreover, those best qualified to speak with authority testify that she has "It." Sue Isabel is beauless by deliberate choice. She has been that way ever since she was old enough to have a "puppy love" affair. And, besides going beauless to make herself different from other girls, she has gone to work and learned the New Testament by heart. She didn't have to do that, either.

LEARNING the New Testament was really the first project in her program of being different. It seems she has had a sort of world-record complex from an early age. Had she heard of channel swimming and marathon dancing first, she might have tried for laurels in one of those fields. But Bible reading was more in line with her heredity and environment and it seemed to her that memorizing the New Testament would be a signal accomplishment which would set her apart from others. So she set to her task and had memorized the whole Book of Matthew and 10 chapters of the Book of Mark before she learned with dismay that somebody else had done the same thing. She was only 16 then, and the disappointment was keen because world records are dear to the heart of the 16-year-old. But Sue Isabel was determined she still would do something nobody else had done.

Her next scheme was to set a record for speed in finishing the grades and high school in South Carolina. It might have been more profitable to see how much she could learn instead of how quickly she could get through, but it seems she never thought of that. The other would look more like breaking a record, so she went after it. So vigorously did she attack the three r's that she finished the grades in 28 months. Then she launched into high school in high gear. But the fates again were against her.

She was getting well under way when the Boggs family was so sorely beset by financial troubles that Sue Isabel had to drop out and go to work to help support her nine younger brothers and sisters. Thus the school record vanished and the Boggs family moved from the country into Greenville, where all those of earning age found work in the Poe cotton mill. There Sue Isabel is still employed.

BARREN though it was of world records, the young lady's school career was not without its compensations. It contributed, in fact, to this new world record she now claims to have set, of going without beaux. In her haste to get through school she devoted so much time to study and so little to social affairs that she got the habit of side-stepping boy friends and romances. Eventually, what was more natural than that Miss Boggs should see the record possibilities afforded by going without a suitor? Thereupon, she set about diligently to guard the more or less meager record she had already established and to improve on it with each passing month.

Unfortunately, there are no statistics to show how persistently she was beleaguered by masculine attentions and how zealously she repelled them all during the ensuing years, but it is a matter solemnly chronicled in Greenville that in the spring of 1927, when she was 24 years of age, she had never had even one date. Wherefore, her renown as a man-hater had spread widely. She was pointed out as the girl whom no young man could take to the socials in the community hall, to picture shows, to dances or picnics.

Sue Isabel's cold shoulder eventually came to stir up a great deal of rivalry among the young sheiks. Indeed, it is said to have caused the spread of the gambling evil in this Christian city. Reckless and cocky youngsters up at the Y. M. C. A. would come right out and bet good currency that they had enough of "It" and a "line" heavy enough to "date" Miss Boggs, and even win her. But they all lost regularly, and it became an unpublished tradition in the community that the man who could interest the little Poe mill girl would be crowned the greatest sheik of them all. The crown, however, was not to be worn by local talent, as later events were to show.

It was not long until the newspapers heard about Miss Boggs and drew from her an account of her many months of loveless nights and dreamless days. Her picture was published, too, and the result was something appalling to a young woman who wanted to steer clear of men. Within two weeks she was literally swamped with letters and packages from almost every state in the Union. Later she even received some from foreign lands. Virtually all of these were from men—very conceited men, perhaps—who thought they might be able to do what nobody else had done, namely, interest Sue Isabel in a romance. Within the first month she got at least two dozen proposals of marriage with portraits attached and with autobiographical sketches of the hopefuls, testifying "how good I am." Some sent gifts— watches, pearls, bracelets and rings. Some of the letters came from curio seekers who wanted autographed pictures, from companies who wanted her to indorse their products, and from a few women who admired her beauless record. Miss Boggs read the letters carefully, disregarding those which contained proposals of marriage. To those who had sent gifts she wrote letters of thanks and started a friendly correspondence with several who had seemed to care more about a friendship than a romance.

Arthur Terrell.

FINALLY, one day, came a letter which had a certain intangible appeal. It was a short message, formally written, from Arthur Terrell of New York, a playwright of some accomplishment in the field of writing and producing plays for children. The letter was simply a note of introduction, with a request for further correspondence. The exchange of several letters followed and Miss Boggs became more interested in the playwright than she had ever been in any other. He wrote such nice letters and said things so smoothly, she explained.

It was in August, 1927, that this correspondence was begun. By the middle of September it had progressed so well that Terrell made so bold as to suggest that they get married. It was the first proposal that Sue Isabel took seriously. She thought the matter over and weighed marriage against the satisfaction of her record and the thrill of all this national advertising. She hated to give up her fun. She wasn't ready, but still she hated to throw away that proposal. Finally, she stalled for time, asking Terrell to allow her to defer action for a little while.

He agreed to that readily, but she deferred so long that he made a trip down here a few weeks later to see what the delay was all about. Incidentally, he made his proposal this time in person. Terrell spent a week in Greenville, and it was an awkward week for Sue Isabel. The business of entertaining a beau for the first time at 24 was not a little embarrassing, especially when it attracted so much attention from acquaintances. It was during that week that she had the date to go to church—her first date—and everybody turned around and stared at her with astonishment. A lot of them grinned broadly and some even snickered a little, she thought. It was a bit painful and she was glad when it was over. After that they didn't go out any more, but Terrell made several calls at her home and spent hours playing with her younger brothers and sisters and, incidentally, making some genuine friends. Again she sparred for time when the subject of marriage was broached, setting the date of her answer at Christmas time, and her admirer went home to await the decision.

Christmas time came and a third time she sparred, promising faithfully she would say yes or no definitely this summer. There the matter stands and Terrell is still waiting for a reply. What it will be is a question now causing a lot of speculation, and those boys at the Y. M. C. A. are gambling again. The rogues!

The other day the correspondent went down to the Boggs home and asked Sue Isabel right out if she loved Mr. Terrell. But she didn't give him much satisfaction. She was evasive. She admitted she liked the playwright, better perhaps than any man she had ever met, but as to this matter of love she wasn't so sure. She wasn't quite sure she knew what it was. She was also evasive about whether she would marry or keep on defending her record as the beauless girl of Greenville.

RIGHT now she is attending a business college at night, the idea being to make herself able to earn a good living in the event she decides to remain single and beauless. She says she thinks she would like to have a career, and one of her highest ambitions is to become a writer of poetry. She isn't hopeful that the business college training will fit her for poesy, but thinks it might help her get a better job, so she can complete her education elsewhere. Then, she believes, she will be ready to start writing. She has written a little verse already, but finds herself sorely handicapped by lack of education.

"No," she told the correspondent, "I have never suffered from loneliness and have never felt love-starved. I have always had plenty to occupy my time, and when I do have time for diversion there is always something available besides a date. I think it is wrong for a girl to use a man simply for a show and a meal ticket. If I do get married I won't have a lot of dates first. I'll simply get married and have it over with. Some people have got the impression that I have announced myself as beauless just to arouse sympathy and get myself some dates. That is all wrong. I'm not bragging, understand, but if I want a man I can find one without appealing to public sympathy."

WHILE most of her friends concede that Terrell has the inside track, even if she put him off three times, the letters from other hopeful suitors continue to pour in. She now has two bushel baskets heaped with letters and post cards from all parts of the world. Besides proposals, there are other letters of infinite variety.

Fully 25 women have written to ask if she will be kind enough to pass on to them the names and addresses of rejected suitors, and this she has done obligingly, on the condition that they keep secret the source of their information. On the other hand, a few men, having learned of the letters from the women, have asked for reverse information—for names and addresses of those women who want suitors. Thus it appears that Miss Sue Isabel Boggs is about to become a clearing house for Cupid.

Sue Isabel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. U. L. Boggs, have been too busy looking after a house full of children to take much of a hand in their eldest daughter's affairs. They are not much alarmed, however.

"Aw, she'll marry all right," her mother declares. "Wait till the right man comes along and I'm likely to have a love-at-first-sight wedding on hand."

But the daughter is not certain at all. She won her record through years of waiting and, despite the Terrell case, one somehow gets the impression that she is thinking more about world records just now than she is about matrimony.

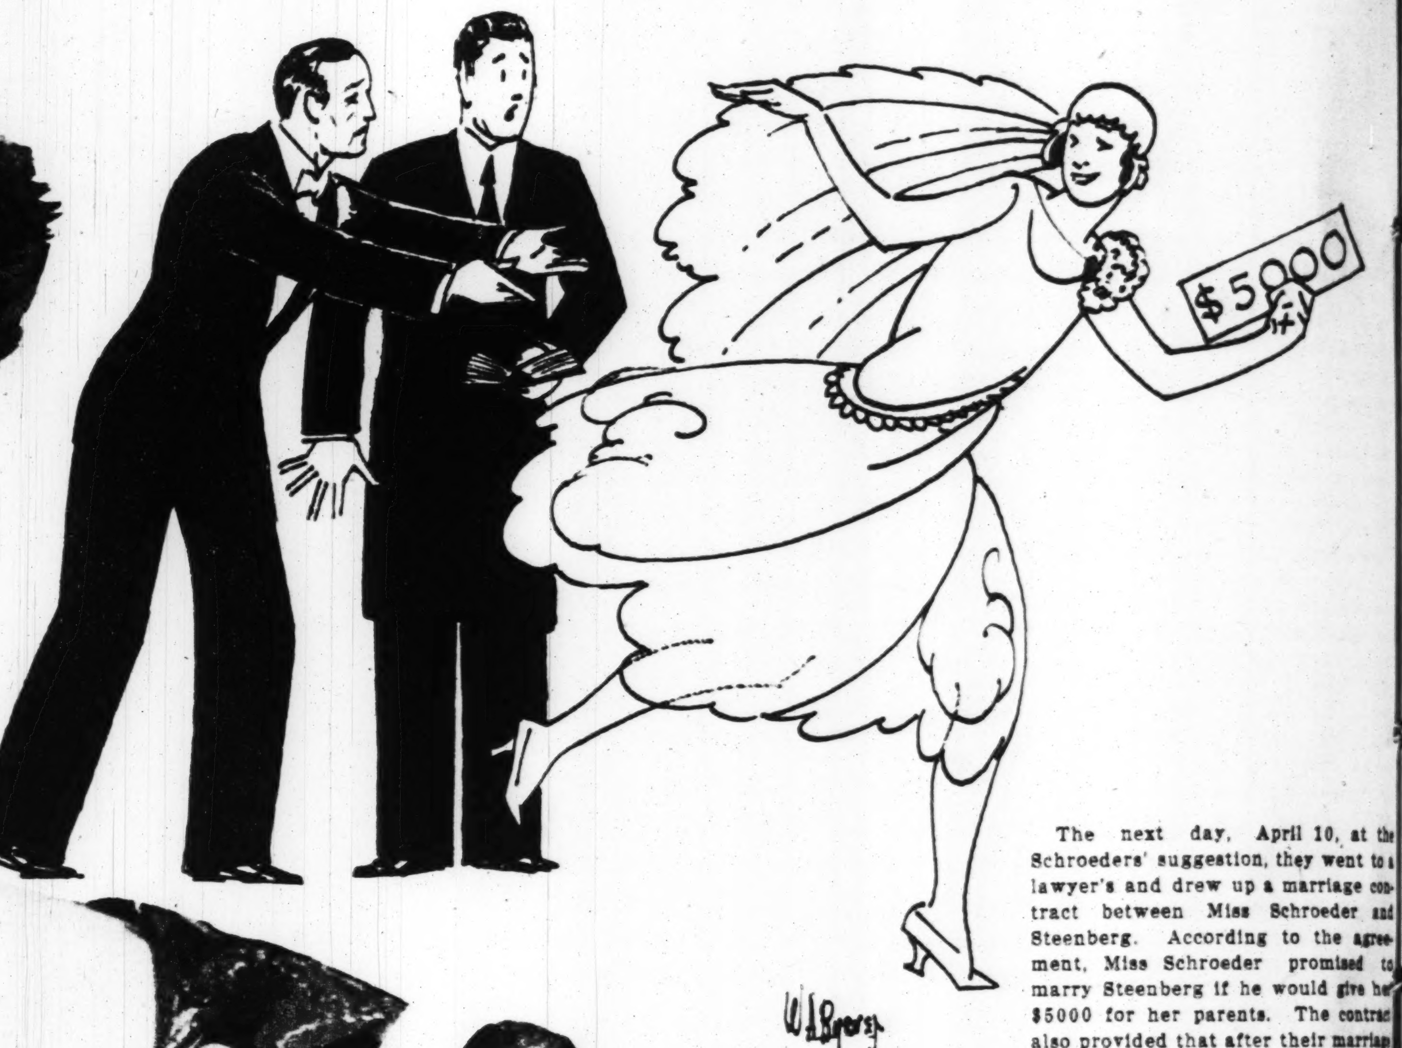
Helena Schroeder Got the Money, Then Quit Her Husband as Soon as the Ceremony Was Performed.

Helena Schroeder Steenberg.



Another view of Mrs. Steenberg.

By ARTHUR STRAWN

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

TRUMANSBURG, New York.

THE 1848 inhabitants of this village are enjoying the sunny days that mark summer in a country town, but there is one man in Trumansburg to whom the green trees and blossoming flower beds have brought no happiness and whose gloomy thoughts no sun can dissipate. That man is Charles Steenberg. He is a prosperous grain dealer, the possessor of a snug fortune and one of the town's leading citizens. Indeed, Steenberg's business success would ordinarily be a source of great satisfaction, for it has been accomplished in spite of a great natural handicap which would have discouraged most men from ever making the attempt. Steenberg is a cripple. He is 46 years old and all but the first few of those years have been burdened by disfigurement and deformity resulting from infantile paralysis.

The pleasures and social relations which occupy the ordinary man were denied him, and he made a virtue of this necessity by devoting all his energies to his business. For years he dreamed of marriage and a home of his own, but always his deformity reminded him of his isolation and prevented him from offering his pent-up affections to another. It was a hard fate, but he had reconciled himself to it.

AND then Helena Schroeder came into his life,, bringing all the promise of the companionship he had craved for years. For the first time in his life he was able to rejoice at the prospect of enjoying simple domestic happiness, such as other poorer but less unfortunate men took as their natural due. Helena would marry him, she said, if he would provide for her father and mother. Steenberg willingly agreed. A marriage contract was drawn up. Steenberg gave the girl $5000 to enable her parents to establish a business. The next day the marriage took place in the New York apartment of Helena Schroeder's parents. And no sooner was the ceremony over than Helena informed Steenberg that she would not accompany him to Trumansburg, and that she had fulfilled her part of the contract merely by going through the marriage ceremony. A lawyer is trying to regain Steenberg's $5000 for him, but it is not the loss of the money that the deformed grain dealer is mourning. He is gloomy not only because he considers himself the victim of a cruel fraud, but because he has seen his dream of domestic happiness shattered at the very moment of its apparent fulfillment.

It all began one day last January when Steenberg was reading a copy of the Syracuse Journal. Prominently displayed on the front page of the paper were three pictures of Helena Schroeder, above which was the caption: "You May Bid for Her in Matrimony Mart." Under the pictures were the following three paragraphs:

"HELENA has received several proposals. But she has not yet found the right man. She arrived in New York from Germany with her parents two years ago. At one time her father was an officer in the ex-Kaiser's bodyguard and later a prosperous Berlin hotel proprietor. Fortune has not been so kind since the family came to America.

"This pretty, blue-eyed girl, who is just 16, offers to marry the first good man who will promise to take care of her and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Schroeder, 130 East Ninety-third street, New York City. Both parents are ill.

"Helena, who has been employed as a maid in a Fifth avenue home, insists she must offer herself in matrimony as the only way out of family difficulties. Her mother is now in a hospital."

"After reading this article," says Steenberg, "I deliberated some time as to whether I should communicate with Miss Schroeder. You see, my nervous illness has affected my walking and has caused me serious facial disfigurement. For this reason and because I had felt that my illness might seriously affect my earning power, I had long ago made up my mind not to marry. But my determination was shaken when I read this article. I had built up a good business and was able to take care of a wife in spite of my illness. I have been making my home with my mother and a sister and brother, but the desire to have a wife and a home of my own was strong. And, besides, I felt a sort of natural sympathy for Helena and her parents, because they seemed to be strangers in the country and in trouble, and from my own sufferings and isolation I knew what that meant. Finally, after giving the matter two weeks of serious consideration, I wrote a letter to Helena on January 30."

In his letter Steenberg wrote that he had read about her in the newspapers, that he was financially able to support her parents, and that he was anxious to have her communicate with him to verify the statements in the newspaper article. He frankly told her that he was suffering from a severe physical ailment, but that his business gave him an annual income of $5000 to $8000, and that he had, in addition, property worth more than $50,000.

Four days later he received an answer to his letter. The letter was in marked contrast to his own. Steenberg, although without much formal education, is well-read and speaks and writes in an intelligent and straightforward manner. Miss Schroeder's reply was in broken English, due to the fact that English is still a more or less unfamiliar language to her. But, in spite of its grammatical faults, it expressed lofty sentiments and indicated to Steenberg that she was taking a serious and mature view of matrimony. The letter stated both her parents were ill and that they had sustained serious financial reverses.

"And that," she wrote, "is why I am looking for a good husband, what is a good elderly gentleman, who can support my parents and myself. I don't like a youngster. They have no life experience. They're looking around for a good time and don't care for my parents and myself."

And then she added a paragraph which convinced Steenberg that Helena Schroeder was just the kind of a girl who would be the companion of whom he had dreamed:

"I am very sorry that your health is not perfect, but I will take care with my whole heart for you. I make you a good home and will be a good wife to you."

A LENGTHY correspondence between them followed. In all his letters Steenberg emphasized his illness and described his deformity without any attempt to conceal a single particular, assuring her that if she could overlook his physical defects he would do everything in his power to make her happy. In her letters she protested that she would devotedly care for him, but she never failed to emphasize her desire for the support and maintenance of her parents.

In March, at Steenberg's request and expense, Miss Schroeder and her mother visited Steenberg and his family at their home in Trumansburg. They remained as guests for three days, and during that time it was agreed that Steenberg was to go to New York early in April and that, if satisfactory arrangements could be made for the support of her parents, she would then become his wife. In the meantime, Steenberg had agreed to buy a poultry farm for Helena's parents and to establish them in business at Trumansburg. A week after Helena and her mother returned to New York. Steenberg received the following letter from her father:

"I am happy for such a son-in-law like you and hope you are willing to make Helena happy for her whole life. She is a good-hearted, nice girl and never makes us worry. You can believe me, you are getting a good wife and companion. I am very glad to meet you in April, and for your promise to give us a home and business, my best thanks. We like the country and I understand something about a poultry farm. If you help me for a time I will soon be a good farmer and business man. I think we can speak about the marriage time and wedding when you come over here. You are welcome any time."

ON APRIL 7 Steenberg got in his car and drove to New York City, for in spite of his deformity he is able to drive his own automobile. The next morning he called at the Schroeders' apartment and discussed the arrangements that were to be made for Helena's parents. It seems that William Schroeder had changed his mind about going into the poultry-raising business, and Helena suggested that perhaps the best plan would be to leave her parents in New York and that Steenberg finance them in some business in the city.

"I did not incline to this proposal," says Steenberg, "because of the danger of severe financial loss on my part if the business didn't succeed. But at the suggestion and entreaty of Mr. Schroeder that he take his own chance at success and relieve me of further obligation after I had once equipped him for business, I decided that this would perhaps be the best plan after all. The rest of that day and the following day I spent in the company of the Schroeders, driving them about New York sightseeing. We got along together very nicely and we became quite friendly."

The next day, April 10, at the Schroeders' suggestion, they went to a lawyer's and drew up a marriage contract between Miss Schroeder and Steenberg. According to the agreement, Miss Schroeder promised to marry Steenberg if he would give her $5000 for her parents. The contract also provided that after their marriage Steenberg would transfer the title to his property and real estate holdings to the joint interest of his wife and himself, so that it would all go to her in the event of his death.

"I executed the five promissory notes," says Steenberg, "to the order of Helena Schroeder, the first for $3000, payable May 1, and four others, each for $500, payable on the first days of June, July, August and September. In my presence Miss Schroeder indorsed the notes and delivered them to her father. I then paid the attorney for drawing up the agreement and we left.

"The next day, April 11, we went to the city hall and got a marriage license, and at 5 o'clock that afternoon we were married in the Schroeders' apartment by the Rev. Arthur Kleps. Less than 10 minutes after we were pronounced man and wife, and before the Rev. Kleps had left the house, my wife came to me and told me that I would have to go to the hotel to stay for the night, as there was no room for me in the apartment. I asked her to accompany me and she refused. I then called the matter to the parson's attention and he tried to persuade her to accompany me, but she refused, saying she didn't know me well enough. Then she added that I was to return alone to Trumansburg.

"I THEN saw that I had been the victim of a fraud, and I was so overcome that I was speechless. Helena, seeing my emotion, remarked 'Oh, you don't trust me!' And I said 'Well, let's have trust on both sides. You give me the contract and the notes and I will go home. When you come to me I will give them back to you.'"

Helena and her parents both refused to agree to this and Steenberg was forced to leave the apartment, convinced, as he says, that it had never been their intention to allow Helena to become his wife in the true sense of the word, but had simply allowed Helena to go through the ceremony in order to get the money and to fulfill the letter of their agreement.

And from present indications Steenberg will not be able to regain his money. He is suing to recover the notes and to prevent payment on them on the ground that they were fraudulently obtained, but the law provides that even if such notes were obtained by fraud they must be paid if they have been transferred into the hands of a third party innocent of the fraud. The $3000 note was transferred before Steenberg had a chance to sue and he will have to pay it. He is now trying to prevent the transfer of the other notes for $2000, and he has started a suit to have the wedding annulled.

But even if he should recover all his money he will find that a poor satisfaction compared with the happiness of which he had dreamed, in vain.

HIS name glistens on the radiators of some 2,000,000 motor cars, but this man can scarcely afford street car fare.

He sits behind the information desk in a commercial trade school here and answers the questions of ambitious young men who want to become motor mechanics. At night he goes home to a little flat in a rather shabby neighborhood near the noisy center of the business district.

He is David Buick, inventor of the valve-in-head motor. At 73 he is an acknowledged failure, fighting off the actual threat of dependence on charity. But, as one of many ironies implied in his career, he clings tenaciously to those sterling business principles that he has always held. He still looks to the future. "Looking toward the future—that's success," David Buick says.

To Dave Buick—that is how he is known to those former associates of his, almost all of whom are now millionaires—and his son, Tom, who was also at one time connected with the Buick Motor Co., the story of how the Buicks happened to be where they are today instead of intrenched in the executive offices of a great corporation is one of long persecution and unfair treatment. Viewed impersonally, it is the story of the growth of a gigantic industry, a growth so swift and ruthless that it left in its wake the shattered vestiges of human hopes and human pride. The big fish swallowed the little fish and was in turn swallowed by a bigger fish, until only the great whale is left.

INVENTORS are known to have a poor show. The stock that Buick once held in the original Buick company would now be worth about $25,000,000 he estimates, and that of his son about $6,000,000. And as another irony his former associates, some of whom he helped to make millionaires, haven't even a job for him now. He has applied to most of them, he says.

Buick got his knowledge of gasoline motors, so he says, in the same factory in which Henry Ford got his start. They knew each other slightly. They were both intensely interested in that new-fangled contraption, the horseless buggy, which, at the opening of the present century, was just a good joke to all but a few cranks.

David Buick had sold his interest in a company that manufactured plumbing supplies because of his belief in the future of this crazy new machine. He had been successful in working out a formula for enameling tin bathtubs and he got about $100,000 for his interest from the "Bathtub Trust."

With this money in hand he started to work on gasoline motors. His laboratory was a barn back of the family residence. In the course of two or three years he had spent a considerable portion of this fund. It cost a great deal to experiment then, as, in fact, it does now. All parts had to be made by hand to order. But he had a motor that employed the valve-in-head principle and he had put it into a kind of buggy that would run. It was not the prevailing high-wheel model, built on the theory that you couldn't sell an automobile that didn't look a great deal like a buggy, but one with wheels about the size of those of the present motor car. A crude contraption, but it would run, and run better, the Buicks claimed, than the majority of cars then being made.

Capital was, of course, the next thing necessary if the car was to be manufactured and sold. The Buicks advertised in the newspapers of Detroit for investors. One of those to answer their ad was a carriage manufacturer and banker of Flint, Michigan. This man was not only conservative but skeptical as well concerning the strange new device.

He made a proposition. He said that if the car would run from Detroit to Flint, a distance of about 60 miles, he would consider investing some money in a company to manufacture it. That was farther, according to the story the Buicks now tell, than any car had ever run up to that time.

But He Can't Afford One Himself

The Spectacular Rise and the Tragic Decline of David Buick, Who Today Finds It Hard to Make Even a Living in Detroit.

DETROIT, Michigan.

HIS name glistens on the radiators of some 2,000,000 motor cars, but this man can scarcely afford street car fare.

He sits behind the information desk in a commercial trade school here and answers the questions of ambitious young men who want to become motor mechanics. At night he goes home to a little flat in a rather shabby neighborhood near the noisy center of the business district.

He is David Buick, inventor of the valve-in-head motor. At 73 he is an acknowledged failure, fighting off the actual threat of dependence on charity. But, as one of many ironies implied in his career, he clings tenaciously to those sterling business principles that he has always held. He still looks to the future. "Looking toward the future—that's success," David Buick says.

To Dave Buick—that is how he is known to those former associates of his, almost all of whom are now millionaires—and his son, Tom, who was also at one time connected with the Buick Motor Co., the story of how the Buicks happened to be where they are today instead of intrenched in the executive offices of a great corporation is one of long persecution and unfair treatment. Viewed impersonally, it is the story of the growth of a gigantic industry, a growth so swift and ruthless that it left in its wake the shattered vestiges of human hopes and human pride. The big fish swallowed the little fish and was in turn swallowed by a bigger fish, until only the great whale is left.

INVENTORS are known to have a poor show. The stock that Buick once held in the original Buick company would now be worth about $25,000,000 he estimates, and that of his son about $6,000,000. And as another irony his former associates, some of whom he helped to make millionaires, haven't even a job for him now. He has applied to most of them, he says.

Buick got his knowledge of gasoline motors, so he says, in the same factory in which Henry Ford got his start. They knew each other slightly. They were both intensely interested in that newfangled contraption, the horseless buggy, which, at the opening of the present century, was just a good joke to all but a few cranks.

David Buick had sold his interest in a company that manufactured plumbing supplies because of his belief in the future of this crazy new machine. He had been successful in working out a formula for enameling tin bathtubs and he got about $100,000 for his interest from the "Bathtub Trust."

With this money in hand he started to work on gasoline motors. His laboratory was a barn back of the family residence. In the course of two or three years he had spent a considerable portion of this fund. It cost a great deal to experiment then, as, in fact, it does now. All parts had to be made by hand to order. But he had a motor that employed the valve-in-head principle and he had put it into a kind of buggy that would run. It was not the prevailing high-wheel model, built on the theory that you couldn't sell an automobile that didn't look a great deal like a buggy, but one with wheels about the size of those of the present motor car. A crude contraption, but it would run, and run better, the Buicks claimed, than the majority of cars then being made.

Capital was, of course, the next thing necessary if the car was to be manufactured and sold. The Buicks advertised in the newspapers of Detroit for investors. One of those to answer their ad was a carriage manufacturer and banker of Flint, Michigan. This man was not only conservative but skeptical as well concerning the strange new device.

He made a proposition. He said that if the car would run from Detroit to Flint, a distance of about 60 miles, he would consider investing some money in a company to manufacture it. That was farther, according to the story the Buicks now tell, than any car had ever run up to that time.

It was a memorable day for the Buicks when they started on the trial trip in the wheezing, coughing, shaking machine that was called, more or less by courtesy, an automobile. And, of course, as all the wisecrackers of the time had been positive, the machine failed. It got only as far as Pontiac, which is now virtually a suburb of Detroit. There it broke down and it was necessary to resort to a team of horses and a dray to have the thing hauled back to the city.

BUT Dave Buick and his son were not daunted. They decided on another attempt, and this time Walter Marr, a mechanic, drove the car, accompanied by Tom Buick. On this second attempt the first Buick reached Flint successfully.

The banker-carriage maker agreed to invest $35,000 in the Buick Motor Company. Tom Buick took $10,000 in common stock and $800 in preferred stock and his father a considerably larger share, so that together they held what was practically a controlling interest in the new company. They were now ready to begin manufacture. But a great number of delays arose. The Buicks and their financial backer got into disputes over the policy of the company. They could not agree on any plan to promote sales. Meanwhile they were selling stationary engines to help keep costs down.

Other motor manufacturers were forging ahead during this time. The Oldsmobile, the car originated by R. E. Olds, was selling for $650. It was a single-cylinder car. The Cadillac, also a single-cylinder machine, was selling for $750; the Ford, with two cylinders, for $850. It was decided to price the Buick, with a two-cylinder valve-in-head motor, at $950.

The Buicks were convinced that their car had more power, in its price class, than any other, and they set out to prove it. They won their first victory in a general test of all makes of cars on a hill in New Jersey called "The Hill Climb to the Clouds." The Buick came off with most of the honors, and this started the orders.

Shortly after this another incident gave a great impetus to the firm. The representative of what was then the automobile trade journal visited the Buick plant at Flint, listened to their claims of what the car would do and scoffed. They took him out on the sandhills around the city and showed him. They showed him so thoroughly that he went back to his office and wrote a glowing account of the car. This was the decisive factor. The orders came in after that much faster than they could fill them.

The enterprise rapidly grew beyond the scope of the original capital, and it was found advisable to take in new financial blood. The banker who had made the original investment succeeded in interesting W. C. Durant, who has since played such an important part in the motor industry, in the enterprise. Durant was then president of the Durant-Dort Carriage Company, one of the largest carriage works in the world, located in Flint. Durant was skeptical concerning the motor car, but he was open to conviction. It was Tom Buick who convinced him in a series of demonstrations in the Buick car. Durant raised $1,200,000 and a new company was formed.

Shortly after this, Tom Buick left the organization to start a brass foundry, under an agreement to supply all the brass parts for the car. For a year things went very well and a considerable number of cars were manufactured and sold. The elder Buick acted in a general supervisory capacity over the plant, which had been considerably enlarged.

It was at the end of this year—1906—that there began the series of complex financial expansions that was ultimately to see the Buicks completely divorced from the company that bore their name. These had to do with the foreclosure of certain notes which the Buicks had given and, as well, certain charges which were brought against young Tom Buick—without justification, he now claims. They had to do with certain agreements, verbal and probably never officially recorded.

In a very short time Tom Buick had severed all connection with the company. He sold his stock for $5000 and left Flint. His father continued in a supervisory capacity until 1909. At that time a set of circumstances arose that made it necessary that he, too, leave the company. He also had parted with a portion of his stock, but he retained a considerable share of it. Under the terms by which he left, he now says, he was to receive his salary for life. Ill-health was one of the reasons that necessitated his leaving the company, and he went to Los Angeles, where he spent several years. His salary was paid, he states, until 1911. It was then discontinued and his every plea or appeal since has been either ignored or refused, he says.

FROM this time on the Buicks engaged in a series of ventures of one sort or another, in almost every one of which, they claim, an effort was made to prevent them from using their own name. It was natural that the company that was manufacturing cars under the name of Buick should want to protect the very valuable property that had been built up in the name itself, to say nothing of the great organization behind it. And it was just as natural that the Buicks should wish to use the name that had come to have a certain recognized value. It is true, too, that in one or two instances outsiders, implicated in their affairs, have exploited the name.

In Los Angeles Buick had a part in organizing the Buick Oil Company. It was planned to take oil from certain lands that had formerly belonged to the Government, but the company ran into difficulty in the form of long and costly litigation over the mineral rights. It was in financing this venture that he disposed of the greater part of the stock he owned in the Buick Automobile Company, at the current price, of course, far, far below what its value would be today, or, rather the value of its equivalent in General Motors stock. In the course of the promotion of this company the name was used extensively in ads that purported to give "Dave Buick's Own Story," and "Dave Buick's Man-to-Man Talks." Buick himself put an end to this when he secured the conviction of one of the promoters on a charge of using the mails to defraud. The company, of course, collapsed.

Tom Buick had a similar misadventure in a company which he organized as the Buick Auto Supply and Garage Company. Charges of using the mails to defraud were brought against him in a complaint filed with the Department of Justice, but were quickly dropped when he presented the facts in the case, he states in relating the story of how his father has come to a state of virtual poverty.

Still another venture was in connection with the Florida land boom. Dave Buick was made a partner in a company to sell homes and home sites. "When Better Homes Are Built, Buick Will Build Them," some of the advertisements read. This, of course, comes very close to the slogan used in advertising the Buick car, "When Better Cars Are Built, Buick Will Build Them." Action was taken by agents for the motor company to protect the trade slogan, in such a way, the Buicks claim, that many prospective purchasers were discouraged.

AT THE present time Dave Buick's hold on his very modest job at the Detroit School of Trades is precarious, due, the Buicks claim, to the same determined effort to prevent them from exploiting their own name. The Buick name was used in literature advertising the school and pressure was brought to bear, the Buicks claimed, by the Detroit Better Business Bureau, with the result that this policy had to be abandoned. He formerly held a directorial position in the school and was to have had a share in the profits from the increased business that, it was hoped, the use of his name would bring. Now he has been put on the information desk.

And yet, despite all this, he expresses an unshaken belief in his business philosophy. On the door of the private office he occupied up until very recently is a motto, "No Trials, No Triumphs."

"Success," he says, "is mostly hard work. It's work and it's stick-to-itiveness. You've got to keep it up all the time—can't ever look at the clock.

"I'm not worrying. The failure is the man who stays down when he falls—the man who sits and worries about what happened yesterday, instead of jumping up and figuring what he's going to do today and tomorrow. That's what success is—looking ahead to tomorrow and forgetting the past.

"I've been to practically every one of the friends of the old days—millionaires now, every one—and asked for a job, and none of them had anything for me. I'm not after charity or pity. I'm still strong and able. But, you know, it's kind of hard for a man of my age to be uncertain about the future. I've got to have a job."

He is a neat, dapper little man, with nothing of the failure in his appearance. What he would like to have would be a job in the experimental department of one of the big motor companies. He has undeniable mechanical and inventive skill. As a witness there is his most recent invention, the Buick Hi-Power Carburetor. This is being promoted as energetically by his son as though a half-dozen failures did not already lie behind him. He has just recently seen the end of a long series of lawsuits to prevent infringement on the patent rights, and his hopes are roseate, even though the invention itself is still the most important tangible asset. And as yet the right to use the Buick name in connection with the carburetor has not been challenged.

A Fellow Conspirator Tells How the Manifestoes, Which Prince Carol Hoped Would Rouse the Rumanian People to Revolt, Were Secretly Rushed From London to the Balkans.

Prince Carol of Rumania and his common-law wife, Mme. Lupescu.

King Michael of Rumania, on the right, at play with his cousin, Alexander, son of Prince Paul of Jugo-Slavia.

LONDON.

THE secret story behind Prince Carol's latest failure to regain the Rumanian throne, now occupied by his young son, has just been disclosed here. It is the story of a wild dash by plane, boat and train to distribute inflammatory manifestoes among the Rumanian peasants who had rallied to protest against the present rule of Premier Bratiano, a desperate endeavor made necessary after the British Government discovered Carol's original plan and interfered to prevent its being carried out.

Like other episodes in recent Rumanian history, it ranges all the way from opera bouffe, with bewhiskered bandits and monocled diplomats, to near tragedy, against a somewhat sinister background of tangled Balkan relations. The story is told by one of the participants in the plot, itself a hasty makeshift.

It ended, as everyone now knows, in ignominious failure, as even the stanchest of Carol's supporters had feared it would. Carol was expelled from England and the manifestoes, it is thought probable, have long since gone up in smoke.

Carol and his common-law wife, Madame Magda Lupescu, came to England ostensibly to visit their wealthy countryman, Count Jonescu. But it is now believed that the plot, based on information obtained in advance of the peasant uprising, was formulated before Carol ever left his Riviera villa.

Maurice Lewis, a young adventurer, and one of the three men who took part in the last-minute effort to carry the manifestoes into Rumania, tells his story in an article in a London newspaper:

"ON FRIDAY, May 4, I was approached by Mr. Dudley Heathcote, a publicist who has been conducting an active propaganda in Great Britain for a revision of the treaty of Trianon in the interest of Hungarians, who see numbers of their compatriots under Rumanian and Czecho-Slovakian rule," Lewis relates.

"He asked me if I would be prepared to accompany him to Rumania on a political mission of the highest importance. He urged that swift action was essential if his plan was to succeed, and he spoke of flying to Rumania at dawn on Sunday.

"A manifesto to the people of Rumania, which had been written by Prince Carol, was to be dropped over the great meetings of the Peasants' party, which were to be held at Alba Julia."

Carol was to have had the "copy" ready for the printers on Friday. But, pleasantly ensconced in Count Jonescu's country house in Surrey, the Prince procrastinated. And as a result the "copy" was not ready until noon on Saturday. Then began a wild dash around London to find a printer.

"This proved to be a more difficult task than was imagined," Lewis writes, "and it became necessary to co-opt the motor cars of the Prince's friend in the business of making adequate printing arrangements. Finally, a West End printer undertook to work all night in order to complete the job, for the manifesto, written in the Rumanian language, was slow work for an English compositor.

"Count Jonescu came to correct the proofs. He arrived in a large motor car, accompanied by a beautiful silver and fawn Alsatian dog, very neat and spruce and highly perfumed. A strange man, I concluded—big-headed, intellectual, ardent and apparently sincere; certainly a man of 'drive.'"

AS has since been disclosed, Count Jonescu was at one time a waiter in a very famous London cafe. He came to London in 1915, virtually penniless. He told the director of the cafe that he had great skill at making Rumanian coffee, somewhat similar to Turkish coffee. He was installed in the restaurant to make this kind of coffee for the patrons, with whom he soon became very popular. It was recognized that he had a certain mechanical genius, and later he became connected with a firm that manufactured motors. Still later he married a Belgian woman of great wealth.

"In the meantime," Lewis goes on, "two airplanes had been chartered from the Imperial Airways, but a second obstacle arose. This took the form of uneasiness on the part of the Imperial Airways as to the character of the cargo. Mr. Heathcote was given to understand in the first place that the Air Ministry had placed an embargo on the proposed flight, but a reassurance was given later to the effect that all was well and that the airplanes would be allowed to leave."

At midnight, however, the plan was finally checkmated. An order was issued by the Imperia. Airways definitely cancelling the flight. It looked for a time as though the whole thing would have to be abandoned.

"I had been introduced," Lewis writes, "to Captain Le Mesurier at the printer's. He possesses an exceedingly pleasant personality, cast in an unmistakable military mould. Six feet four in height, with a quick-moving mind and alert to all contingencies, Captain Le Mesurier appeared to be the ideal companion of adventure.

"We—Mr. Heathcote, Captain Le Mesurier and myself—went at once to an hotel. It was now past 2 o'clock on Sunday morning. Over a meal, new plans were formulated. Here Mr. Heathcote proved his adaptability and political experience.

[Punch (Copyright).]

FROM LONDON PUNCH—King Michael of Rumania: "We trust that our friendly relations with foreign Powers will not be compromised by poor dear papa's indiscretions."

"MR. HEATHCOTE is a remarkable man. He is built like a Rugby forward, nimble in movement, but heavy and benign of face. He speaks French like a Frenchman and Hungarian like a Magyar, is fluent in many other languages and knows every other capital of Europe as well as he knows Piccadilly circus.

"We knew that we were being watched and that our chances of getting the manifestoes out of the country were practically nil. It was now that Mr. Heathcote conceived the idea of a fourth man. We telephoned for a motor car and dashed to the outskirts of London in search of a man who would be prepared to pilot the manifestoes through the French customs.

"The fourth man appeared to have stepped out of a Wodehouse novel. Puckish of face and dressed in loose-fitting Harris tweeds, with an inoffensive air and a deferential chin, he agreed to join the party.

"Details were quickly settled. It was decided that we should make our way, individually, to the early morning boat train at Victoria Station, the fourth man collecting the manifestoes from the printer's, which were to be parceled and placed in two trunks. We took the precaution to carry one copy of the manifesto on our persons."

Maurice Lewis and his associates, Captain Le Meurier and Dudley Heathcote.

Likewise on the train and later on the boat to France an air of the greatest nonchalance was preserved. The four men did not speak to each other and, to all appearances, were separate and isolated individuals, en route to France. At luncheon on the boat Lewis observed Heathcote talking with a sandy-haired man who was, he afterwards learned, a Scotsman and a secret service agent for the Rumanian Government.

"At Calais," Lewis continues, "Mr. Heathcote, Captain Le Mesurier and myself met in the train bound for Brussels, where, at the Palace Hotel, it had been arranged that the fourth man, if successful, should join us. We went to the Brussels airdrome and arranged for a special airplane to be kept in readiness for us at Cologne to take us to Budapest. Returning to the Palace Hotel, we waited many hours for news of the fourth man.

"THERE was still another obstacle, and this a monetary one. A check which Mr. Heathcote carried for his expenses had to be cleared, and this the hotel manager could not do until he had been in telephonic communication with Count Jonescu."

At last all difficulties were ironed out, even to persuading the manager of Deutsche Lufthansa to prepare an air itinerary when it was learned that a plane would not be held at Cologne. The party took off at 9 a. m.

"The Rhine lay a silver ribbon beneath us," Lewis writes, "and we sped over the rich agricultural lands of Germany, which looked like a gayly checkered plain. Our first stop was at Furth, near Nuremberg, where another plane was waiting to take us to Vienna. We arrived in the Austrian capital after a somewhat stormy passage, in which the rocking of the airplane and the roar of the engine made conversation impossible. At Vienna another plane was in readiness to take us to our next stop—Budapest. Following the track of the Danube, the treeless plain of Hungary was soon in sight and, for myself, I confess to a quickening of pulse as the country of our objective drew nearer.

"The real adventure began with our arrival at Budapest. To begin with, the manifestoes had to be reprinted from the copy we had in our possession, and to this end we hired a motor car which took us to a Balkan State which harbors many enthusiastic supporters of Prince Carol.

"The manifestoes were quickly printed by Prince Carol's adherents. Two plans then presented themselves: (1) To smuggle the leaflets over the frontier, and (2) to distribute them over Rumania by means of airplane. Both plans were thoroughly examined, but both presented many weaknesses.

"Eventually a famous Balkan war ace volunteered for the extremely hazardous second plan. Rumania was under martial law; all the airdromes had been commandeered by the military authorities; no airplanes were allowed to leave or enter the country, and any that had attempted to do so would have been shot down.

"BUT the ace was not the type of man to be deterred by such restrictions. He outlined the plan for a night flight over Rumania—a swift dash and return before the Rumanian authorities could act. All was in readiness for the distribution of the manifestoes in this way when his Government stepped in and warned him of the consequences of his action. This would have been war—a Balkan war—with consequences involving perhaps the great European Powers.

"Thus another impasse was reached. And the first plan—the smuggling of the manifestoes over the border—was considered. There followed the most extraordinary series of meetings in which Mr. Heathcote has ever been engaged. Strange, bronzed men with long moustaches, looking out of place in urban attire, were present at several meetings arranged by Mr. Heathcote. They wandered about the corridors of the hotel, lost and awkward. They were, in fact, bandit chiefs.

"They agreed to undertake the distribution of the manifestoes over the frontier. Motor cars were obtained for them, packed with the incriminating leaflets. The plan included the purchase of pack mules, which would be loaded at the frontier and taken over the mountains by secret paths."

And that is the last the three conspirators ever heard or saw of the manifestoes. They may be in the hands of the peasants. But it is far more probable, according to Lewis, that they were burned by the bandits in some secret mountain fastness of Rumania.

"Only half the manifestoes, however, were disposed of by means of the bandits," Lewis adds. "The other half were retained by Mr. Heathcote in his bedroom in the hotel—a monstrous pile, stacked shoulder high.

"Even these silent witnesses of lost endeavor were not allowed to rest in peace. Mr. Heathcote was informed that a Government search was about to take place, so they were hurriedly removed to a safer lodgement."

To add a final and grotesquely ludicrous note to the whole affair, the conspirators received the following telegram from London from the mysterious gentleman in the Harris tweeds, who was to have smuggled the original manifestoes into France:

"Have arrived safely home with parcels. What shall I do with them?"

On his arrival in London, having left Heathcote and Le Mesurier in Budapest, Lewis found a telegram awaiting him:

"Scheme abandoned, owing to international complications."

TALES of REAL DOGS

Caesar, Hero of an Immortal Exploit.

By Albert Payson Terhune

THIS is the story of a wonderful exploit. It happened more than three centuries ago, but its fame has never died down in Europe. Its hero was a greyhound, Caesar by name. He was owned by Baron Kollikoffer, a Swiss nobleman of the sixteenth century.

Perhaps you have seen some of the greyhound races of late years. The dogs are trained to run on a regularly laid out racetrack, with judge's stand and grandstand and paddock and stables, and, in fact, every appurtenance of a regulation track for racehorses. But the greyhound track measures only a quarter-mile in length (440 yards), instead of being a mile track such as horses run on.

These dogs run not only "flat" races, but hurdle races as well. I have seen more than one of them get a spectacular and painful tumble when his foot struck the top of one of these high hurdles in a miscalculated jump. They learn to maneuver for "the pole," too, and for every other advantage of position, etc., as cleverly as would a human jockey. They are running in pursuit of an electrically operated stuffed rabbit.

I have seen a greyhound run around a circular quarter-mile track in precisely 25 seconds. That is at a rate of 1 minute and 40 seconds to the mile—not a bad rate of speed. Once in a while, of course, these dog races are enlivened by a very vehement fight, when one runner happens to jostle another; so they are made to wear muzzles.

I have dwelt at some length on these modern greyhound races, not only because I find them most interesting, but to compare them with the historic race run by Baron Kollikoffer's wonderful greyhound, Caesar, in 1582. Caesar, however, had a far stronger inducement for his race than a mere "electric rabbit."

AT THAT time Henry III was King of France. He was a weak and effeminate man, whose best trait seems to have been his love and understanding of dogs. Switzerland became embroiled in a diplomatic controversy with the French Government and, in the early summer of 1582, Kollikoffer was sent by the Swiss to the French King's court to smooth out the difficulty.

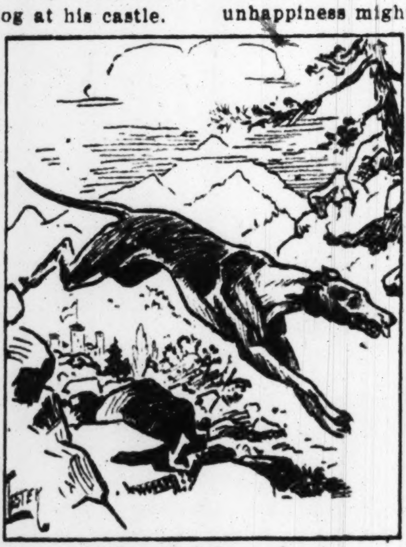
Kollikoffer loved and understood dogs quite as well as did King Henry III. That was one of the reasons he was chosen for so delicate a mission, since he and Henry had so strong a bond in common.

Caesar, a mighty greyhound, was Kollikoffer's favorite dog, and was utterly devoted to his master. The Baron did not dare take him along on his mission to France, lest enemies might poison him in order to impede the friendly negotiations between Kollikoffer and that country. So, reluctantly, he left the dog at his castle.

The Baron gave strict orders to his servants to guard Caesar's welfare in his absence, and told them to keep the dog shut up for a week after Kollikoffer's departure. He was afraid the greyhound might otherwise make some futile effort to follow his master and might thus get lost or stolen.

Caesar seemed to know some misfortune was at hand, for he pressed close to the Baron's side, as the latter was about to start on the journey, and had to be carried by force back to the kennel arranged for him. There the dog lay down and moaned and refused to touch food.

For three days he lay thus, moaning and whimpering all the time, neither eating nor sleeping. The servants feared he might grieve himself to death. They thought a part of Caesar's unhappiness might be due to his unaccustomed imprisonment. For, always, the hound had had full freedom until now.



Like a flash he sped over the mountain pass.

So after three days they let him out of the kennel. Instantly Caesar's manner changed. He frisked about like a happy pup, playing gayly and then begging for food. Nor did he make any attempt to hunt for his master. The hound was a good actor, as you shall see.

Food was brought to him. He ate heavily and greedily. He was laying up surplus strength for what he had planned to do. Presently he strolled lazily out through the castle gateway, loafing along aimlessly for a hundred yards or so, as if he had no special goal in view.

THEN with one wild bound he broke into a breakneck run. The servants shouted and whistled to him, and ran after him. He paid no heed to their calls. Body close to the earth and muscular legs flying, he continued to dash westward over the road his master's traveling coach had taken three days before.

Like a flash he sped along a mountain pass of the Alps, and so out of sight. Nor could the fleetest horses of his pursuers overtake him or even catch his trail. He was gone, presumably forever, and the servants dreaded the wrath of the Baron at their carelessness in allowing his beloved greyhound to become lost.

Baron Kollikoffer was closeted with King Henry, in earnest conference, in the King's private study at the Louvre, in Paris. There was a sound of turmoil and of scurrying in the guarded stone corridor outside. The heavy curtains of the study's doorway were pushed violently inward. A dog staggered into the room.

It was Caesar. He had made his way, by scent and by his own strange instinct, all the way from his Swiss home to Paris and into the Louvre, searching for his master. Up to the astonished Kollikoffer he reeled, and fell exhausted and panting at the Baron's feet. The valiant dog was all but dead with fatigue and wounds.

He had covered the distance of 300 miles (and a little more) in precisely 24 hours! In other words, for 24 hours he had run at an average of 12 1-2 miles an hour, including river swimming and mountain climbing and traversing the roughest roads.

No mere race on a smooth track was this, but an unbelievably toilsome gallop in which natural hurdles were many and difficult. More than 300 miles in one day of 24 hours! Do you wonder that all Europe rang with the grand dog's name and fame?

Not only were his feet in terrible condition, but wolves had slashed his fast-galloping body as he sped over the mountain passes. He did not long survive his mighty exertion, but died soon afterward at the feet of the master he had thrown away his life for.

The FEUD in HELL'S KITCHEN

— BY —

Octavus Roy Cohen

MR. GLORY LAWSON of Hell's Kitchen, New York, elevated himself to a sitting posture and glared peevishly at his friend.

"If you don't quit beatin' around the bush," he promised severely, "I'll pulverize you."

Eddie Grogan put out a restraining hand.

"Ain't you got even a lick of sense, Glory? Can't you tell when a feller is serious? An' I guess you ain't gonna pulverize nobody, let alone me."

"But listen"—Glory Lawson rose to his feet, better displaying the amazing purples and reds of his lounging robe—"you talk about me goin' to work. Work! Eddie, how do you expect me to listen patient?"

"I didn't say work," explained Mr. Grogan painstakingly. "I said I an' you was gonna take a job longshorin' at the Trans-Oceanic pier."

Glory shook his head. "What do I want to work as a longshoreman for," he queried, "if there ain't no stealin' to be done?"

"Oh, there's plenty reasons! There's a feller workin' on that particular job. Workin' as a watchman."

Glory's expression altered abruptly.

"Not Dave Kerry?" he inquired venomously.

Eddie nodded. "Him, an' no other. An' that ain't all." Already Glory was shedding the rainbow robe. "He's watchin' alone in hatch number two."

Glory Lawson whistled softly.

"When do we work?"

"Tomorrow. For one day only." Glory bustled about the room, assembling his clothes. "Dave Kerry watchin' alone in the hold! Of all the luck." Suddenly he paused. "Listen, Eddie! What you reckon Dave Kerry's widow would prefer—carnations or lilies?"

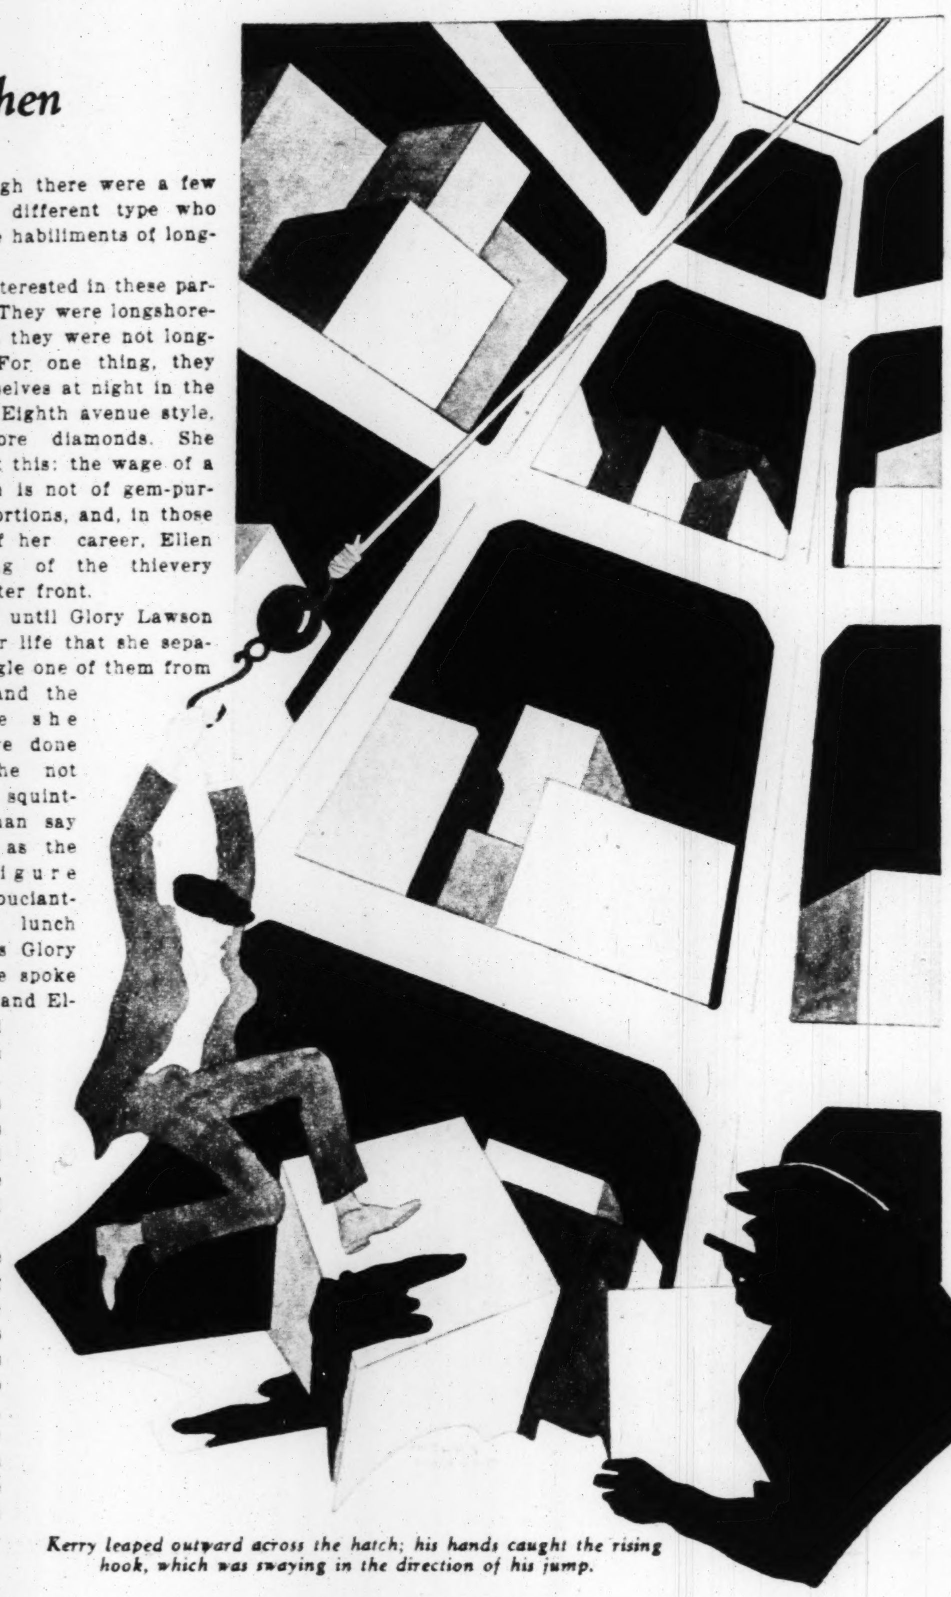
IT WAS neither chance nor the spirit of adventure that had brought Ellen Mabry to New York two years before. She was a small-town girl, delectably pretty and quite convinced that opportunities for advancement in her native city were decidedly less than nonexistent.

Her ignorance of New York was indicated by the fact that she accepted a position in the section of the city that bears the colorful title of Hell's Kitchen. It was not until several months had elapsed that Ellen learned that the section in which she worked as waitress at the Coffee Pot bore that sobriquet. The only impression made upon her during the first fortnight of work was that the Coffee Pot was by no means a first-class restaurant, and that the men who flocked in were inclined to be a trifle uncouth. They were short men, mostly, of bulging muscles and stodgy features, although there were a few of distinctly different type who also wore the habiliments of longshoremen.

She was interested in these particular men. They were longshoremen, and yet they were not longshoremen. For one thing, they garbed themselves at night in the very best of Eighth avenue style, and they wore diamonds. She puzzled about this: the wage of a longshoreman is not of gem-purchasing proportions, and, in those early days of her career, Ellen knew nothing of the thievery along the water front.

It was not until Glory Lawson came into her life that she separated any single one of them from the crowd, and the chances are she wouldn't have done that had she not heard one squint-eyed gentleman say to another, as the debonair figure strolled insouciantly into the lunch room, "That's Glory Lawson." He spoke with respect, and Ellen followed the direction of the gaze. Her eyes met Glory's squarely, and it was she who looked away.

Then he was leaning across the counter, his black eyes flaming into hers, a thin, sardonic smile on his lips: "Where you been all my life, sister?"



Kerry leaped outward across the hatch; his hands caught the rising hook, which was swaying in the direction of his jump.

"Just waiting," she countered. "Just waiting for you to show up."

"Well, here I am." He nodded toward the young gentleman beside him, a man considerably shorter, but decidedly heavier: "I wantcha to meet my friend, Mr. Grogan, Eddie Grogan. Eddie, shake hands with Miss——— Say, what did you say your name was?"

"I didn't say."

And from that hour Mr. Lawson did Miss Mabry the honor of paying court to her.

She was neither flattered nor complaisant. Glory was in a state of utter bewilderment. Here was an experience new to him: a girl—not so durned awfully pretty, although kinda sweet-lookin'—had repulsed his advances.

FIGHTING and women are the only two things of importance in a gangster's life. And now Glory felt that he was to lose a considerable prestige by this rebuff at the hands of Ellen Mabry. It was unthinkable! For three days he forbore to visit the little lunchroom; and, in that time, something happened. It came to his ears through Eddie Grogan.

"Why ain'tcha been down to the Coffee Pot, Glory?"

Glory grunted.

"Well — I was kinda thinkin' that, if you was really strong for that frail, you'd better start hangin' around again."

"Why?"

"H-mm . . . tell the truth, Glory, she seems to have took up with another feller."

Mr. Lawson's face flushed. This was indeed adding insult to injury. "You don't mean it?"

"Yeh. An' that ain't all, either. He's a watchman!"

Glory Lawson flopped into a chair. "A watchman?" he breathed unbelievingly.

"Uh-huh. A Chelsea Protective man, named Kerry."

Glory was incensed. It struck him as highly indecent that Ellen should have selected a watchman to indicate to him that she didn't care. "A watchman!" he muttered. "Now, can you beat it?"

Glory was in the Coffee Pot shortly before noon and sauntered back to the counter, where Ellen Mabry awaited him.

"'Lo sister."

"Good morning, Mr. Lawson."

"Aw, can that formal stuff! I ain't Mister to you."

"Ain't you, though. I thought I said that I didn't want to have nothin' more to do with you."

Then the door was flung wide open and the hungry longshoremen stormed in. First came the men Ellen knew should not be longshoremen; young fellows who greeted Glory respectfully, and whom he knew. Then the others—men whose interest in cargo handling was professionally limited to the eighty cents per hour they received. They were unpicturesque.

FOR 10 minutes there was a wild surging around the counter, and the waitresses worked swiftly and deftly. During this time, both Ellen and Glory were conscious of the fact that several of the Gopher Gang were more than casually interested in the return of Glory Lawson to the hunt. Then the door opened, and Dave Kerry entered.

Dave Kerry was a watchman. Glory, appraising him swiftly, wondered why the man was contented with the four dollars a day that the agency paid him. Dave didn't look like a four-dollar-a-day man; he was tall and lithe and quietly impressive. Glory Lawson's verdict was instant:

"Crook!" he catalogued Kerry. "If he wasn't in on some of the dock graft, he'd be workin' somewheres else for more than four dollars a day."

But Kerry was not a crook. He was an easy-going sort of person who enjoyed this type of work, because it was a care-free, rather indolent existence.

Kerry moved across the lunchroom toward Ellen Mabry. Her eyes smiled a greeting and little spots of color flamed in her cheeks. Glory saw—and understood.

Dave Kerry paused before the counter, and he, too, smiled.

"Howdy, Miss Mabry."

"Morning, Mr. Kerry. What'll you have today?"

"Coffee, please, ma'am, and three of them doughnuts."

SHE turned to serve him, but not before she glimpsed the flushed face of Glory Lawson. There was an expectant hush as Glory Lawson deliberately edged closer. It was obvious that Dave Kerry suspected nothing, and so, when Glory brushed his elbow, Kerry turned with a casual, "Excuse me."

"Nothin' to excuse you for," growled Glory. "I done that myself."

"Oh!" Kerry was puzzled. "That's all right."

"You bet your last nickel it's all right. Anything I do is all right."

It dawned upon Dave Kerry that this man was driving at something. His eyes focused upon the other man speculatively.

He knew just what Glory Lawson was; he had not been blind during his two years as watchman. He knew also that Glory must be a gangster of parts, for he saw now that the other Gophers were watching with respectful interest. Kerry spoke frostily.

"Listen here," he counseled; "I wouldn't go pickin' no trouble, if I was you."

"No? And who's gonna stop me?"

Ellen returned. Her eyes widened apprehensively as she sensed the hostility between her two acquaintances.

"Here y'are, Mr. Kerry. Here's your coffee an' doughnuts."

"Thanks, Miss Mabry." He started to turn away, but the face of Glory Lawson was insinuated before him.

"Watchman, ain't you?"

"Uh-huh."

"Well, maybe that's why I don't like you. I ain't got no use for watchmen."

A smile flickered across Dave Kerry's lips.

"Thieves seldom have," he replied easily.

For an instant they faced each other. Dave heard the girl gasp. There was a general shuffle of feet above the clatter of crockery; and Kerry stood, expectantly, his eyes unblinking.

It was Glory Lawson who moved away. He laughed loudly and shrugged. Kerry gave himself over to his lunch.

Of course, it was quite apparent to Glory that Ellen Mabry was using Dave Kerry to extract from him a proposal of marriage. It was impossible that she should care for Dave, while he, Glory, remained a suitor. And so, more to prove to the gang that he was irresistible, he resolved that he would crush the affair with a single gesture—an offer of marriage.

He was doused with a shower of icy laughter.

"Listen, big boy—who are you that I should get excited because you're willing to marry me?"

GLORY departed. His pride had received a crushing blow. Why, it was absurd enough that he should have deigned to fall for a skirt; but that she should have intrigued him into a proposal of marriage and then—of all things!—refused him! . . . "Ow! What'll the boys say?"

The boys said a great deal, but, fortunately for themselves, did not say it where Glory Lawson could hear. It was amazing how quickly certain members of the Gopher Gang learned that Ellen Mabry was engaged to Dave Kerry.

Glory heard the news from Ellen herself. She told him gently, fearing to hurt his feelings.

"I'll get that guy!" Glory threatened. "I'll get him, if I go to the chair for it."

And, even though Ellen laughed bravely into his eyes and warned him that Dave Kerry was capable of taking care of himself, she became afraid; and so, when she and Dave married, a week later, her first act of wifehood was to make him promise he would abandon work on the piers.

And so Dave promised, and for nearly two years the water-front knew him not. The day he went to work with a big warehouse concern Ellen breathed more easily. She had learned swiftly during her tenure of office as waitress in the Coffee Pot, and she knew what the end would have been; a dark corner, a massing of Gophers, the bums' rush—perhaps even a leaden pellet from an automatic. It was better that Dave should work elsewhere.

Things went fairly well with them for a time. But Dave was an easy-going sort, and not overly fond of taking orders from bosses who did not always choose their language with scrupulous care. One day there was a fight, and Dave was jobless. Other jobs were found with difficulty, and they did not prove permanent.

Then he announced that he was going back to the Chelsea Protective. Ellen was frightened; but not as much as she would have been two years before. The Coffee Pot seemed far distant, and Glory Lawson must have forgotten.

So Dave went back to the water-front. For a long time nothing happened.

"You see, Ellen," he told her a month later, "everything's all right. I never have no real trouble."

"Just the same," she said, "I wisht they'd let you carry a gun."

"Well, they won't. So far's I know, there ain't but three piers on the West Side where they let the watchman tote gats. We don't really need guns. Maybe it's safer not to have 'em."

AND that was that. Dave worked faithfully, with the bait of becoming a gateman before his eyes. But even at that, he should not have volunteered to watch alone in the hold of the "Regal." It is customary to send two watchmen below decks in each hatchway. But Dave was pressed for cash, and when he volunteered to handle the job alone, Old Man Vann assented. He raised Dave's pay a dollar a day for the job and wished him luck. It meant nothing to Mr. Vann that the "Regal" was docked in the Hell's Kitchen district.

The "Regal" started taking cargo Tuesday. On Tuesday afternoon a certain Mr. Cockeye MacShane informed Mr. Eddie Grogan that Dave Kerry was watching alone below decks at hatch number two.

Eddie substantiated Cockeye's tidings and carried them to Glory Lawson. That afternoon Mr. Lawson was busy. For one thing, he ordered Mr. Red Gissing to be at the Trans-Oceanic pier at seven o'clock the following morning. Identical orders were issued to Messrs. Tony Canzano and Jim Hennessy.

Glory's next step was to visit a sharp-nosed gentleman of easy conscience.

"You're an assistant boss stevedore over at the Trans-Oceanic now, ain't you?"

"Yeh."

"An' you're runnin' the shape-up every morning, ain't you?"

"Uh-huh."

"Good." Glory shoved a bill into the other's hand. "That's extra. What I'm givin' you is orders. Tomorrow morning you pick me for loading below decks at hatch number two. You used three men down there today. All right; the other two will be Eddie Grogan an' Jim Hennessy. Red Gissing is to handle the winch. Tony Canzano is to get the job of gang boss. Got that?"

"I got it. . . . Say, listen, you ain't plannin' no haul, are you?"

"No. If we was, we'd cut you in on it."

DAVE KERRY reached the Trans-Oceanic pier at 15 minutes before 7 o'clock the next morning, located hatch number two, and clambered down the ladder—down three decks. On the deck immediately above were a few scattered cases; but the real task of loading was being conducted from the lowest deck upward.

Dave heard someone come down the ladder of the hatch; but it was not until he looked into the smiling eyes of Glory Lawson that he suspected anything unusual.

A moment later Eddie Grogan appeared. Hennessy was next. They did not glance in Kerry's direction; but the watchman was not fooled. For the first time he began to believe that he had been too hasty in volunteering to watch below decks alone.

The hold was very much of a trap. The big bulkheads for'ard and aft contained doors; but these had been securely blocked by heavy cargo the previous day. The single mode of exit was up the ladder to the deck, and Dave knew better than to attempt that.

He knew perfectly well what the presence of these particular gangsters portended. They had no intention of permitting him to leave the hold of the "Regal." He noticed that they had brought their lunches, just as he himself had done. No shadow of an excuse then to clamber out at noon.

And they were armed, and he was not. Worse than that, they knew he was unarmed.

Loading started in hatch number two. There was a shout from the gang boss on deck as the longshoremen on the pier slung a draft on the heavy iron hook. Then a snorting of the winches on deck, a shrieking of cable, and the big sling with its load of cargo was lifted from the pier, and suspended over the twelve-foot hatch. At another signal it was lowered three decks, to where Glory Lawson and his henchmen waited.

THEY were skilled workers. The giant hook dropped gently, so expertly that it unhooked itself and swung idly back and forth in the middle of the hatchway. The men stepped forward and removed the cases of cargo from the sling. Then the signal was given the gang boss, and the hook and sling returned through the hatchway to the pier, while Glory and his men busied themselves placing the cargo.

The morning dragged away. Noon—and an hour of absolute quiet. Once, shortly after work had started again, Kerry moved to the very edge of the deck, where it terminated at the hatch-opening. He wanted to see what the others would do: whether they would construe this move as an attempt to escape. Glory left his work and moved forward; and, at that instant, there was a shrieking of the winch, a singing of steel cable, and the massive iron hook came crashing into the hold, missing Kerry's head by inches.

The watchman leaped back. He knew definitely now that the men above were in on the plot. The hook had been sent to crush him—and then there would have been the usual alibi: faulty winch—accident.

Afternoon wore slowly away. Tension was growing; there were frequent whispered conferences among the Gophers, all of which Dave Kerry watched calmly, but with inward trepidation.

This much Dave Kerry knew: even to the length of committing cold murder, they had no slightest intention of letting him escape. He fancied he knew what they would do. Corner him, provoke him to physical combat, and then pump a bullet into his body.

The cargo on that particular deck had not been expertly loaded. A couple of dozen cases had been dumped near where Kerry was

Oily Faces Quickly Corrected

Doctors say oily skin is a sign of seborrhea, which in time covers the face with coarse pores like the skin of a lemon. But a sure quick way has now been found to banish this horrid enemy of beauty.

For a long time beauty specialists have known a perfect treatment for oily skin—a marvelous powdered astringent for reducing the pores. And, to simplify the treatment, many chemists tried to blend that beautifying astringent with face powder. They all failed to find out how to do it until the secret was at last discovered by the specialist who makes La-May Face Powder.

So, if you are getting horrid oily skin let La-May restore it to normal. Or, if you find ugly enlarged pores on your cheeks, chin and nose, let La-May refine your skin and keep it fine.

La-May (French, Poudre L'Ame) is in the stores everywhere; in all shades in two sizes. You will find it goes on smoother, stays on longer and looks better than any other.

CAUTION: Ordinary face powders are not good for oily skin; they contain zinc stearate, which makes them laxadermic (skin relaxing)—the reverse of astringent. They open the pores, so that the more you powder the more you relax the skin; you encourage oily skin and coarse pores. No wonder millions of women are changing to La-May, even in Paris La-May is called the most wonderful face powder known to science. Save this notice.

The Feud in Hell's Kitchen

anding, waiting to be trimmed in ith the other cargo. Eddie Gro- n, at a signal from Glory, oved toward the watchman.

"Well," he inquired, "don't you e it?"

Kerry arched his eyebrows. "I n't got a thing to do with cargoimming."

Grogan did not notice that, as erry spoke, he moved around so at the longshoreman stood beeen him and a blind passage bend the big cases.

"You been lookin' kind of nny."

"I never did think I was goodokin'."

Grogan released a stream of viperation. Kerry grinned. Gosh!" he commented. "I ouldn't say that sort of thing out anybody."

And then something happened Mr. Eddie Grogan.

DAVE KERRY struck. The blow came with such swiftness that the two men tching from across the hatch d not even see it. They eard the impact of fist against esh, a startled grunt, and saw r. Grogan fall flat behind the ulwark of cargo. As Grogan fell, erry leaped to safety behind the acking cases. Two shots buried hemselves in the cargo. Kerry eard a shout and cursings.

He had negotiated a successful oup by taking the offensive. He ent over the form of the unconcious Eddie Grogan and relieved at gentleman of a vicious little 5-20 automatic. Almost at the me instant Mr. Hennessy hurled imself recklessly around the corer of the dark alley. The bark his gun was answered by a apping spit from the weapon in erry's hand.

There was a shrill scream, the ound of a revolver skimming cross the deck, and Mr. Hennessy ollapsed into a state of complete selessness.

Kerry worked his way along the oor. He was just in time to see ory Lawson, automatic in hand, isappearing behind a pile of cargo on the opposite side of the hatchway. Kerry's pistol spat once, and an answering bullet splintered the wood over his head. For a few moments he sat there; then he fired again—at nothing in particular. Immediately he ducked back to Eddie Grogan. That shot had been a ruse; he wanted to assure himself that Glory Lawson would remain under cover until he should have had time to tie Mr. Grogan with some rope he had cut from a bale of cargo. That attended to, he resumed his vigil.

AND then started the battle. Once he heard a scraping along the top of some crates piled against the side of the ship. He crawled to meet it, and, in the blackness, he and Lawson exchanged shots. Another time Lawson tried to shift position to where he might command the alley in which Kerry was sheltered. Two bullets from the watchman's automatic sent him scurrying back to the other side of the hatch.

Kerry moved some of the cargo and hid behind it. From that vantage point he essayed one more shot when Lawson exposed himself for a moment. He missed, and Glory's answering crack came perilously close. And then Dave Kerry realized that he had exhausted the last cartridge in his clip.

There was only one thing for him to do: to remain under cover, hoping that Lawson did not know he was bereft of ammunition, and to wait for that gentleman to attack.

Kerry shifted slightly. Working with painstaking slowness, he managed to see between two packing cases, and as he watched he became more and more certain that Tony Canzano, the gang boss, had heard, for he could see that a great display of loading cargo was still being made. Three times he saw the slender steel cable drop into the hold with drafts, saw the cable sway limply as the gang boss manipulated it to release the hook, then saw it shoot upward again.

Kerry was thinking with lightning swiftness. He was trapped and knew it. The bulkhead back of him contained a steel door, but that door was blocked by cargo. And he knew that, even if he could move the cargo where he stood, he would run into a solid wall of cargo on the other side of the door. It was a pity, he reflected, that he didn't have the room that was afforded by the deck above, where there was, as yet, virtually no cargo.

Once again a draft of freight clattered into the hold; once again the gang boss shook the big hook loose from the sling and signaled it up. An idea came to the trapped watchman: Suppose he should make a sudden dash as the cable started upward and swing onto the hook?

HE DISCARDED the idea almost as soon as it came to him. "Just two things would happen," he reflected; "and either of them would kill me." He knew that, the moment the gang boss saw him swinging on the hook, something would go wrong with the winch, and he would be dropped unceremoniously back into the hold. Or, failing that, Glory Lawson would step from behind his barricade and shoot him as he swayed helplessly on the cable in the middle of the 12-foot hatch.

Kerry was nervous. If only he had another bullet in his gun and could trick Lawson into the open! But that was impossible. And 5 o'clock was approaching. That might mean that Glory's men from above would descend into the hold to complete the job. They could do it then, without attracting attention. He whistled softly.

"I've got to do something. But what?"

And then an idea came to him: a plan that held possibilities and was fraught with danger. The deck above was clear. If he could make that, it would be a simple matter to walk for'ard to hatch number one through the bulkhead door, and thence up the ladder and into the open air, where he knew not even Glory Lawson would dare to shoot him down.

The cable snaked down into the hatchway once more, bearing its draft of cargo. The freight flumped in a heap on Kerry's side of the hatch. He saw the cable grow slack and then wiggle excitedly, proof that the gang boss was trying to loosen the hook from the sling. And then he saw the cable sway idly across the hatchway and swing leisurely back in a graceful arc.

Dave Kerry acted. Once again he banked on the element of surprise in his attack.

He leaped from his place of concealment. There was the bark of Lawson's gun, and a bullet missed Kerry's head by inches. At the same instant the cable shot upward.

The muscles of Kerry's legs responded like steel springs. He leaped outward across the hatch; his hands caught the rising hook, which was swaying in the direction of his jump.

THEN there was a shout from above, and, at that moment, Kerry released his grasp of the hook and flung himself forward. His hands clutched the deck above. With amazing speed he clambered to safety on that deck, directly over Glory Lawson's head—and he heard the vicious spank of the hook as it dropped into the hatch again.

Glory Lawson had fired his first shot mechanically as Kerry made his break for safety. He had been expecting some such move. He cursed as he saw that his bullet had missed, and, as the watchman disappeared up the hatch, Glory leaped from his place of concealment, gun in hand. One good shot at the man on the cable. . . .

He reached the edge of the deck. At that moment the cable and hook clattered at his feet. But there was no sign of Dave Kerry. Glory looked up. . . .

Kerry was crouched, waiting. He peered down from his vantage point on the deck above and, as Glory appeared, the watchman carefully dropped a case of canned goods on that person's head. Save for a surprised grunt, Glory Lawson did not utter a sound. He pitched forward and lay sprawled at the bottom of the hold.

Kerry satisfied himself that Lawson was not shamming. Then he turned and walked swiftly for'ard. The bulkhead door was open and he made his way to hatch number one. He mounted the ladder and emerged on the main deck.

THE ship still buzzed with activity; but at hatch number two all was still. As Kerry moved toward that hatch, he saw that the gang boss and his winchman were staring down into the hold. The watchman touched Canzano on the arm and that worthy whirled, his eyes popping with amazement as he recognized Dave. There was a grim smile on Kerry's lips and he spoke with honeyed softness.

"Listen here, Tony," he counseled significantly, "I'd sort of investigate, if I was you. I've got a hunch that something has gone wrong down yonder."

Cheated Death by a Split Second

ot that I was imbued with the pirit of religion, but because I as paid for having a good bass oice. Secretly I laughed at the reacher, who became so fervent hen he prayed and so eloquent hen he preached.

"Now, as I looked back, I began o realize that that preacher was dead earnest. Perhaps there as something to this religion, fter all.

I SAT and thought for a time. Then I asked for a Bible. It was brought. hrough the night I read and rayed, and when daylight stole hrough the screen mesh of the eath chamber I lay down on the iserable mattress and slept.

"That day I read the Bible and ayed alternately. I tried not to ink of what was awaiting me on e following morning, and that ight I slept but little.

"The next morning I was visited a Catholic priest. He solaced e, bade me bear up, and we nelt in prayer. After he left I lt better, but was extremely ervous. I ate but little breakst. The time was rapidly aproaching. My very soul cried out ainst the State, the prosecutors my case and those officials who ould soon come to escort me to y death.

"I had been accused of killing y wife with a rifle. Then my ttle daughter, in her lisping oice, told the Judge and the jury t I had carried my wife's body to another room, that she had eard me using a saw. On this idence I was accused of cutting up my wife's body and disposing of it piece by piece.

"The hands of the big clock in the death chamber corridor pointed to 9:45. Only 15 minutes to live! God, how could I stand it! My whole body shook as with ague. I almost collapsed, and only by sheer will power was I able to stand on my feet.

"Ten o'clock. At the last stroke of the hour there was the sound of a key being inserted in a lock. I heard a bolt shot back. Four husky guards, accompanied by the Warden, came to my cell. The Warden read the death commitment to me.

"Then the guards seized me, none too gently. They strapped my arms to my sides. It was the beginning of the end. I made no comment, no outcry, even when I was seized and roughly hurried to my death.

"THE death march began. A walk of about 35 feet, and we entered the gallows room, five steps away from the stairs to the trap. My soul cried out as I noted that the room was crowded with men who had come to see me drop through the gallows trap, there to dangle in my death throes.

"We began the march up the stairs to the trap. There were the steps—one, two, three, four, five—I counted them as we ascended—13! They surely were unlucky for me.

"At the top of the steps I glanced up in horror at the noose awaiting my neck. In an instant I was standing directly underneath it. A guard dropped it over my head. Then he drew it up so tightly that I almost strangled. Another guard pulled a strap tightly about my ankles. My view of those morbid spectators was suddenly shut out as a hood was pulled over my face.

"In the few seconds in which the noose was being adjusted, and the other preparations made, a million thoughts surged through my brain. Event after event in my young life and later years passed in review. But the last thing I remembered, if you can believe it, brought a smile to my lips beneath the black hood.

"I had suddenly recalled a day, possibly 35 years before, when I was a youngster. I had attempted to climb over a high picket fence to purloin some apples. As I dropped to the opposite side, the seat of my pants caught on one of the pickets and I was impaled there. I screamed, I kicked. I tried to tear out the seat of my pants in order to get free. It was no use, for mother had made them of good, strong corduroy. For more than an hour I screamed and kicked, and was finally released by the owner of the apple orchard, who gave me a sound spanking. Then I dashed home to mother.

"'God! Why don't those killers hurry?' I thought. Then I felt a hand adjusting the noose again. This was followed almost immediately by the ringing of a bell and a shrill whistle. It was the signal, I thought, and promptly lost consciousness.

"WHEN I came to, I was on a hospital cot. It took me some time to realize that I was not dead. Then the Warden came. He told me I had been granted an indefinite stay of execution.

"Weeks went by. I regained my strength and was doing my daily task in the jute mill, when one day I was called to the office of the Warden. The attorney was there with a copy of a confession from my wife, and, glory be! he also had a document bearing the great seal of California, which proved to be an unconditional pardon.

"Next day I left the prison and went back to my home, where I was given a royal reception by the very ones who had shunned me as the perpetrator of a monstrous crime.

"See that?" said Martin, pointing to his snow-white hair. "See that? When I mounted the scaffold my hair was jet black. When I looked in a mirror a few days after my experience it was white as you see it now."

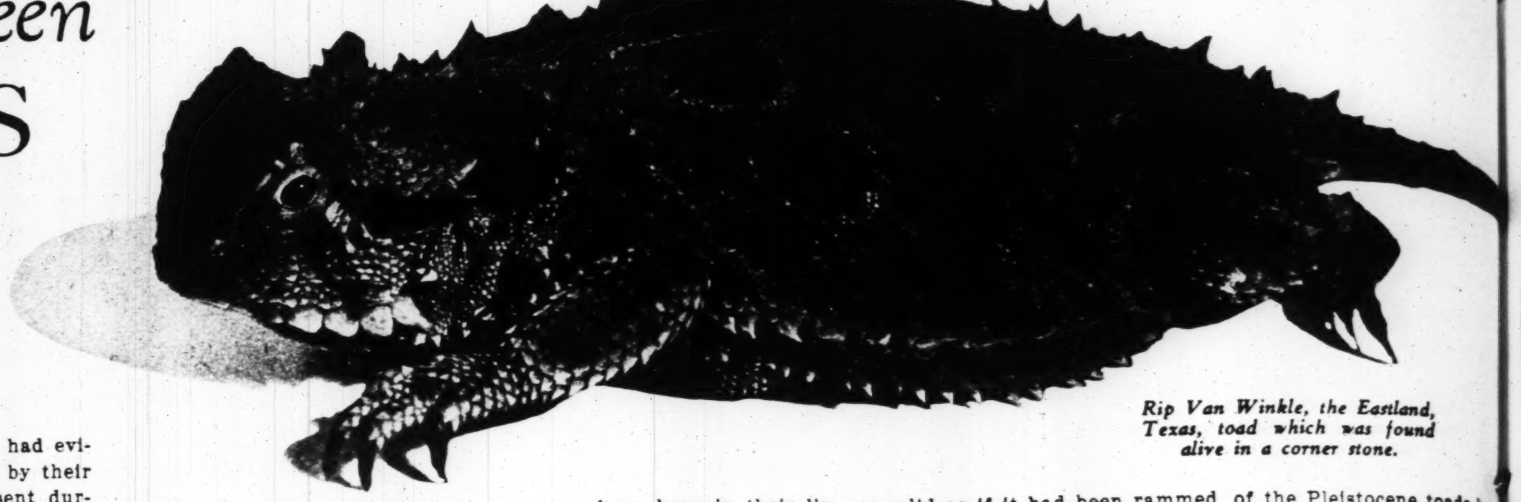
Claims These Toads Have Been ALIVE 500,000 YEARS

Oklahoma Contractor Finds Them in a Gravel Bed Which He Says Is a Formation of the Pleistocene Era.



Rip Van Winkle, the Eastland, Texas, toad which was found alive in a corner stone.

FREDERICK, Oklahoma.

THE national temperament being what it is, it was almost a certainty that Rip Van Winkle, the Eastland, Texas, horned toad, would find some competition. In view of the latest claim, the 31 years that Rip is said to have spent sealed in a corner stone dwindle to the proportions of a mere after-dinner nap.

Andrew H. Holloman, contractor here, has discovered some living toads embedded in hard earth formations that, he claims in all seriousness, are survivals of the Pleistocene geological era, which would make them 500,000 years old. That is not an exact estimate but it should be close enough to satisfy anyone.

While scientists have been polite enough about Holloman's Pleistocene toads, they have shown a vast skepticism. They may have flirted with the possibility of the existence of the Eastland toad without air, food or water, but this they simply would not accept. All of which disturbs Holloman not at all.

Holloman has his facts and his belief is apparently sincere and quite unshakeable. The toads were found, he says, in a sand and gravel bed near this prosperous Oklahoma town. And they were not the only relics of the Pleistocene era found there, either.

Holloman is the owner of the tract in which the Pleistocene fragments have been coming to light. Filling his first contract from the highest stratum of gravel, he encountered hundreds of small balls of reddish rock with bits of flint and round stones embedded in their surface. As the digging went deeper, the rock balls became larger until, at a depth of from 18 to 25 feet, many of them were as large as a man's head.

WORKMEN broke open one of these balls with pickaxes and there was a live toad. That's the story Holloman tells, at any rate. Several more were found, the first few being tossed aside by the workers.

These toads are not ordinary hop toads by any means. Their intestinal tracts are atrophied or undeveloped, Holloman explains. Their eyes, mere slits when they were removed from their rock prisons, have opened and bulged to normal proportions in the two to six months since their liberation, but still blink protestingly at bright light.

Mouthless, they cannot eat, yet Holloman puts forward the fact that two of them, kept in tightly closed glass jars in a darkened room, have sat in wet sand almost motionless since early winter and have multiplied their weight and size by almost four times.

Holloman at once sought out scientific confirmation for his discovery. He sent one of the toads to Dr. Oliver P. Hay, an associate of the Carnegie Institution of Washington and one of the foremost authorities in America on vertebrate paleontology.

Dr. Hay returned the toad, after an examination, with a very polite letter. "It is opposed," he wrote, "to everything we know about animal and vegetable life. How they make those balls is a mystery, but I believe they do it in some way. It is for you and for us to work it out. The balls sent here from your place are too hard for any toad ever to bore his way into them. They do not soften in water and the clay has a lot of lime in it."

PROFESSOR LESLIE SPIER, geologist and research student of the University of Oklahoma, vouches for the Pleistocene character of the gravel deposit readily enough, but he is very much more cautious in his reference to the frogs.

It is the theory of geological antiquity that has aroused scientists more than any speculation over the age of the toads. Literally wagonloads of bones and what are apparently stone arrow and spear heads and other implements were collected before any effort of classification and identification was made. Dr. Harold J. Cook, a curator of the Colorado Museum of Natural History at Denver, has identified many of the finds. He and Prof. Spier have removed a five-foot square section of the carapace, or back, of a Glyptodon, or prehistoric armadillo, one armbone tentatively held in question as that of man or ape, small portions of the bones of a Mylodon, or giant sloth, and footbones of prehistoric horses, among other objects.

As to the toads, Holloman has drawn most consolation from a letter recently written by Dr. William T. Hornaday, director of the New York Zoological Park, who has taken a part in the controversy over the longevity of toads, and in particular over the authenticity of the Eastland toad.

For a precedent for the reported existence of Rip for 31 years in the corner stone of the Eastland Courthouse, Dr. Hornaday quoted a passage from his "Two Years in the Jungle," published in 1885, telling of the discovery of frogs embedded in the bank of the Paryan Ar River in Northern Ceylon:

"In digging for the bones we found several small frogs quite solidly entombed, alive, a foot and a half deep in the sandy earth. We found three species altogether (but I regret to say that I never had an opportunity to identify them).

"Although their bodies were greatly distended by the extraordinary quantity of water they contained, they threw up half of it as soon as they were taken from their living tombs, and then became quite active. They had evidently been buried there by their own knowledge and consent during the rains of a northeast monsoon and, but for our disturbance, would have remained where they were all through the dry and hot season and until the commencement of the next monsoon. The stream was perfectly dry, and the natives said there was no water for miles around except in the wells."

"Now, as a matter of fact," Dr. Hornaday commented, "these frogs may have been in their living tombs for a number of annual monsoons; and had we not disturbed them they might have remained there for 'x' number of years. The earth above them was as solid as if it had been rammed by a professional digger."

Why couldn't "x number of years" be 500,000 as well as five or 50, Holloman asks.

It has been suggested that one of the Pleistocene toads be a block of concrete and left for a year or two. This ment may be tried. But

Ocean-spanning planes ... speeding cars, heavy trucks and busses have proved the stamina, endurance and dependability of Shell Motor Oil—it "stands the gaff."

Speedier, better cars—more and better roads—have made faster, longer, harder driving the order of the day. BUT—will your motor oil stand the gaff? Will it withstand the punishment of gruelling trips and bring your car back home with the motor safe and unharmed?

The hardest service in passenger cars is child's play for Shell Motor Oil. When you consider that it helped make possible the first non-stop East to West transatlantic flight—when you consider that it withstands all the punishment that heavy trucks and busses can give it, you can readily understand why thousands of motorists driving cars like yours demand Shell Motor Oil, and will use no other.

The proper lubrication of your car is more vital today than ever before. Why take a chance, when Shell, the proven, dependable oil, is available at Shell yellow-red service stations and Shell dealers conveniently located everywhere?

Lose 20 lbs. as I Did

Why should not men as well as women keep their figures, their health, their vitality? Excess fat blights both alike. And normal conditions are as easy for one sex as the other.

About 30 years ago science discovered a great cause of excess fat. It lies in a gland deficiency which science can supply. Physicians the world over now treat obesity in this modern way.

That method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. Note the results in every circle. Ask your friends about them. Slender figures are many times as common as they were.

Abnormal exercise or diet is neither required nor advised, but moderation helps. Correct the cause. Simply take four Marmola tablets daily until weight comes down to normal.

A pamphlet in every package gives the formula complete. Also the reasons for the many good results. This is done to ward off any fear of harm.

Consider that Marmola has, for 20 years, been winning what you want. In an easy, pleasant way. Don't you think it time to learn how much this scientific method means to you and yours? The cost is a trifle. You would glaldly give many times as much for what a normal figure means. Then learn how easily people get it.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1.00 per box. Any druggist who is out will order from his jobber.

The Kelvinator-Washington Co.
Washington, D. C.

Gentlemen: My experience covers eight years with one Kelvinator. It is operating, and has always operated, to my entire satisfaction. Its cost of operation has been negligible and I have not needed your mechanical service for some years.

Very truly yours, ★

IN CHOOSING an electric refrigerator, as in the selection of any other household device, trustworthiness is the first consideration.

Where can you duplicate Kelvinator's long record of satisfactory service? Since 1915 . . . this same quality of reliability has been carried down through the whole Kelvinator line.

The Kelvinator Electric Refrigerator, to which this letter refers, is only one of many that have given from six to twelve years of proof of their quality. Day after day, year in and year out, they have run smoothly and efficiently along, delivering the crisp cold of Kelvination that means so much to health, leisure and comfort.

The Kelvinator Electric Refrigerator of today is vastly improved and refined . . . even more reliable and longer lived. Yet it costs less to buy and less to run. Sizes and styles have been created to fit every household need and every pocketbook.

You may have a Kelvinator cooling unit in your present refrigerator, if you wish. Or you may select a splendid new one from the great Kelvinator line. They are moderately priced, in keeping with their size and design, and may be purchased on a most convenient extended payment plan.

Ask about the Kelvinator Electric Refrigerator today . . . it is a rare combination in home equipment which is both a luxury and an economy. Kelvinator Corporation, Detroit. Kelvinator, Ltd., London, England; Kelvinator of Canada, Ltd., London, Ontario.

SURELY these guests would see her hands! And she had meant to fix them; carelessly, thoughtlessly, the necessary task was put off. She flushed—ashamed of her ragged, unkempt finger-nails.

"Old Gold's smoothness was so obvious" said Miss Anne Morgan after the Blindfold Cigarette test

"A decorator once told me that to appreciate the texture of a fabric or the glaze of a vase one's eyes should be closed. And to enjoy the fragrance of a perfume one should close one's eyes . . . one's other senses seem all the keener. That was the convincing thing about the blindfold test. The aroma and the flavor of one cigarette were so marked . . . the smoothness so obvious that I chose it instantly. It proved to be the OLD GOLD."

Anne Morgan

Made from the heart-leaves of the tobacco plant.

Miss ANNE MORGAN
daughter of the late J. P. Morgan, resembles her distinguished father in both ability and breadth of vision.

Why you can pick them . . . even in the dark

In this scientific cigarette test a blindfolded smoker tries four leading brands. The only question asked is, "Which one do you like best?"

Why should one cigarette win time after time? What gives OLD GOLDS their captivating charm? The answer is very simple: heart-leaf tobacco. No heavy, coarse top leaves of the tobacco plant . . . no withered ground leaves. Only the cool and fragrant heart-leaves are good enough for OLD GOLD.

It's sheer quality that gives OLD GOLDS their honey-like smoothness. Do you wonder that they win . . . even in the dark?

SMOOTHER . . . BETTER . . . "not a cough in a carload"

FALSTAFF SPECIAL

At last you have the opportunity of getting an aged, mature brew, just like pre-war times—it has everything, except the alcoholic content.

Full bodied, smooth, thoroughly aged and lagered; one may drink several bottles with the assurance of easy assimilation. No danger of that turgid feeling. This new product is truly worthy of the expression, "The Choicest Product of the Brewer's Art."

Enjoy a bottle of the new Falstaff Special with your daily lunch—or when you aine at the Garden Theatre Restaurant.

Takes you back to the good old Days!

WELL WE MUST TODDLE ON.
THE BEST OF FRIENDS MUST PART
SO SORRY YOU'RE RUSHING AWAY. IT'S ONLY ELEVEN OCLOCK.
MAYBE YOU FOLKS CAN STAY EVEN LONGER NEXT TIME.
YES, THEY'RE NICE PEOPLE BUT GEORGE DIDN'T GET MUCH GOOD OUT OF THE EVENING AFTER I WAS SMART ENOUGH TO REFUSE POINT BLANK TO PLAY FOR DOUGH WITH HIS DECK OF TRICK CARDS.
DID YOU NOTICE HOW JOSEPHINE PRETENDED TO BE OPPOSED TO HIM PLAYING FOR MONEY? SUCH HYPOCRISY! I KNEW— WHY BILOXI, WHERE IS YOUR DIAMOND STICKPIN?
GONE! GONE! NINEVAH, YOU DON'T FOR A MOMENT SUPPOSE—
YES, I DO! LET'S GO BACK AND ASK FOR IT!
IT'S A GENUINE YELLOW DIAMOND. I HAD IT WHEN WE GOT HERE!
BILOXI HAS HAD THE DIAMOND FOR YEARS. IT WEIGHS A FULL TENTH OF A CARAT.
COME IN. WE'LL LOOK FOR IT.
I DIDN'T NOTICE THE PIN ON YOU, BILL.
WELL, BILL WE'VE LOOKED ALL OVER TWICE.
WELL, FOLKS, I DON'T BELIEVE IN FLYING OFF THE HANDLE. BEFORE I SAY ANYTHING LET'S MAKE ONE MORE SEARCH.
YES WE'LL LOOK EVERYPLACE FOR IT!
I'M POSITIVE HE DIDN'T HAVE IT WHEN HE GOT HERE.
SO AM I!
THIS IS THE OLD STUFF. THE HALF-HEARTED WAY THEY LOOK BEHIND PICTURES AND PHONY JUNK LIKE THAT PROVES THAT THEY DON'T INTEND TO GIVE UP THE STONE.
WE'LL GIVE THEM ONE MORE CHANCE.
WELL FOLKS WE'VE PROVED THE DIAMOND ISN'T HERE.
TURNING THE HOUSE UPSIDE DOWN A FEW MORE TIMES IS USELESS.
WELL PEOPLE JUST AS A MATTER OF FORM I'LL REPORT THIS TO THE POLICE!
I'LL STAY RIGHT HERE UNTIL YOU RETURN, BILOXI.
I HAD THE DIAMOND WHEN I GOT HERE. WHEN I LEFT IT WAS GONE. AFTER YOU GET ONE GOOD LOOK AT THIS BUNGLE THE CASE WILL BE AS CLEAR AS DAYLIGHT TO YOU, OFFICER.
YEAH?
WE'VE LOOKED ALL OVER. IF THE DIAMOND IS REALLY LOST IT'S JUST TOO, BAD.
REALLY LOST IS CORRECT. WELL THERE'S ONE CONSOLATION. A DIAMOND OF THAT SIZE IS EASILY IDENTIFIED.
EVEN IF IT WERE TORN OUT OF THE MOUNTING!
WHAT BURNED ME RIGHT DOWN TO THE GROUND WAS WHEN HE STAYED HERE AN HOUR AFTER THE POLICEMAN LEFT AND THREW HINTS ABOUT MY HONESTY. AT LEAST FIFTY TIMES BEFORE HE LEFT I HAD MY MIND MADE UP TO PLASTER HIM UP AGAINST THE WALL AND—
THERE'S THE PHONE.
WHO.....? OH, YES, BILL..... WHAT? YOU FOUND THE DIAMOND AT HOME!
LET ME GO! MY MIND IS MADE UP. AFTER WHAT HAPPENED EITHER I'LL COOK HIS GOOSE OR HE'LL COOK MINE. BIG AS HE IS.
NO! YOU ARE NOT GOING TO LEAVE THIS HOUSE AT TWO A. M. TO GO TO ANOTHER MAN'S HOUSE AND START A SILLY FIGHT!

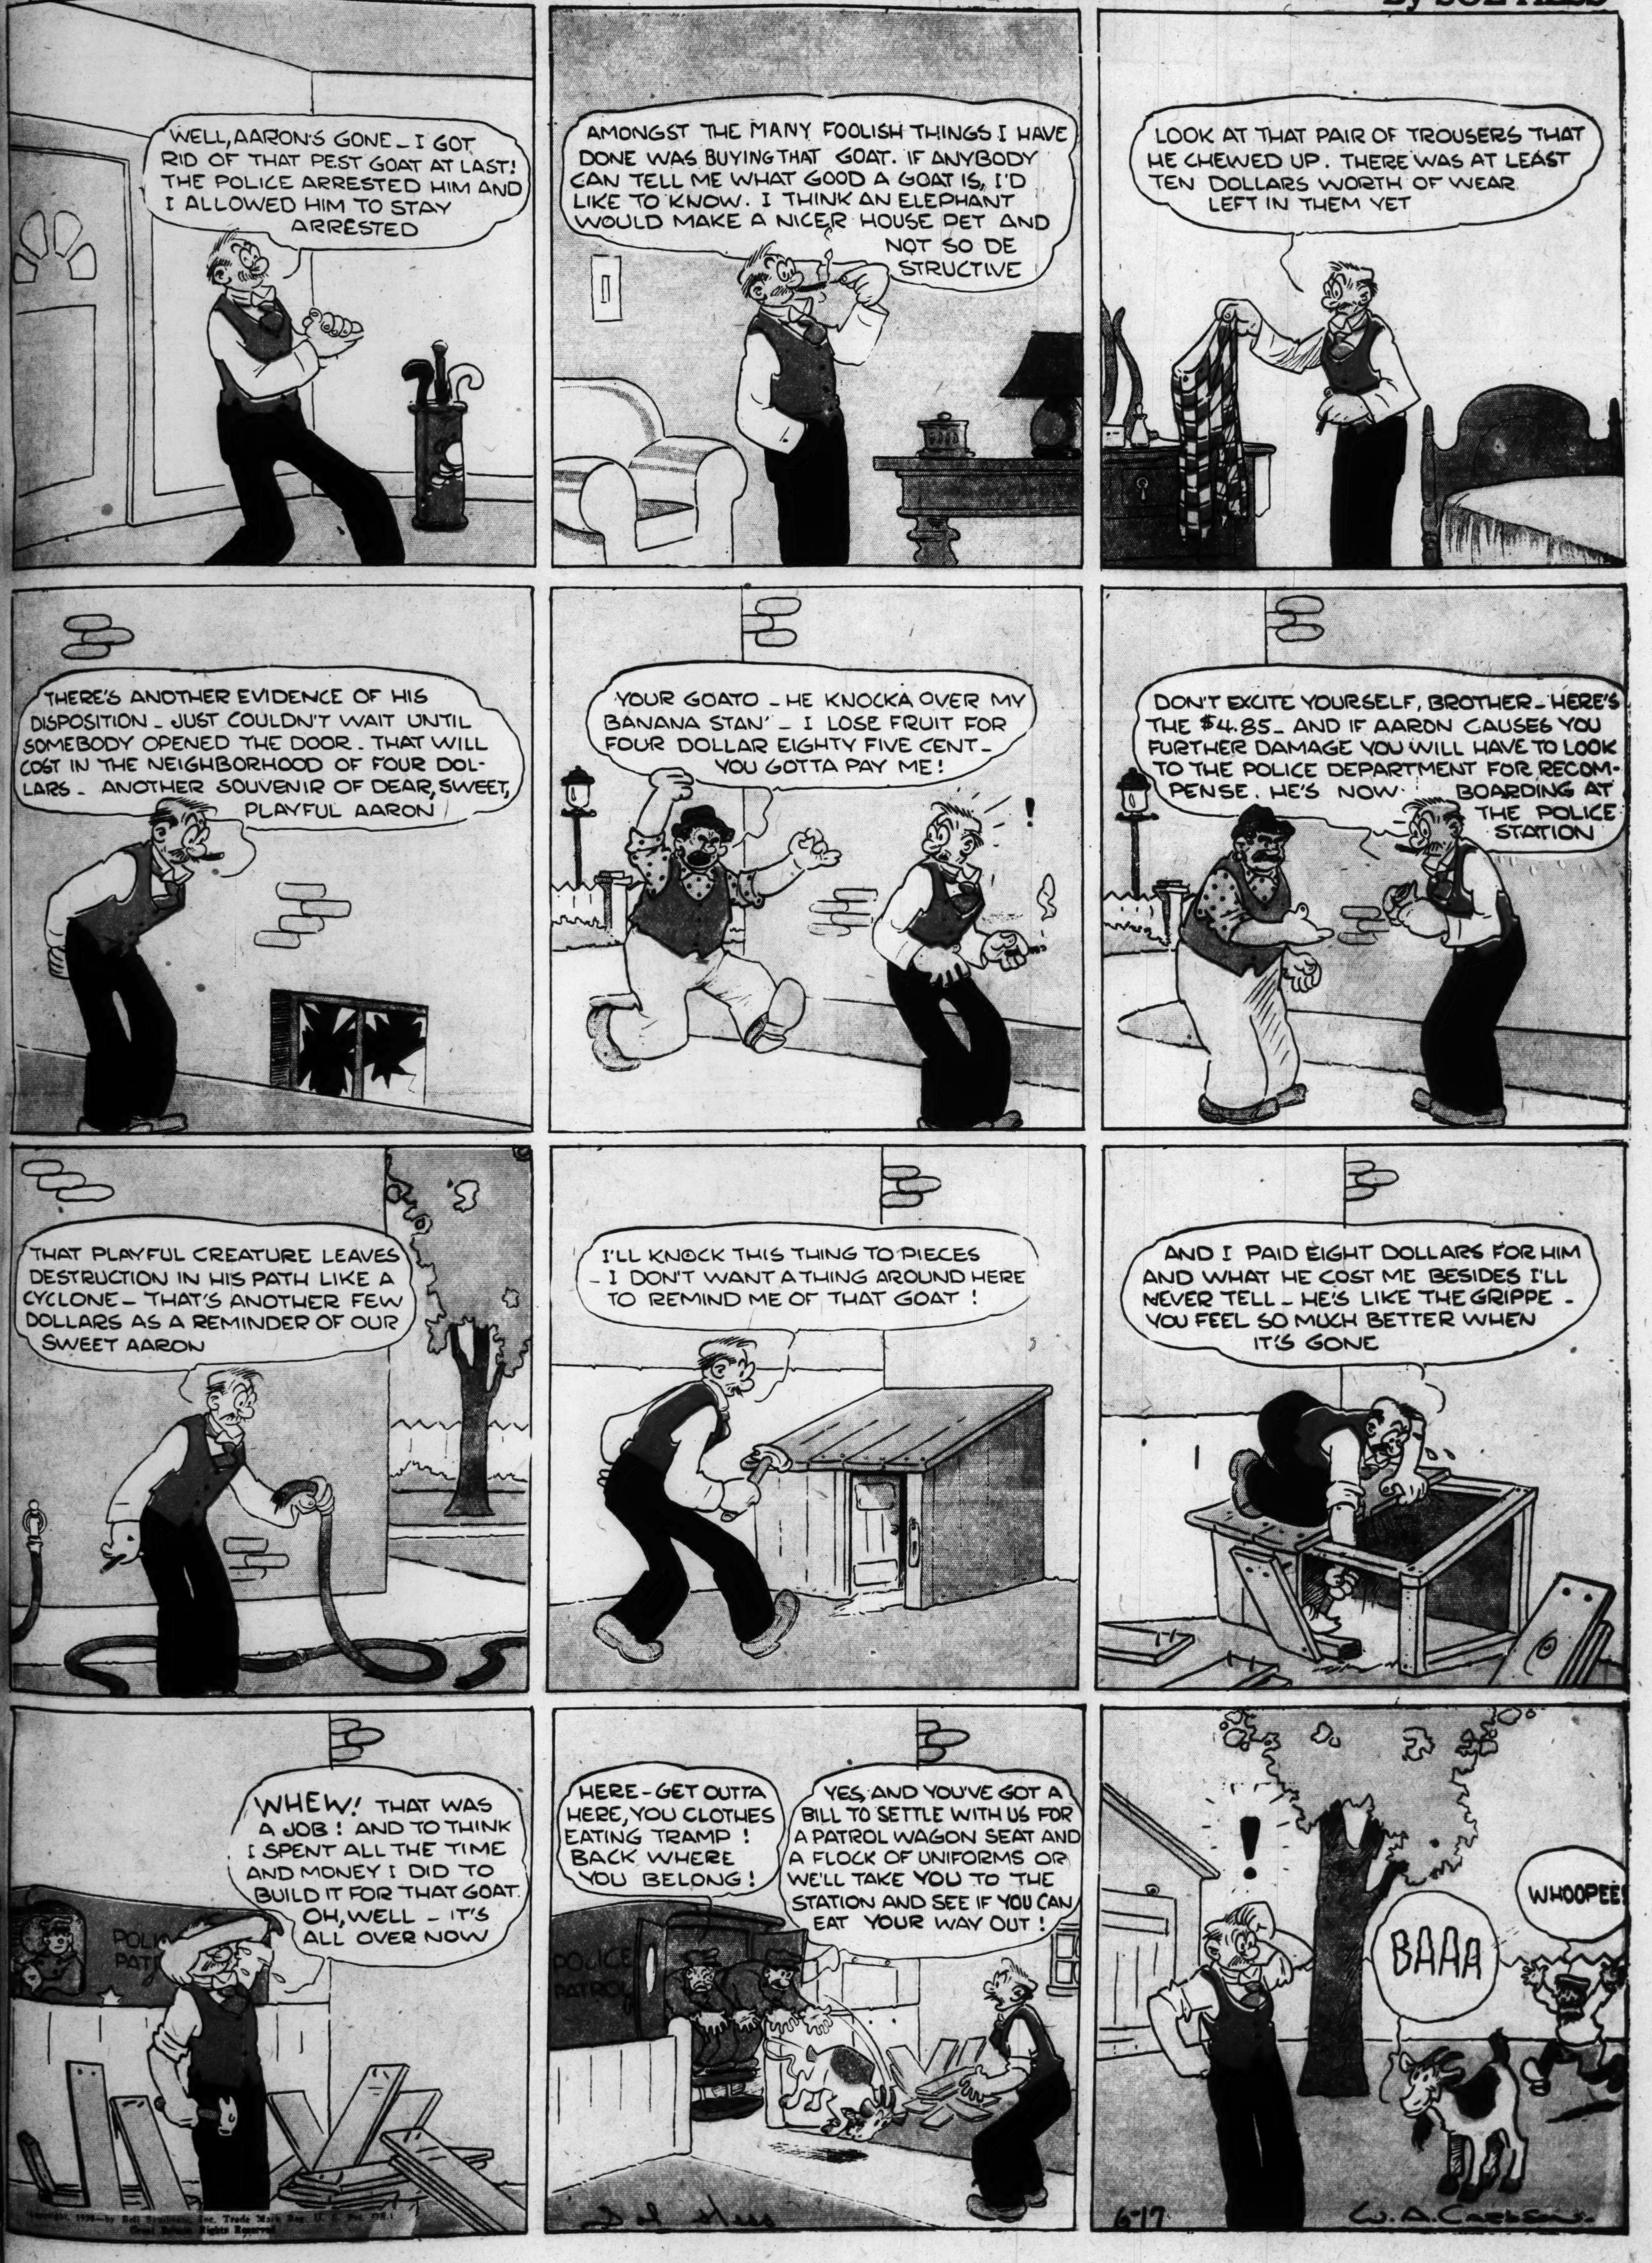
Errant Aaron's Back Again

By SOL HESS



WELL, AARON'S GONE - I GOT RID OF THAT PEST GOAT AT LAST! THE POLICE ARRESTED HIM AND I ALLOWED HIM TO STAY ARRESTED
AMONGST THE MANY FOOLISH THINGS I HAVE DONE WAS BUYING THAT GOAT. IF ANYBODY CAN TELL ME WHAT GOOD A GOAT IS, I'D LIKE TO KNOW. I THINK AN ELEPHANT WOULD MAKE A NICER HOUSE PET AND NOT SO DESTRUCTIVE
LOOK AT THAT PAIR OF TROUSERS THAT HE CHEWED UP. THERE WAS AT LEAST TEN DOLLARS WORTH OF WEAR LEFT IN THEM YET
THERE'S ANOTHER EVIDENCE OF HIS DISPOSITION - JUST COULDN'T WAIT UNTIL SOMEBODY OPENED THE DOOR - THAT WILL COST IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD OF FOUR DOLLARS - ANOTHER SOUVENIR OF DEAR, SWEET, PLAYFUL AARON YOUR GOATO - HE KNOCKA OVER MY BANANA STAN' - I LOSE FRUIT FOR FOUR DOLLAR EIGHTY FIVE CENT - YOU GOTTA PAY ME!
DON'T EXCITE YOURSELF, BROTHER - HERE'S THE $4.85 - AND IF AARON CAUSES YOU FURTHER DAMAGE YOU WILL HAVE TO LOOK TO THE POLICE DEPARTMENT FOR RECOMPENSE. HE'S NOW BOARDING AT THE POLICE STATION
THAT PLAYFUL CREATURE LEAVES DESTRUCTION IN HIS PATH LIKE A CYCLONE - THAT'S ANOTHER FEW DOLLARS AS A REMINDER OF OUR SWEET AARON
I'LL KNOCK THIS THING TO PIECES - I DON'T WANT A THING AROUND HERE TO REMIND ME OF THAT GOAT!
AND I PAID EIGHT DOLLARS FOR HIM AND WHAT HE COST ME BESIDES I'LL NEVER TELL - HE'S LIKE THE GRIPPE - YOU FEEL SO MUCH BETTER WHEN IT'S GONE
WHEW! THAT WAS A JOB! AND TO THINK I SPENT ALL THE TIME AND MONEY I DID TO BUILD IT FOR THAT GOAT. OH, WELL - IT'S ALL OVER NOW

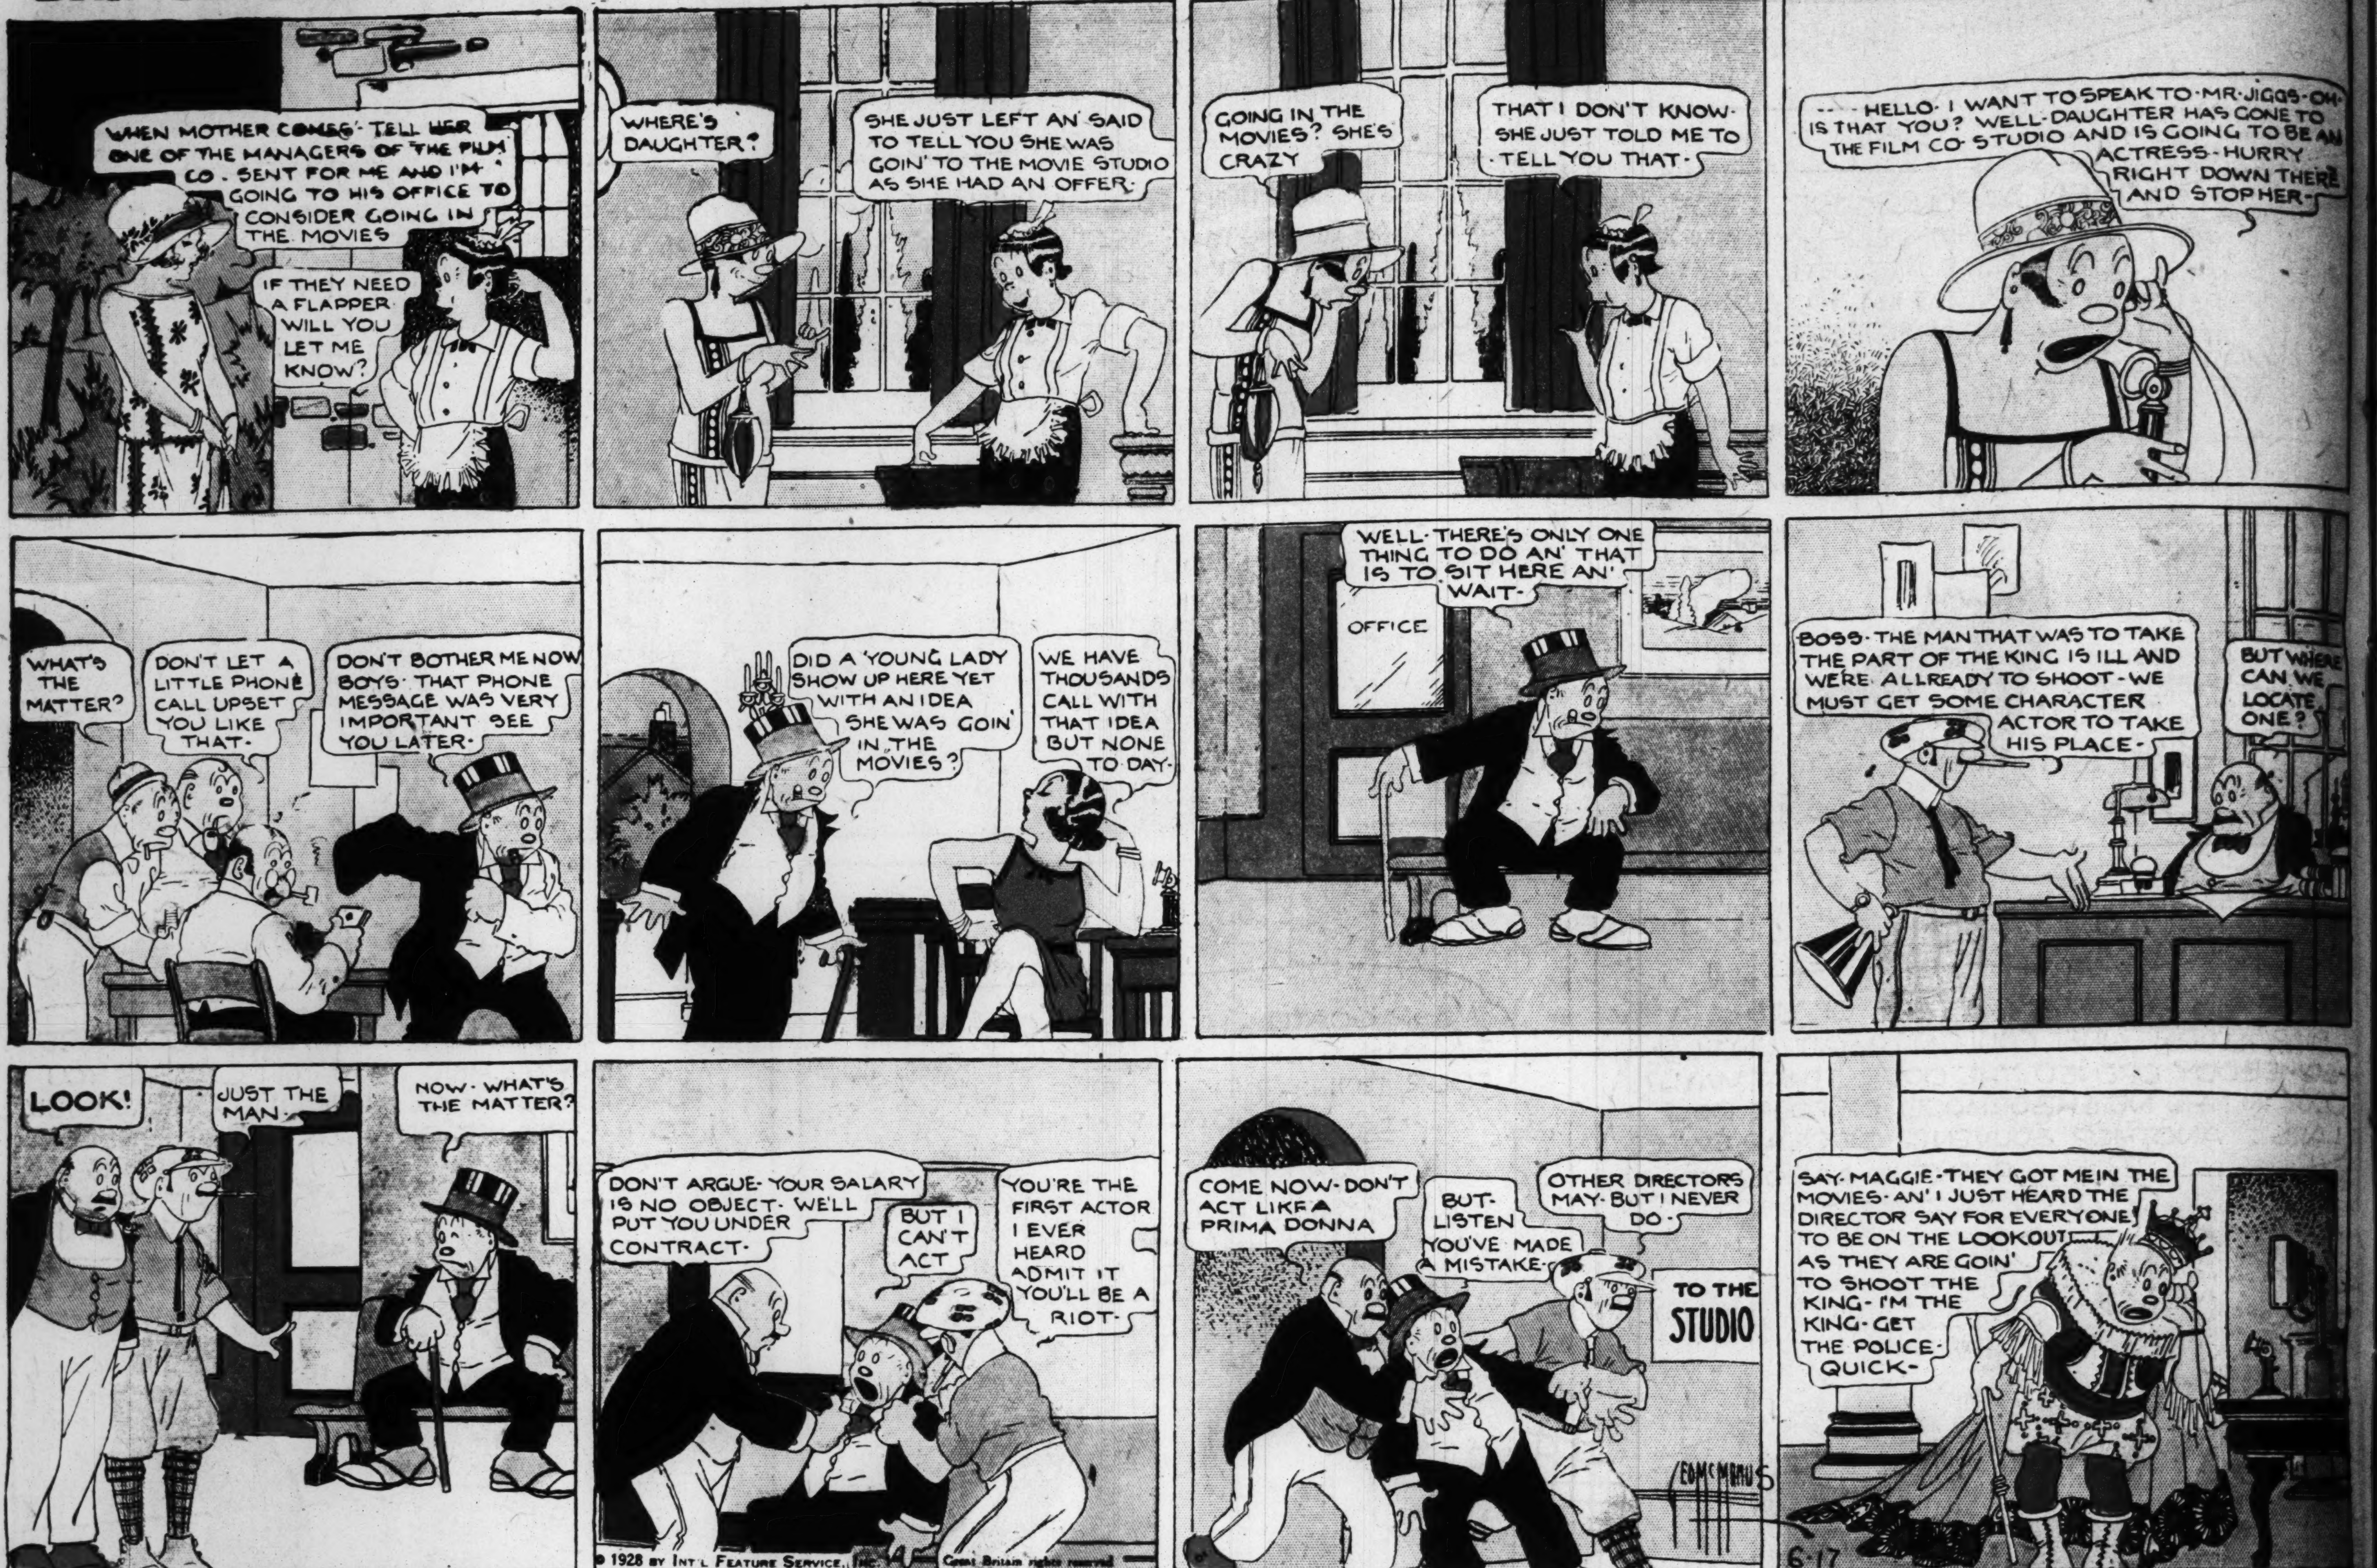
BRINGING UP FATHER

By McMANUS



WHEN MOTHER COMES TELL HER ONE OF THE MANAGERS OF THE FILM CO. SENT FOR ME AND I'M GOING TO HIS OFFICE TO CONSIDER GOING IN THE MOVIES
IF THEY NEED A FLAPPER WILL YOU LET ME KNOW?
WHERE'S DAUGHTER?
SHE JUST LEFT AN' SAID TO TELL YOU SHE WAS GOIN' TO THE MOVIE STUDIO AS SHE HAD AN OFFER.
GOING IN THE MOVIES? SHE'S CRAZY
THAT I DON'T KNOW. SHE JUST TOLD ME TO TELL YOU THAT.
- - - HELLO. I WANT TO SPEAK TO MR. JIGGS. OH. IS THAT YOU? WELL. DAUGHTER HAS GONE TO THE FILM CO. STUDIO AND IS GOING TO BE AN ACTRESS. HURRY RIGHT DOWN THERE AND STOP HER.
WHAT'S THE MATTER?
DON'T LET A LITTLE PHONE CALL UPSET YOU LIKE THAT.
DON'T BOTHER ME NOW BOYS. THAT PHONE MESSAGE WAS VERY IMPORTANT SEE YOU LATER.
DID A YOUNG LADY SHOW UP HERE YET WITH AN IDEA SHE WAS GOIN' IN THE MOVIES?
WE HAVE THOUSANDS CALL WITH THAT IDEA BUT NONE TO DAY.
WELL. THERE'S ONLY ONE THING TO DO AN' THAT IS TO SIT HERE AN' WAIT.
OFFICE
BOSS. THE MAN THAT WAS TO TAKE THE PART OF THE KING IS ILL AND WE'RE ALLREADY TO SHOOT. WE MUST GET SOME CHARACTER ACTOR TO TAKE HIS PLACE.
BUT WHERE CAN WE LOCATE ONE?
LOOK!
JUST THE MAN.
NOW. WHAT'S THE MATTER?
DON'T ARGUE. YOUR SALARY IS NO OBJECT. WE'LL PUT YOU UNDER CONTRACT.
BUT I CAN'T ACT
YOU'RE THE FIRST ACTOR I EVER HEARD ADMIT IT YOU'LL BE A RIOT.
COME NOW. DON'T ACT LIKE A PRIMA DONNA
BUT. LISTEN YOU'VE MADE A MISTAKE.
OTHER DIRECTORS MAY. BUT I NEVER DO.
TO THE STUDIO
SAY. MAGGIE. THEY GOT ME IN THE MOVIES. AN' I JUST HEARD THE DIRECTOR SAY FOR EVERYONE TO BE ON THE LOOKOUT AS THEY ARE GOIN' TO SHOOT THE KING. I'M THE KING. GET THE POLICE. QUICK.

I'M CAPTAIN CLARK. BUT IF I WERE YOU I'D COME WITH ME TO THE LITTLE PARTY THE OFFICERS ARE GIVING
TAKE OFF YOUR COAT AND SHIRT. MAKE IT SNAPPY
SEEMS TO ME THERE'S A LOT OF RED TAPE CONNECTED WITH GETTING PASSES POOR DORA, OUT THERE ALL BY HERSELF ALL THIS WHILE THE NEEDLE WILL GO IN. BUT YOU HAVE TO JAM IT HARD
HIS SKIN SURE IS TOUGH!
NOW, BOYS, YOU KNOW I CAN'T DANCE WITH YOU ALL AT ONCE--- YOU'LL HAVE TO AWAIT YOUR TURNS
IF YOU FELLOWS CAN'T THINK OF ANYTHING MORE TO DO WITH ME, I WISH YOU'D GIVE ME MY PASSES
PASSES MY EYE! YOU'VE JOINED THE FOUR-WEEKS, SUMMER TRAINING CAMP. IT'LL MAKE A MAN OF YOU
